2 hog co-op efforts are progressing

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

ALLENTOWN and SHAMOKIN — Efforts by Pennsylvania hog producers to form co-ops and acquire packing plant facilities are moving ahead in the Allentown and Shamokin areas.

It was announced at a debtors meeting in federal court in Reading on Tuesday concerning the bankruptcy of the A and B packing plant at Allentown that the proposed co-op of hog producers headed by Henry Gruber, of R2 New Tripoli, is the most likely purchaser of the idled facility.

The hog producer group has made an offer to the A and B owners and is awaiting reply.

In a separate co-op venture by other hog producers, a meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday Oct. 2 at the Golden Arrow Restaurant north of Selinsgrove to discuss acquisition of the Shamokin Packing Plant in Northumberland County.

The Shamokin plant is smaller than A and B, but is still operating. It has complete processing facilities, including a retail store. Its capacity is about 500 hogs and 80 beef a day. The beef line is presently idle.

"The separate efforts are moving ahead on the part of hog producers," according to Howard Goss, of PACMA, of the Pennsylvania Farmers Assn. PACMA is helping to coordinate the efforts and provide assistance on funding applications and other matters.

The two hog producer co-op efforts are independent of each

What a stretch of weather we've been having lately. The corn is drying down; the tobacco curing; and fields and gardens yielding their final bounty. This photo, taken on a Central Pennsylvania farm by Jack Hubley, paints a rural picture as enjoyable as the recent weather has felt.

In Harrisburg:

A lot of ag bills but not a lot of time

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

HARRISBURG — There's a lot of pending ag legislation in Harrisburg, but not a lot of time for legislators to take action.

The scheduled three-week legislative session is already one-third spent and there are as many major pieces of ag-related legislation as there were days of sessions.

There was talk in the halls of the Capitol of a possible "Lame Duck" session and every poultry farmer knows the worth of that sort of bird.

Here's a thumbnail sketch of the major ag legislation in this abbreviated session in the State Capitol:

Milk Marketing Board

Movement began in the State Senate this week to extend the life of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board – one of two ag agencies reveiewed under Sunset regulations. The Senate Bill to retain the Board contains no major changes in its present makeup or responsibilities. Retail price setting powers are kept. There are new stipulations that members must be state residents and milk dealers must be free of felony convictions for a certain period.

Farm Show Commission

Also, reviewed under Sunset regulations – periodic appraisal of state agencies to see if they are still necessary – was the State Farm Show Commission. No major changes in its makeup or

Solanco Fair crowns its dairy and livestock champions

BY WENDY WEHR

QUARRYVILLE — Thursday's Holstein competition at the Solanco Fair ended with some familiar faces in the winners' circle. Paul and Maurice Welk of Peach Bottom showed the grand champion and Paul's son Mark exhibited the reserve grand winner.

The grand champion, Welk-View Valiant Tiffany, and the reserve, Yankeeland Milestone Cherry, captured the same two titles last year at Solanco. Jim McCaffrey, judge of this year's Holstein event, described Tiffany as a "top cow who will win a lot of championships."

Tiffany also earned first place in the best udder competition. Paul Welk commented that she is probably the best animal that he and Maurice have ever bred.

As well as being a fine show cow, Tiffany has also proved to be a good producer. In her first lactation she produced 20,670 lbs. of Jeff Byers' entry started his "show" career as a prank pig and worked his way up to the grand championship at the Solanco Fair.

Thursday, September 20
Report supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: Prices are unchanged. Trade sentiment steady at best. Cartoned egg movement is light to fair and unaggressive. An occasional producer-packer notes retail orders for this week's promotions of mediums as "quite disappointing." Graded stocks are adequate to heavy with mediums in the largest supply. Ungraded supplies are generally adequate in the heavyweight classes while the lighter weights are usually in excess of current needs.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door:

A Extra Large .70-.72; A Large .69-.71; A Medium .52-.55.

Delmarva Poultry

Star Wars ag

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

Often we get lost in our own little domain of farming and forget that there is a big, big world of agriculture out there.

A publication from Holland this week shows that revolutionary ag developments are under way in that country which go well beyond our traditional concept of a land of windmills and tulips.

For example:

A totally new system of weed control through infra-red thermal radiation has been developed. Weeds are zapped with beams of heat radiation, causing their water-laden cell walls to explode and killing the weed No residue and no wind drift

Grass is being grown in completely enclosed rooms, reaching maturity from seed in eight days Nutrition and digestibility are as good as field grown grass Climate is fully controlled and water and nutrients are added automatically

A seed casette containing 16,000 tiny seeds now permits the automatic drilling of vegetable, flower and tree seeds into pots just like field crops are now drilled It brings the advances of agronomic planting into the realm of horticulture

In Holland, chicken manure is being compressed into briquettes and then burned to help heat the poultry houses. The system includes the compression chamber, conbuction unit and automatic fuel feeding equipment

A fertilizer spreader in Holland now has a better aim. Distribution of fertilizer from one side of the spreader can be strictly controlled and limited to keep valuable fertilizer from falling on unwanted areas

And development is continuing on wind turbines -- the modern offspring of the traditional windmills. Now, they are being operated electronically to get the most efficiency at very low wind speeds

It's just amazing that such ag developments are coming out of such a small country Makes you wonder, if the U S is ever faced with such land and ecological constraints and other problems, what new developments might come off American agri-drawing boards -- instead of just ever bigger and more complex

NE Farm Bill

A Northeast Farm Bill Committee has come up with some drafts of policy statements concerning what it thinks should be in the 1985 Farm Bill.

Such thinking and working ahead is good Traditionally, the Northeast has come out on the short end of the congressional stick in farm legislation.

But this NE committee, chaired by Clyde Rutherford, of Dairylea, appears heavily weighted toward the dairy industry We hope its policy statements cover more than just the dairy recommendations it has cited

The Northeastern ag problem extends well beyond just dairy While dairy is the bulwark of Northeastern agriculture and its economy, we hope that the other segments of farming are not forgotten when the needs of our area are relayed to Washington

To Beware Of Frosted Crops

Colder weather means frost. In fact this is good news to many of us who have had enough of hot humid weather this summer. Livestock producers who have fields of sudan-sorghum hybrids should keep in mind that when frost hits these crops they could be toxic to livestock for seven to 10 days following the freeze. After this period, and the plants are dead, they may be used safely. However, any growth coming from the plant after a killing frost might also be toxic.

Another frost hazard would be to permit livestock to graze alfalfa or clover stands while the frost is still on the plants. This can cause severe bloating. Allow the frost to melt and the plants to dry before grazing. Good management is needed on various forage crops after a killing frost.

To Be Careful During Silo Filling

Two problems are occuring during this silo filling season as a result of the excellent growing year. One is overloading wagons causing broken spindles, twisted frames and bent axles. Corn silage is heavy this year and overloaded wagons crossing ditches and ruts in fields causes excessive strain on equipment. If your wagon is full when only half way around the field, change wagons; the "down time" making repairs is more costly than the time to change wagons.

The other problem is "silo gas". We are receiving a lot of calls concerning silo gas. These gases can develop from one day to 14 days after the silo is filled. Most of these gases have a chlorine-laundry bleach odor. Some are yellow and some are colorless. Don't take any chances — never enter a partly filled silo without running the blower for at least 15 minutes. These gases are heavier than air and will come down the chute into the barn. Be careful around recently filled silos.

To Store Pesticides Safely

Most producers are about finished with their spray materials for the year. Many of these can be held over until next year with good results. However, it is always best to purchase only enough for one season at a time. When storing spray materials, always keep them in their original container and always away from children, pets and livestock. It is strongly

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W ALTHOUSE

THE BEST DEAL
September 23, 1984

Background Scripture:
Romans 7:4-25.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 6:12-23.

The young man thought he had made a deal with God.

He would straighten out his life and live according to God's will. In return, God was expected to save his marriage.

In vain, I tried to help him understand that God cannot be manipulated like that. Althought I could assure him that God would forgive the mess he had made of his life, that did not mean that he would be spared the consequences of all that he had done in the past. And the break-up of his marriage was likely to be one of those consequences.

BARGAINING WITH GOD

When at last his marriage ended in divorce, the young man gave up on his short-lived commitment to put his life in order. His justification: God had failed to live up to his end of the deal. Nothing I said seemed to help him realize that that wasn't the deal God had offered him in the first place.

It wasn't long after this that I was faced with a situation of my own. I was in a position where my conscience told me that I had to speak out against a certain situation. I really didn't want to do it, because I knew it would be a rather unpopular stand (as it turned out, it was even more unpopular than I had realized). I would be standing virtually alone and I didn't relish having to do so.

The time came, however, when I could no longer refuse to take a stand. And I did. Yet, when I had said my piece and done what I felt I had to do, I was disturbed to find that I didn't really feel all that "good" for having done what I thought to be the right thing must confess that I was a little resentful that almost no one seemed to notice that I was doing the "right" thing.

DELIVERANCE!

It was then that I realized that that had not been the deal God offered me in the first place. The deal God offers me and all of us is far better than that. The fact is that, at best, we never win the battle against our tendency to sin. For, as Paul puts it so well, "I can will what is right, but I cannot do it. For I do not do the good I want, but the evil I do not want is what I do." (7:19,20).

This, then, is where our bargains with God go astray: the problem is not with God, but with us, for we are the ones who often are not able to keep up our end of the deal. Like Paul, we are tempted to shout, "Wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from this body of death?"

The deal that God offers us is one that is not dependent upon our goodness at all, but upon his grace. It is the best possible deal we could ever be offered, for with the vastness of God's love and mercy it overcomes our inability to help ourselves. And what we get has nothing to do with what we "have coming to us"—God forbid! It is grace, not "just deserts" that leads us to join Paul in singing, "Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord!"

PA. PORK FUND

Editor:

State Representative Scheetz' (Lancaster) proposal to create a mandatory .5 percent Hog Checkoff with .3 percent going to National Pork Producers Council is an excellent means to insure the future of the pork industry! But the .2 percent to establish a Super Fund to help pork producers devestated by disease is not practical.

First, it's a cop-out by government to dump the economic burden of any cataclysm (i.e. PRV, TB, African Swine Fever, Packer bankruptcy or Canadian hogs) on pork producers and expect us to solve these problems without help!

Government (Good Government) should accept some responsibility to preserve the pork industry and ante-up. Because the .2 percent check-off for such a fund would net approximately $150,000 to $200,000 depending on the price, weight and number of head marketed.

This would never be enough to cover the losses of 50 PRV cases ($4400.00 per case) – let alone something as catastrophic as ASF.

Secondly, I am totally opposed to a Board of Directors which would administer the fund that includes the Secretary of Agriculture, Veterinarian from the Bureau of Animal Industry and Packer. It should be ALL pork producers if we must solely pay the bill. Pork producers are capable of administering such a fund especially since it's their money.

I think the .2 percent Rep. Scheetz has earmarked for the disease Super Fund would be better utilized entirely for advertising because this would have a positive effect on the entire Pa. Pork Industry. Suppose the $220,000 spent for advertising would raise the live hog prices by one cent per pound; this would net Pa. pork producers $2,200,000, or a 10-fold rate of return. And be more realistic and economically helpful for the Pa. pork industry.

Sincerely,

Philip Frieling
President
Tri-County Pork Producers

TIRED OF BAY

Editor

I've heard enough about the farmers being blamed for a dead Chesapeake Bay. There was more farming here a hundred years ago than there is now. And there were factories dumping into the streams, people used out houses, streams had dams in them with millers and saw mills and all the such.

Fish were very abundant in spite of all that.

In Baltimore, canneries were on the Bay dumping their effluent right in the water and big schools of fish (of very big fish) were very abundant.

It's only in the last 40 years that the Bay died. We farmers who can't fight back are the fall guys and culprits being forced to take the blame.

That's all a big lie. The truth is that the excrement of the nuclear plants into the flowing rivers is and has killed everything in the Bay. Muddy waters and phosphates, nitrates, etc. by the farmers did not. Muddy waters and washoff has occurred since Adam and Eve.

If one nuclear plant is somewhere along a river it will kill the whole ocean. The radioactive excrement of a nuclear plant kills and gives cancer to all water life and impedes reproduction etc. There is the real answer to a dead Bay.

The nukes must go. That includes submarines, nuke ships and all. The excrement from a nuclear plant will kill for the next 10,000 years. That's why we must clean up and clean out and get rid of all nuclear plants. Not the farmers.

The nuclear industry, NRC, TMI officials and all pro-nukers have lied to us all with "bull feces" that nuclear plants and power is so safe.

They are, in fact, guilty before truth and Almighty God of cruel chronic murder. They have never admitted to high radiation of just the past few days which was 1.5 roetgens per hour. That was a year's dose in one and a half days. Fifty roetgens is a maximum year's dose.

You can't get a radiation detector to see for yourself because they have been cleverly and crookedly banned by the White House and the crooked cohorts.

I figured this would enlighten you as to what the truth really is and what kind of monkey show they are putting on.

703 dairy commercials to appear on TV

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board's nationwide ad campaign to increase consumption of dairy products kicked off officially on the evening of Sunday, Sept. 9, when the first two national network dairy commercials aired during ABC's "Hardcastle and McCormick" and its "Sunday Night Movie."

These were the first of 703 National Dairy Board-sponsored milk and cheese commercials due to appear on the three networks between September 9 and April 30, the close of the campaign.

"Hardcastle and McCormick" reached an estimated 13,500,000 homes; "Sunday Night Movie" ran in 14,920,000 households.

An average of 26.5 National Dairy Board commercials will appear each week. Of the total viewing audience, fluid milk ads will reach 85 percent an average of 3.8 times; cheese promotion commercials will reach 88 percent an average of 7.2 times; and cheeses continuity ads will reach 90 percent an average of 6.7 times.

Of the 703 national network commercials, at least 261 will appear during prime-time hours (8-11 p.m.). Three hundred forty-six will appear on daytime TV. Ninety-six commercials will be aired during children's shows, including a number of prime-time specials.

For the sporting audience, fluid milk commercials will run during Games One and Three of the World Series, and cheese ads during Games Two and Four. Ads will also air during next year's Superbowl XIX.

Not included in the network schedule are butter ads, for which time is still being bought. Butter ads, in addition, will be dropped into selected regional markets rather than appear nationwide. The Board's calcium-related ads will be carried in the print media, not on television.

The National Dairy Board commercials are supplemented and complemented by ads sponsored by the state and regional promotional bodies, whose ads appear in their own markets only.

The national advertising campaign was designed by the Dairy Promotion Federation Association, which won a $50.6 million contract from the National Dairy Board to carry out the promotion work. The Federation is composed of the United Dairy Industry Association and the promotional bodies of California, Oregon, Washington and Neveda (known as COW).

suggested to have a separate room or building for pesticide storage. Wettable powders are easy to store; however, emulsions and liquids may be harmed by freezing weather. Producers are urged to follow the label and instructions in this respect. It may be necessary to keep some of them in a heated building. Be sure they are not near feed supplies because accidents can happen. Pesticides kept in a room or building under a lock is a good way to prevent costly mistakes and tragedies.

To Check Fan Louvers

Fan louvers on poultry and swine operations should close tightly when a fan is not operating. If they don't air will enter through the open louver and be discharged by the nearest running fan, giving you no ventilation value.

When the fan is on, louvers must be fully open; otherwise, they will restrict the flow of air from the building. Tests have shown that a little dust on fan louvers can restrict air flow by more than 1,000 c.f.m. per fan. A restricted fan operates longer and bears a heavier load using more electricity, which costs money.

In many cases, you can repair louvers that are sticking open or shut just by cleaning them and applying oil or rust solvent to the hinges.

M&W®

V-Chisel

The M&W Earthmaster V chisel is designed to fit on a tractor's category II or III 3-point hitch.

The M&W V-chisel bar design places the chisel shanks so they are parallel to allow crop residue to flow between and around them. The 36" tall parabolic design chisel shank allows for deep soil penetration to get under the hard plow sole - lifting, shattering and breaking it up with the least amount of power required. This allows the surface water to penetrate the soil faster and allows your fertilizer to penetrate deeper into the soil, but most of all it allows your crop roots to penetrate deeper into the soil to use valuable moisture and fertilizer all season long, even during a dry season.

When the standard automatic trip shanks hit a rock or obstruction they will automatically trip up and over the obstruction and automatically go back into the ground without stopping.

Chisel points are reversible. When one end wears, remove the pin and turn the point around using the new end

STEIGER

Why buy a 2-Wheel Drive tractor with Front-Wheel assist when you can buy a STEIGER for the same money or less.

COMPARE BEFORE YOU BUY...

WHEN YOU CAN HAVE THIS

STEIGER ADVANTAGES OVER FRONT-WHEEL ASSIST TRACTORS

1. More traction from having all drive tires the same size.
2. Less compaction because tractor weight is distributed more evenly from front to back.
3. Increased productivity because Steiger has more drawbar HP.
4. Less production expense because Steiger does more work per gallon of fuel.
5. Better maneuverability because Steiger's articulated steering permits short turning radius.
6. Proven Steiger reliability from simple tractor design and proven industrial strength engines and drive train components.

MacCauleys again dominant in Solanco sheep

QUARRYVILLE — Except for one set of title reversals in the Cheviot competition, the Solanco Fair's Sheep Show was a rerun of last year's event.

The two MacCauley sisters from Atglen were dominant figures in the winners circle, with Nancy showing the top ram and ewe in Suffolk competition, and her sister Donna doing likewise in the Cheviot show. Last year's top Cheviot exhibitor, Curt Barrett of Cochranville, was nudged into the reserve champion ewe position this year.

The show's top Hampshire ewe was shown by Monica Esh of Kinzers, and champion Shropshire honors in both ram and ewe classes went to Kirkwood's Leonard Brown.

In market lamb competition it was the MacCauleys all the way, with Nancy showing the top lightweight and Donna exhibiting the winning heavyweight.

Champion fitter honors went to Nancy MacCauley, with Monica Esh being named champion showman.

Cedar Crest FFA chapter 'puts it all together'

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LEBANON — The Cedar Crest FFA Chapter at Lebanon "put it all together" during the past year.

Always an active chapter which captures its share of awards and honors, Cedar Crest during the past year under the guidance of advisor Harold Berkheiser put together its best overall rating that it has yet achieved.

"We had a very active and good group," Berkheiser said, "who worked together to compile this achievement."

While the chapter's total achievements are too lengthy to list, here are highlights of major accomplishments.

–Received top first places in the state in both BOAC (Beautify Our American Communities) and National Chapter competition. Thus, Cedar Crest received first places in two of the three major chapter competitions conducted among chapters throughout Pennsylvania.

–The chapter will be honored at the National FFA convention for high national placings in the two competitions. It marks the fifth straight year for a National Chapter Award and the second straight National BOAC Award.

--Gary Krall, chairman of Community Development Activities and chapter president this year, will be competing Sept. 29 - Oct. 3 in Washington, D.C. with other state winners for a national BOAC individual award. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Krall, Fonderwhite Rd., Lebanon.

--Also, scheduled to make competitive trips are twins Dan and Dave Groff, who placed third respectively in state dairy foods and land judging competition. Dan will be competing at the National FFA Convention and Dave in Oklahoma next spring. Graduate members of the chapter, they are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Groff, Prescott Road, Lebanon.

–Other top awards included a first-place state proficiency award in floriculture, a second in horse proficiency and a third in parliamentary procedure.

The chapter's BOAC award is a continuation of its community development program of improving recreational facilities in Lebanon County. In constructing and installing the equipment and signs at the 18 stations of the physical fitness course in South Hills Park, the chapter saved South Lebanon Township some $3,300.

Other community activities included additional work at Stoever's Dam, helping to distribute trees with the Conservation District, Food for America program, farm tours for underprivileged preschoolers, conservation demonstration and school landscaping.

After a year like that, what's ahead for the chapter?

With the school year just begun, members are already busy accepting the formidable challenge of achievement chalked up during the past year.

ATTENTION DAIRY FARMERS

To: Date:

Dear Sirs:

After reviewing the expenses of operating my business, economics dictate that I must recover a greater portion of the operating expenses. Just as any other segment of the business economy, farmers cannot operate at a loss year after year.

As a sound business move I want an increase in my milk price by .65 per cwt. This will, most assuredly NOT cover my expenses but will allow for the tax and advertising.

I'm sure that you are aware that if one end of our business is not healthy, the rest, in time, feels the effects.

I know that an adequate supply of milk is needed on your end as is an adequate income on the producer's end. Because you are in a better position to pass the cost on to the public, I trust there should be no great problems.

Respectfully,

365-lb. pumpkin, 20-lb. cabbage, 81-lb. melon

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — Ten lucky gardeners picked up $25 checks as the York Fair wound down last weekend, winners in the fair's first horticulture record-setting varieties contest. Although the entries we're most impressive, none topped the world records to win the offered $1,000 prize.

All but one winner was grown in York County. A Chester countain, H. Roland Leslie of Coatesville, lugged a 365 pound pumpkin to the fairgrounds to win the giant pumpkin category, and handily outweighed any other entry - of any variety - in the spacious Horticulture Hall.

In contrast was another special rosette winner, a 1.66-pound pear from the backyard orchard of James Wilson of Glen Rock R2.

"This is only the second year the tree has fruited," commented Wilson, of the five-year-old Stark Bros. Jumbo Pear variety, which still has two more impressive, but a trifle smaller, fruits on the tree. Last year's single pear borne by the tree weighed a pound and a half.

Wilson sprayed the spur pear on the same schedule as the rest of his collection of various fruiting trees, about every two weeks. He utilized mostly a combination of Sevin and Captan, with the occasional addition of Furban for controlling black rot.

When a friend sent Tom Doll, Red Lion R4, three watermelon seed last spring, the midwesterner had no way of knowing the 50-cent-per-seed gift would grow into a $25 prize, whopping 81-pounder.

Doll planted the three seeds individual peat pots and two eventually developed into fledging plants. According to Mrs. Doll, they took the plants to their son's garden at Loganville, where they were put in the ground under black plastic mulch.

Such vigorous growth vined out the the family first believed it would be a case of all stalk and no fruit, but eventually they began finding miniature melons hidden under the lush leaves.

At first melon taken off weighed 55 pounds, and although the color was a sort of pale pink, the flavor was tasty and the flesh a sandy texture. Three more melons still await sampling, in addition to the prize winner.

Encouraged by numerous friends to enter the monster melon in the fair, Mrs. Doll now muses, "I wonder how many hands might have rubbed over that melon during the fair's nine days?".

"When we eat sauerkraut, I'll remember that head of cabbage," says the grower of the giant 19.75 pound cabbage, Dean Becker of Spring Grove. Actually, the eight quarts of sauerkraut were made from a companion plant head that topped the scale at over 20 pounds, but split. To avoid the same fate with his entry, Becker picked it a couple of weeks prior to the fair and held the cabbage under refrigeration. By the time the fair had expired so had the winning cabbage.

Growing supersize entries for the fair's horticulture exhibits has become a sort of family endeavor for the Beckers, and a few years ago, their son was the exhibitor of a very large pumpkin.

"We try something new every year for novelty," adds Becker. "Now we're ready to try it again in 1985."

Becker raised the winning cabbage plants from seed of a crossed variety, Hybrid O S Cross. Although he does make sure that abundant fertilizer is available for his garden crops, and keeps watch on any insect problems, the winner is quick to credit the summer's wet weather for boosting his cabbage crop.

Other winners in the York fair records class are:

Cantaloupe - 11 pounds, Cynthia Shearer, Spring Grove R4.

Gourd - 17.85 pounds, William Black, Dallastown.

Potato - 2.75 pounds, Altred Miller, Rohlers Church Road, Dover.

Tomato - 2 pounds, 3 oz., Ada Trone, Spring Grove R3.

Apple - 1.34 pounds, Russ Sechrist, Red Lion R2.

Squash - 120.5 pounds, Russell Becker, Spring Grove R2.

York FFA'ers win big at fair

YORK — York County FFA members kept busy in the show ring at the York Fair, claiming honors for several chapters taking part from across the county.

Sheep and beef competition opened the FFA contests during the first half of the fair. John Eaton, Jr., of the Red Lion chapter, snagged grand and reserve championships in both Dorset and Suffolk sheep breed shows, then finished off by claiming the master showman award. Hampshire awards went to Dover chapter's Daryl Reedy and Ed Keeny of Red Lion won all the rosettes in the market lamb category. Judge for the sheep show was J.G. Warfield of Marriotsville, Md.

In the beef showring, Penn State's professor emeritus Herman Purdy picked Jim Eisenhour of Dover for the beef breeding and master fitting honors, with classmate Deborah Hoffman the market steer winner.

During the second half of the fair, dairy and hog contests came into the spotlight, with John Morris of Maryland making the dairy selections while Dennis Grumbine of Lebanon worked the swine shows.

C.E. Hubbard III, Red Land chapter, took the Holstein champion ribbons with his three-year-old. Reserve senior and grand was the two-year-old shown by Loretta Cooper of Kennard Dale. Kennard Dale's Jon Hash exhibited the junior champion and classmate Randy Gross the reserve heifer with their junior and senior calves. Kelly Kilgore earned the champion fitter title while Loretta Cooper was chosen top showman.

Veteran junior hogman Gus Parlett from Red Lion walked off with grand and reserve in both the Spotted Poland and Chester White shows, while Red Lion's Michele Stearn and Melissa Peters split the champion and reserve spots in Duroc classes.

Greg and Beth Innerst garnered still more championships for the Red Lion chapter when their entries took all the awards in the Berkshire breed category. Innerst also got the nod as champion fitter over the hog show, with Jeff Stern of Dover named the champion showman.

With livestock competition behind them, several FFA members climbed onto tractors to maneuver rigs through a course

(Turn to Page A33)

YORK — A capsule rundown on the open class hog results at the York Fair takes on the overtures of double talk.

Selected grand champion barrow over all breeds was the purebred Duroc exhibited by Jim and Gus Parlett of Airville, and bred by the Roger Bankert family of Hanover, a Duroc purebred operation.

Reserve grand barrow overall, on the other hand, was shown by Greg Bankert and bred by the Parlett's from their purebred Chester White lines. Earlier, the same hog had taken champion market barrow for young Bankert in the 4-H judging, along with his claiming 4-H Duroc honors, and master fitting and showmanship awards.

Bankert says champion hogs need to be "looked at every day." In addition, he favors running his top pick for daily exercise, and Greg and his winner regularly jogged a quarter-mile for winning show-ring fitness. Ground corn and supplement comprise the diet of these hogs, along with "extra added ingredients" which top hog growers will only hint about.

Also in the top winners' circle was hogman John Strawbridge of Stewartstown, showing the champion pair overall, a class winning set of Hampshires.

Strawbridge took home top awards in both Yorkshire and Hampshire open shows, while the Bankert family won numerous Duroc breed awards, and Parletts picked up a host of ribbons in both Spotted and Chester White competition. — J.B.

Judge Dennis Grumbine, left, picks Duroc of Jim and Gus Parlett as champion overall at York Fair.

Berkshire open and FFA classes were topped by entry of Greg and Beth Innerst at York Fair.

There she is, Miss...

YORK — That perennially favorite 4-H dairy event, calf dressing, wrapped up the 4-H activities at the York Fair last Thursday evening, with five teams turning out for the costuming fun.

Junior teams paraded into the ring first, to garb their sometimes reluctant heifer calves in a variety of get-ups. Judge Michael Sleeper, of Atlantic Breeders, had the difficult task of selecting winners.

Awarded the blue ribbon in the junior category were Janelle Boyer and Angie Lang, who fastened fake horns on the head of their heifer for the title role in the entry, dubbed "The Devil went down to Georgia."

In contrast came the red ribbon winners, Alyson Duncan and Amy Shoemaker, portraying a wedding party. A bovine Miss America, entered by Tim Warner and Rich Bupp, placed third.

Senior first place went to Patty Bupp and Lesley King, dressed as Indians with their calf in a cardboard canoe. Bridgette Boyer and Angie Lange, in keeping with the news of the week, had a second Miss American entry.

Commodity dressups followed, with youngsters publicizing their favorite farm commodity. Outfitted in a dairy theme, little Chad and Amy Timmer won the junior division, and 4-H sheep exhibitor Melissa Trostle was successful in the senior class wearing her all wool coordinated outfit and leading one of her project lambs.

The evening's fun events wrapped up with a hilarious - if messy - ice cream eating contest. — J.B.

Myers gets FFA award

YORK — Julie Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Myers, Sr. of R1 Wellsville, was chosen as York County's Outstanding FFA Member of 1984 at the York Fair.

She received an expense paid trip to the National FFA Convention and American Royal Livestock Show which are to be held in Kansas City, Mo., the week of Nov. 5.

Myers is a senior at the Northern York High School where she is an honor student and reporter of their local FFA chapter and is currently serving as vice-president of the York County FFA. She attended the Pennsylvania FFA Convention this past summer as a delegate representing York County. In 1982 and 1983 she also attended the state convention and participated in the state livestock judging contests and received gold and bronze awards respectively. In 1982 Myers was a member of the livestock judging team representing Pennsylvania at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass. which placed 2nd overall.

130-year-old tradition kicks off Reading Fair

FLEETWOOD — The Berks County Agricultural and Horticultural Association celebrated its 130-year-old tradition last Wednesday evening at the annual banquet to "kick-off" the 1984 Reading Fair. Billed as the "showcase of Berks County agriculture," the traditional Reading Fair is sponsored by the Agricultural and Horticultural Association.

The Reading Fair features Berks County agriculture and each year honors an outstanding farm family, an outstanding 4-H boy and girl, and an outstanding FFA boy and girl throughout the week of festivities. At the banquet, the public got to meet the 1984 honorees as they were congratulated by state and local officials, as well as the previous 28 outstanding Berks County farm families.

"People are what makes the Reading Fair great," announced Dave Souders, vice president of the Agricultural and Horticultural Association of Berks County. Also stating that for this year's fair there will be a ribbon cutting in the sky by the army parachute team, Souders mentioned several of the coming highlights and concluded, "it will be a great family time out, and it's all free."

The speaker for the evening, State Sen. Michael O'Pake, echoed the sentiments of Souders and said, "I still think you can't top Berks." O'Pake stated that most often farming, community life and spirit go together.

"I recognize how important agriculture is to the economics of a community," he continued. "It is important that we preserve the family farm for the traditional morals that is represents. One of the things that will ensure that America stays great is to make sure that the American family stays good."

O'Pake stressed that this means that a respect for God, the law, morals, honesty, and the fellow man must be taught in the home.

"These are the values nourished by the family farm," he said.

In a society fostering the "breakdown of traditional values," O'Pake concluded, the family farm is much needed and valued. He ended his presentation with congratulations to the 1984 Outstanding Farm Family of Berks County, the Wilson Balthaser family, R1 Bernville.

Wilson Balthaser and his wife, LaVerne, daughter, Tammy, age 14; and sons, Randy, age 11, and Jason, age 9, farm over 600 acres and milk 83 cows on a family farm in its fourth generation. Members of the Shartlesville Grange, the family's list of accomplishments, awards, and community activities earned them this honor of "Outstanding Farm Family".

They were congratulated by Albert Boscov, president of the association as well as aplauded by the previous farm family winners.

"If it weren't for our parents that raised us both on farms, I don't think we'd be here," LaVerne Balthaser stated when she and her husband accepted the award.

The family received a plaque and a check for $600.00. They will be the grand marshals of the parade on Monday, at 6 p.m. and will be honored throughout the week at the fair.

Outstanding FFA'ers

Outstanding FFA honorees at Reading Fair are Mary McMullen, Elverson; and Jim Heffner, Fleetwood.

Outstanding 4-H'ers

Outstanding 4-H youth of Reading Fair are Kirk Fisher, Oley; and Patty Dreisbach, Hamburg.

Also honored were outstanding youth in 4-H and FFA who were awarded plaques and savings bonds for their achievements in their agricultural projects.

The outstanding 4-H girl of Berks County is a well known individual for her dairy knowledge and awards. Patricia Dreisbach, R3 Hamburg, was selected on her merit in the National 4-H Awards Program in the dairy category. Her major projects include dairy, wildlife, vegetable gardening, and veterinary science. She is a member of the Northern Berks 4-H Dairy Club and the Tilden Community 4-H Club.

Patty is the 18-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Dreisbach. She was the 1983 winner of the Junior Dairyman's contest held in Timonium, Md., and a member of the Berks County Dairy Judging team when it won statewide honors. She serves on many committees and in many offices and is currently the national queen for the Jersey breed.

Kirk Fisher, R1 Oley, was selected as the outstanding 4-H boy. A Charolais breeder, Kirk is also very active locally and statewide in 4-H. He is the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Fisher.

Jim Heffner, Fleetwood, and Mary McMullen, Elverson, were the FFA recipients of the outstanding FFA awards. Presented to them by Harvey Smith, regional director, they were applauded for their work in agriculture by their advisors.

Albert Boscov concluded the evening by again congratulating the "outstanding farm community," and it's "outstanding members."

Family values bring honors to this Berks dairy clan

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

BERNVILLE — They were honored for fostering high moral values at a time when society needs to witness outstanding examples. They were praised for teaching their children respect for God, country, and fellow man, and for exerting a positive influence in their grange, and community.

Selected as the 1984 Outstanding Farm Family of Berks County, Wilson and LaVerne Balthaser, R1 Bernville, and their children, Tammy, 14; Randy, 11; and Jason, 9, just do what comes naturally.

This fourth generation farm family continues a family tradition on their Northkill Creek Farm owned by Wilson and his father, Mark. As LaVerne Balthaser stated when they accepted the award at the Reading Fair awards banquet last week, "their support helped get us as far as we are." Both Wilson and his wife credit their parents, both farm families, for making available the resources and teaching them the values for which they are honored this year.

"When there is corn standing there like that, you really enjoy it more," Wilson Balthaser states, motioning towards his healthy corn crop when he is asked how he likes farming in a depressed time.

"You got to really like it. I'm going to stay where I'm at because of the cost of expansion."

The Balthasers currently milk 83 cows and farm over 650 acres.

With their favorites

They milk in a stanchion barn equipped with a pipeline and feed inside and also at an outside bunk during the summer.

Even though they employ one full-time man and one part-time man, the Balthasers are kept busy with their many community activities, and with the 4-H projects of their children.

The three children raise and show cows, chickens, pigs, and turkeys in 4-H. "That's the best thing we're in," Tammy states about 4-H. She enjoys showing her prize winning Brown Swiss animals, while her brother, Randy, prefers his pigs. The youngest, Jason, not sure about what he likes says that he wants sheep.

The three siblings are involved in the daily chores and take care of most of the feeding of the younger stock and the unloading of hay. "They're involved here, but you got to let them get involved in activities too. They're going to hate the farm if it's all work and no play," Balthaser explains.

Wilson Balthaser took over his father's farm in 1977. That was also the year they installed the pipeline system. He has also changed his feeding program for his herd of Holsteins to maintain his rolling herd average of 15,000 pounds milk with a 3.8% test as cheaply and efficiently as possible.

"I think I can feed cows cheaper with high moisture corn and haylage," Balthaser explains. He turned to haylage instead of corn silage and now utilizes about two thirds haylage and one third corn silage in his feeding program. No baled hay is fed in the summer and the cows have unlimited access to a bunk feeder filled with haylage in the meadow. They are fed grain twice a day and maintain a butterfat test of 3.5% in the summer, going up to 4.0% in the winter.

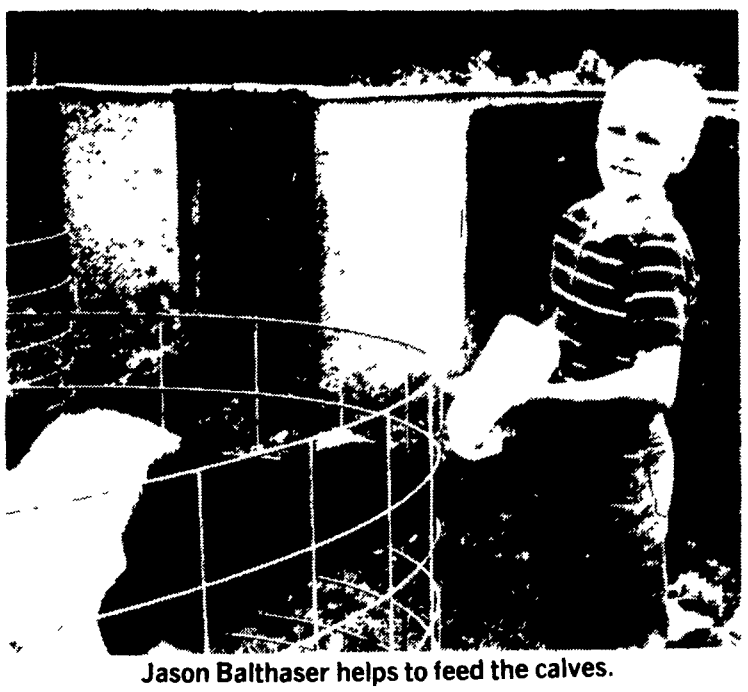
"I cut my haylage longer than most," Balthaser explains. He also atributes much of his success on this feeding program to the free choice haylage he offers the cows throughout the day in the meadow during the summer.

He also adds that the improved ventilation in his barn also helps keep production up during the summer. With six fans currently in use, Balthaser plans on several more for next year's hot season.

Everything is chisel plowed on the Balthaser farm and many crops are also no-tilled. Balthaser shakes his head when he talks of all the hills on the farm and adds that two of the farms are completely contoured and the rest of his acreage is strip farmed. Corn and hay are the major crops and Balthaser chisel plowed for alfalfa, too. "I didn't see any difference," he states.



Jason Balthaser helps to feed the calves.

Four years ago the Balthaser family also started raising their calves in hutches. "There's not a calf in the dairy barn anymore," Balthaser says and adds that there is no longer any sickness problems either. "As soon as they are dry, out they go," he continues. "They seem much perkier," LaVerne adds.

Balthaser also switches teat dips every year as part of his herd management changes. Because there may be a buildup of immunity to bacteria with a constant use of one kind of dip, he changes yearly. Many are tried with the exception of any iodine based products. "I didn't think I had as good control with an iodine base," he reasons. Corn stalks are used in the winter for bedding which also helps in his mastitis prevention program and all cows are routinely dry treated.

They belong to a variety of farm organizations and their children belong to several 4-H clubs. LaVerne enjoys making quilted pillows and quilts when she is not needed outside and also does canning for the family.

The Balthasers are also sharing their home this year with a foreign exchange student from West Germany. Frauke Jens arrived at Northkill Creek Farm on August 23 and will be staying for ten months. LaVerne states that her first observation when she met their family was that they were "rich because they drove a big car." But then Frauke stated that her family owns a Mercedes. The family enjoys the exchange of cultures and is planning several trips and outings for Frauke to enjoy. She said that she loved their sweet corn and added that she had never had it before.

You can meet the 1984 Outstanding Berks County Farm Family at the Reading Fair. They wil be leading the opening parade and officiating at the ribbon cutting ceremonies. If you can't make it there, drive by their well kept homestead, halfway between Shartlesville and Bernville.

Pa. issues local dairy promotion guidelines

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell has announced guidelines for funding of local dairy promotion groups through the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

The State Dairy Promotion Advisory Board, under the chairmanship of Hallowell, has budgeted funds to subsidize local promotion efforts at its August meeting.

October 15 is the deadline for receiving applications. "Our intent is to encourage local groups to sponsor dairy promotions. Examples of these could range from cheese tastings at shopping malls and supermarkets to radio trivia contests featuring dairy product questions and prizes," Hallowell said.

These projects are being funded under the program's first six-month budget and must be conducted between Nov. 1, 1984, and April 1, 1985. Local projects with matching funds will receive first consideration by the Board.

Groups are not required to use an application form to petition the Advisory Board for funds. However, any funding requests must include the following information: a description of the project; objective, audience and timetable; number of people reached by the project; how the project will influence dairy product consumption; how the project will be evaluated; itemized cost estimates such as materials, labor, travel; amount of matching funds available from the local group; how farmers will know that the project was partially funded by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program; and what materials will be used in the project.

Local groups must also formally report the results of the project.

The State Department of Agriculture is developing a list of promotion suggestions that will be available to local groups.

For additional information or application forms, contact the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Markets, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408; phone 717-787-4210.

Peach board is named

HARRISBURG — State Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell has announced the appointment of eight peach and nectarine producers to the nine-member Pennsylvania Peach and Nectarine Research Program Advisory Board.

The producers were selected from nominations made by peach and nectarine growers who are participating in the Research Program. Hallowell said the nominations were excellent and reflect the peach and nectarine industry's dedication to production and marketing research.

The grower-requested referendum, which passed in May, is expected to raise an estimated $25,000 annually. Advisory board members represent the three major production areas - eastern, central and western Pennsylvania.

Board members are charged with advising and assisting Hallowell in administration of the program. Each member serves a three-year term beginning July 1 and ending June 30. For the initial appointment, the nine advisory board members will serve staggered terms.

The eight advisory board members follow:

Phillip D. Baughter of Aspers, Adams County, three-year term; Carl W. Brenner of York, York County, three-year term; Stewart R. Constable of West Chester, Chester County, two-year term; Henry L. Frecon of Boyertown, Berks County, three-year term; Terry Gillan of St. Thomas, Franklin County, two-year term; Glen W. Krum of Catawissa, Columbia County, one-year term; John F. Peters of Gardners, Adams County, two-year term; and Melvin Worley of York Springs, Adams County, one-year term.

Under the new state program, all peach and nectarine producers who have 500 or more peach and/or nectarine trees must pay $3.00 per acre by Oct. 1 or each fiscal year. Producers are responsible for paying the proper assessment upon his peach and/or nectarine acreage. The money is earmarked solely for production and marketing research, Hallowell said.

The Peach and Nectarine Research Program is operated under the auspices of the Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act of 1968, as amended.

Scheps decision lauded

CAMP HILL — Keith W. Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA), called news of the court-ordered bankruptcy liquidation of Scheps Cheese in northeastern Pennsylvania, a "positive development" for northern tier dairymen.

Eckel, a Lackawanna County vegetable grower and dairyman, said, "The way is now cleared for sale and reopening of the cheese plant under new, responsible ownership."

PFA is a voluntary, general farm organization representing over 22,800 farm families throughout Pennsylvania, including about 12,000 dairymen.

The New Jersey-based operators of the Wyoming County cheese plant filed for Chaper II bankruptcy reorganization in July, 1983, owing about $6 million to over 300 dairymen in Pennsylvania and New York and another $14 million to lenders. A federal bankruptcy court in Newark, N.J., ended Scheps' reorganization attempts earlier this week and order the operation liquidated.

Ag College honored

PORTLAND, Ore. — The Pennsylvania State University College of Agriculture has received the R.J. Reynolds Honor Award for Excellence in Teaching and Technology, according to state Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell.

The national award, cosponsored by Reynolds and the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA), "recognizes the College of Agriculture for its outstanding efforts in the area of turfgrass management and contribution to Pennsylvania agriculture, our number one industry," said Hallowell, who is president-elect of NASDA. Official presentation ceremonies were conducted Monday at the 66th annual meeting of NASDA in Portland, Ore.

Joe Deutsch, professor of Turfgrass Science at Penn State, accepted the award from Robert W. VanCamp, president and chief executive officer of R.J. Reynolds Development Corporation, who saluted the University's "excellent turfgrass management program and its emphasis on both development of skills and practical experience."

The Pennsylvania State University College of Agriculture received a $7,000 award and plaque to mark its efforts. Penn State was selected the Northeast Regional NASDA Honor award recipient in June, qualifying it for similar honors.

Planning is a principle at Hoover Farms

BY WENDY WEHR

ANNVILLE—Efficiency, planning, and cooperation are watchwords for Abram Hoover and his sons. The combined dairy and beef operation on their farm in Lebanon County is the enterprise of Dale, Dean, and Reed Hoover, who have a three-man partnership, as well as their father Abram who contributes his advice and help at this stage.

Planning and cooperation are particularly evident in the development of this partnership arrangement. To understand the success of the Hoover family, one must probably understand the planning that led up to the current partnership of the Hoover brothers, Dale, Dean, and Reed.

The Hoover family has gone through a progression of partnership and work arrangements in the past 10 years, and all those changes have truly meant progress for the family.

Abram and Jean Hoover purchased their Lebanon County farm in 1963 As their children grew up, said Abram, they established an unwritten rule in their family. He explained that before joining a family partnership, any of their children who were interested in farming first had to work in the operation from three to five years.

"You cannot put compatibility down as an agreement on paper," remarked Abram Hoover, "that's something that has to proven by experience."

So before Dale, the oldest brother, became a partner he worked for his dad for three years, and meanwhile Abram researched partnerships. Then, in 1978, a two-way partnership was established between Abram and Dale.

After five more years, when Dean and Reed worked on the farm and established their interest in the family operation, the second and current partnership was established. As of January 1, 1983, Dale, Dean, and Reed set up a three-way partnership.

Their father stepped out of the official agreement, although he is still active in the farm operation, particularly with the steers, and is there when needed by his three sons.

The three brothers rent the land from their father and the machinery from the first partnership of their father and eldest brother. They farm 375 acres, with 275 of that put out in corn.

Although the arrangement may sound slightly confusing, it's based on a well-thought-out plan that seems to be working for the Hoovers. Each brother has his particular responsibilities, yet they all make major decisions together.

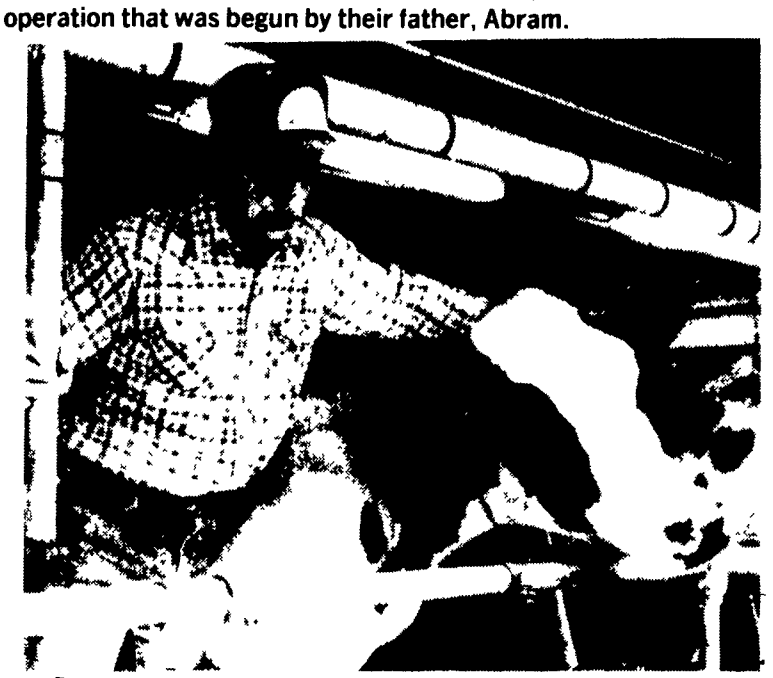
Youngest brother Reed is the herdsman, having chief responsibility for the day-to-day management of the 130 milking head. Dean manages the steer operation and also handles the feeding program for the cows. Dale is in charge of crops and machinery

When asked how they decided who would do what, Dean remarked that each brother seemed to have a special interest or talent that just fitted into the needs of the operation. While earning his bachelor's degree in ag economics at Penn State, Dean did some studies on marketing beef, which was one reason he got into the steer operation.

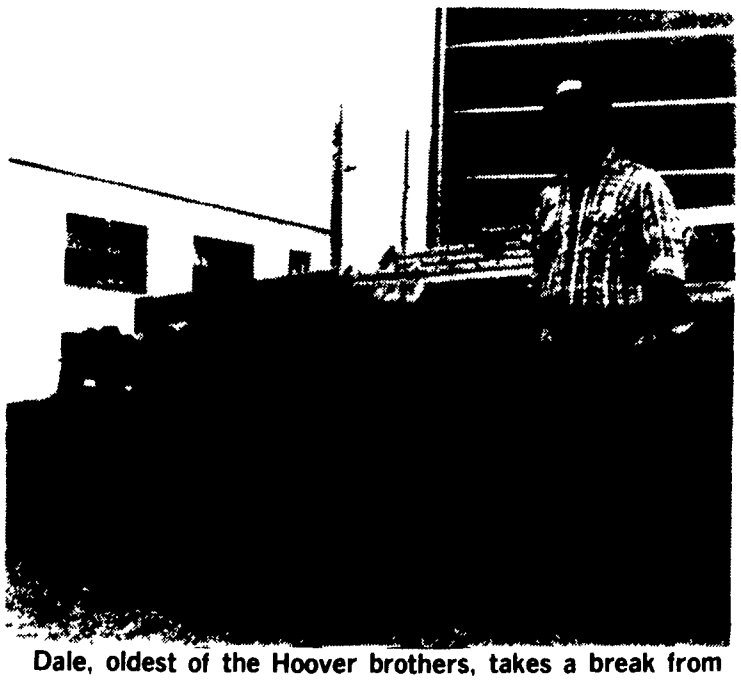
Both Dale and his father emphasized, however, that they are thankful that the Lord has been so good to the family and given them the opportunity to be stewards of the land and its fruits.

Reed has the patience and interest needed to manage the 130-head dairy herd. His responsibilities include day-to-day record-keeping, which he describes as a bit confusing right now because they have recently combined two herds into one at their main farm.

Left to right are Dean, Abram, Reed, and Dale Hoover. Dean, Reed, and Dale are partners in a dairy and beef operation that was begun by their father, Abram.



Reed Hoover tries to convince Brook-Corner Glendell Venture to cooperate for the picture-taking session. Venture is the top cow in the Hoover herd.



Dale, oldest of the Hoover brothers, takes a break from working on the haybine. He has primary responsibility for the crops and machinery.

The Hoovers had had a second herd of cows on a rented farm, and when that farm was sold last winter they had a choice of selling that herd or adding it to their other herd. Because the dairy cow market was so poor, they decided to combine the two herds as of March 1.

With a 39-stanchion stall barn this meant changing cows three times during milking. So, they added a 24-stall addition to their barn this summer. Reed and his brothers have only been milking in it for about six weeks and are pleased so far with the change.

Their herd average stands at 18,000 lbs. milk and 690 lbs. fat with a 3.7 test The original herd at the main farm is all registered Holsteins and the second herd is about ¼ grade animals. Reed says that they will eventually move to an all-registered combined herd, but some of the grade cows are still good producers.

There are three excellent cows in the Hoovers' Brook-Corner herd. Reed pointed out their top cow, Brook-Corner Glendell Venture, who in her four lactations to date has averaged 22,000 lbs. of milk.

They have recently flushed Venture and five pregnancies have resulted. They have contracts on two bull calves. Reed remarked that because the process is so expensive, it is really necessary to get those contracts.

Although they are striving to increase the herd average to 20,000 lbs., Reed says they're more concerned with improving type. "Feet and legs are probably our weakest point," says Reed, "although it's difficult to choose bulls for that characteristic." Reed also referred to the need to "go along with the numbers game" when it comes to choosing popular bulls if they want to merchandise.

They're using a lot of Chairman, Mars-Tony, Electra, Simon, and Columbus in breeding, but Reed noted that a lot of other bulls are used too, depending on the individual cow. Reed does some of the breeding himself, and a technician does the rest.

A few years ago they began a monthly herd check for fertility. Checking all the cows before breeding has improved their rate of conception.

The Hoovers raise nearly all of their own replacements, although Reed mentioned that they will buy a heifer occasionally since it's a chance to increase the quality of the herd a little quicker.

The Hoovers have sold heifers the past two years, including 10 this year that were exported to Venezuela and Saudi Arabia.

Almost all of their heifers freshen out at two years or two years and one month. Reed remarked that they try not to shortchange the heifers on the feeding program so that they are good size when they are ready to calve.

The cows are fed a total mixed ration of haylage, high-moisture shelled corn, and corn silage, using a 13 percent concentrate. This ration is balanced for 55 lbs. production, and then the high

Prices dip at Pa. State Jersey Sale

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

LANCASTER — It was a good day for buyers but a poor sale for consignors as the 37 head of registered Jersey cows and heifers at the annual Pennsylvania State Jersey Sale sold for an average of $891.67. Last Saturday's sale featured top pedigrees from across the state whose prices averaged barely more than half of what they did at this sale last year.

The crowd at the Guernsey Sales Pavilion, Lancaster, witnessed several animals surpass the $1500.00 mark with spirited bidding.

Topping the sale was the bull consignment from Dr. Robert and Helen Dreisbach, R3 Hamburg. Wilderness Dandy - ET sold for $3600.00 to Noba, Inc., Tiffin, Ohio, and a syndicate of shareholders. One-half of these proceeds will be used for the 1985 Annual Meeting of the American Jersey Cattle Club to be held in Lancaster next June. Shares were sold prior to the start of the bidding for $100.00 each to 30 shareholders who agreed to join in the syndicate to prove this young bull.

Born in May of this year, Wilderness Dandy-ET, is a son of A-Nine Top Brass, one of the highest PTI bulls of the breed. His dam is a "very good - 88" Milknhoney General daughter with records over 20,000 pounds of milk, a 5.2% test, over 1000 pounds fat and over 750 pounds of protein.

The dam is one of the elite cows of the breed and has a son in sampling at Carnation Genetics as well as an older son at Noba. Sire Power was the contending bidder on this son.

A New York cow shared the honors of high selling with a Western Pennsylvania cow as the two sold for $2000.00 each.

Hi-Land Saint Fare, a three-year-old Favorite Saint daughter brought $2000.00 on the bid from Kenneth Swartz, R1, Shippensburg. Consigned by Ray Chamberlain, Wyoming, N.Y., Fare featured a butterfat test of 5.4% as a two-year-old and a maternal line of fat tests from 4.8% to 5.9%.

The consignment of Don and Angie Koontz, Fredonia, also topped the sale on the bid of John Bishop VI, Columbus, N.J. Vantage Magic Serena sold fresh on her four-year-old lactation. She is a "very good" - 86, and a daughter of one of the highest bulls of the breed, Quicksilvers Magic of Ogston. Her maternal line features milk records over 15,000 pounds and tests of 4.8%.

Bishop is a noted Jersey breeder from New Jersey and the breeder of the sire of this cow.

An out of state consignment also topped the Pot of Gold Sale as junior bidders sought to take home their choice. Kalmar Sample Delphinium, an October calf, brought $825.00 one the bid from Michael Clark, Enon Valley. She was consigned by William and Margaretta Eliason of Kalmar Farm, Harrington, Del. The fancy calf boasted a "Samson" dam testing 6.1% and a granddam with tests to 5.5%.

Carol Dreisbach, R3, Hamburg, the current Pennsylvania Jersey Queen purchased the second high selling heifer for $800.00. Smokey Hill Saint Rosebud was consigned by Roy Watson, Troy. She is a daughter of Favorite Saint out of an Observer Chocolate Soldier daughter.

The winner of the Pot of Gold contest this year was Kathy Rauhauser, Dover, who purchased Normandell Fascinator Fran in the 1981 sale. The heifer milked 2-02 297 9,881M 496F with an M.E. of 13,750 FCM to win the contest. Kathy received a check for $600.00.

Tied for high selling cow at State Jersey Sale is consignment of Ray and Arlene Chamberlain, Wyoming, N.Y., which sold to Kenneth and Virginia Swartz, R1 Shippensburg, for $2,000. Brian Harris is at halter.

Karla Martin, Chambersburg, was the second place winner with W.F. Vermonter Rush, consigned by Waverly Farm, Va. She received a check for $450.00 for her heifer's M.E. of 12,765.

The production contest winner from the 1983 sale was Bryncoed Galahad Betty Lou, purchased by Craig and Carmen Rhein, Pine Grove. With her record of: 3-01 305 18,231M and 758F, she recorded an M.E. at 21,826 of fat corrected milk to win the contest.

The sale was chaired by Craig Rhein and auctioneered by Larry Benson, New Lebanon, New York.

milk and 916 lbs. of fat with a 4.4 test. She has peaked at over 100 lbs. a day in her second lactation. She is classified VG-88.

But this is probably the last Solanco title for Tiffany. She will be sold at the All-American Holstein Sale in Harrisburg next week.

Mark Welk's reserve winner, 4-year-old Cherry, has now earned that title three years in a row at Solanco. She's classified VG-87 and is also a top producer in the Welk's herd.

Mark also led Cherry to the grand championship in the Holstein junior division competition this year.

The Welk's did quite well throughout the day, taking first place ribbons in a number of the group classes as well. Paul's younger son Matt was even named top exhibitor in the age 12 and under category of the fitting and showing competition.

The only grand championship title that didn't go to the Welk's during the Holstein show was the reserve grand championship in the junior division. Karen Kauffman, also of Peach Bottom, earned that honor with Sukavin Persuader Holly. Kauffman will be showing Holly in the Pa. Junior Dairy Show in Harrisburg next week and possibly in the All-American show as well.

This year's Solanco dairy exhibition was the largest ever with over 170 entries. The increased entries were primarily in the color breeds, shown on Wednesday. Competition was particularly stiff in the Jersey and Ayrshire shows.

Rob and Sharon Nolan swept the Ayrshire competition at Solanco on Wednesday. Here are their grand and reserve grand champions, Cadrin and Candice.

Bob Ulrich of Quarryville captured the grand championship in the Jersey show with Valley-U Mercury Lynn. Shown by Bob's son Tim, four-year-old Lynn has never been exhibited before.

Classified VG-88, Lynn's a good producer for the Ulrich's. She has a 14,300 pounds milk record and 730 pounds fat.

The reserve grand champion in the Jersey competition, Clearview Criterions Holly, was shown by Pat Jenkins from Toughkenamon, Chester County. Holly, the first animal that Pat ever bred herself, is a 10-year-old who has done well for Pat over the years. She placed first in the aged dry cow class at Farm Show last year.

The junior division Jersey winners were Elizabeth Jenkins and Jerry Shertzer. Elizabeth showed Dusty Star of Clearview to the grand championship. Pine Mountain Chocolate Ashley won the reserve title for Shertzer of Lancaster. He'll be showing Ashley at the Pa. Junior Dairy Show on Monday.

The open division Ayrshire titles were swept by Rob and Sharon Nolan of Parksburg. Dam and daughter, Cadrin and Candice, captured the grand and reserve grand trophies for the Nolans.

Donald Brown, judge for the Wednesday show and Guernsey breeder from Oxford, described Cadrin as "a big strong cow with a lot of dairy character." An aged dry cow, Cadrin is classified 92.

Brown noted that two-year-old Candice, Cadrin's daughter,

Waltz, Landis take beef honors

BY JACK HUBLEY

QUARRYVILLE — It was "ladies first" on Thursday night as Lancaster County's 4-H Beef Heifer Roundup kicked off the beef cattle competition at the Solanco Fair.

And this year's queen of the court was Skarship Kyma 1033, a Jan. '83 daughter of Pine Drive Big Sky owned by Jan Waltz of Manheim.

The son of Art and Nancy Waltz finally led his Canadian-bred heifer to the top after a number of respectable finishes in competitions earlier this year. Kyma was named second in her class at the State Angus Breeders Show and placed third in her class among stiff competition at this year's National Junior Angus Show in Columbus, Ohio.

Cinching the reserve spot was another Pine Drive Big Sky daughter, RF Lady Big Sky, owned by Quarryville's Fritz Frey. Frey's Mar. '83 heifer was a top contender in Ohio, placing second in her class in the owned-heifer division.

Judging this year's event was Lee Wagner of Bethlehem, who turned his attention to placing a competitive field of steers once the heifer show had concluded.

The steer competition was separated into FFA and 4-H shows with Quarryville's Jimmy Landis taking top honors in the 4-H show, then going on to be named grand champion over both shows.

Weighing 1,130 pounds, Landis' entry was a Viking son purchased from Sam Wiley of Nottingham.

The son of Jim and Linda Landis, Jimmy's big win came during his second year of 4-H competition, after taking reserve champion honors during his first year in 1983 with another Wiley-bred calf.

It was a big day for this 10-year-old 4-H'er, who was named reserve champion junior fitter in the earlier swine competition

Showing the reserve grand champion was Bryan Whitman, whose 1,185-pound Power Play-sired steer ran a close race with the grand champion, taking QUARRYVILLE — Jeff Byers managed to shoot holes in the old you get what you pay for" theory this year by taking grand champion market hog honors with a pig that he took home for free.

The winning Duroc-cross started its "show" career earlier this spring when a group of Solanco high school's graduating seniors crayoned "Class of '84" on its side and released the pig in the school's enclosed courtyard as a parting joke.

The prank porker was discovered by custodians who turned it over to the school's vo-ag department, that in turn offered it to anyone of the school's agriculture students who would step forward.

"And I was the only one who wanted it," chuckles Byers, who managed to get the last laugh. Jeff took his new FFA project home to Holtwood where his father, John

All - American has full schedule of events

HARRISBURG — With curry combs, hoof polish and dairy whites in tow, 397 participants in the 21st Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show will converge on Harrisburg's Farm Show Complex tomorrow to prepare for the Show's Monday opening.

One of the top three national dairy circuit events, the All-American is slated through Friday. The 1,394 entries in six breed shows are competing for $78,000 in premiums.

It is fitting that a dairy show of this calibar be held in Pennsylvania. Dairy is the state's leading agricultural industry, and each year 15,000 dairy farmers produce more than four billion quarts of milk valued at $1.3 billion. As a result, Pennsylvania ranks fifth nationally in milk production, according to State Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell.

Opening the Show Monday at 8 a.m., the Invitational Youth Judging Contest fields 46 4-H, FFA and Intercollegiate judging teams from across the country. It is followed by 9 a.m. by the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show which has approximately 650 entries from across the state. The All-American Recognition Banquet is that evening at 7 p.m. at the Penn Harris Motor Inn, Camp Hill.

The first of three breed sales — the Invitational Brown Swiss Sale — boasts 24 entries and is also scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday.

Tuesday's activities are highlighted by the first of three national shows — the Eastern National Brown Swiss Show — at 9 a.m. with 202 entries. The Pennsylvania All-American Milking Shorthorn Show, with 91 entries, also begins at 9 a.m.

The first Ayrshire sale since 1975 is set for 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. The Pennsylvania Elite Ayrshire Sale has 20 entries.

The All-American is more than breed shows, as Monday's judging event illustrates. Tuesday, 400 state youth participate in the Pennsylvania 4-H and FFA Dairy Judging Forum at 10 a.m.

An annual highlight of the All-American is the crowning of the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess. Tuesday's 6:30 p.m. banquet at the Marriott will climax in the coronation of the 28th state dairy princess. The 39 contestants were selected at the local level and participated in a 3-day training session prior to the contest. Contestants are selected based upon several criteria including poise, speaking ability and educational skits.

The second of the three national shows gets underway Wednesday. The National Guernsey Show, with 212 entries, begins at 9 a.m., as does the Pennsylania All-American Ayrshire Show with 148 entries.

The final national show is set for Thursday at 9 a.m. — the Eastern National Holstein Show with 567 entries. The All-American Holstein Sale, with 45 entries, is scheduled Thursday at 7 p.m. The Pennsylvania All-American Jersey Show has 174 entries and begins at 9 a.m.

The final segment of the Holstein Show, milking cows, begins at 8 a.m. Friday.

There is no admission charge for Dairy Show visitors. The Farm Show Complex is open to the public from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. the week of the Show.

The Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industries Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Farm Products Show Commission.

Elmtree 'cleans house' for poultrymen

BY JACK HUBLEY

ELIZABETHTOWN — Bacteria, viruses and other assorted microscopic beasties be advised: if Galen Young and Bernell Swords ever come gunning for you, your fate is sealed. When this crack pair of house cleaners throw the switch on their formaldegen generators, there won't be a crack or crevass small enough to crawl into.

It's been that way here in Lancaster County since 1982, when a company approached Young and Swords about designing an effective fumigation unit. Young the electrical technician, and Swords the tool and die maker set to work hammering out a unit that they figured would get the job done.

Meanwhile, the company changed ownership and the project was scrubbed, leaving the two apparently trapped beneath a very hefty investment. Undaunted, the pair took the project by the horns and began doing their own fumigating as Elmtree Poultry Service in October, 1982.

Though there's nothing new about fumigation, Young points out that the traditional methods leave a lot to be desired from the standpoints of effectiveness and safety. One popular method involved the heating of formaldehyde powder in electric frying pans. Young maintains that the amount of chemical used in the pans is often incorrect, and the pans themselves lack the necessary heat to create adequate concentrations of gas.

Another technique involves dumping liquid formaldehyde into cans of potassium permanganate. The resulting explosion of lethal gas may be exciting, but it's a bit too dangerous for many people's tastes. Swords also says that the short-lived blast of gas fails to provide a complete coating on all interior surfaces.

Combining some input from Penn State with their own ingenuity, the two germ fighters feel that their fumigation techniques have improved upon older methods in a number of ways.

First, the team uses paraformaldehyde flakes which, according to Young, burn more efficiently and give off smaller gas particles which result in better coverage than formaldehyde. Specially designed hoods placed over the one-burner formaldegen generators regulate the speed of gas administration, and water pans located under the burners not only provide an added safety factor, but also add the necessary humidity for chemical adhesion to all surfaces.

Elmtree also employs three circuit breakers between the burners and main power source. This insures that the remaining burners will still be operating if one unit should fail.

Aside from the system's advantages over other fumigation methods, Young and Swords feel that fumigation is an obvious improvement over conventional cleaning and disinfecting procedures.

"First of all, when you're washing down, where does your water come from?" says Galen Young, noting that the common practice of using stream water may only be compounding the farmer's contamination problems. "And if your disinfectant first has to kill bacteria in the water, how much disinfecting power will it have left for the house?"

But the biggest problem with water-based disinfectants is that they kill only on contact, says Young. On the other hand, gas will penetrate not only all surfaces within the poultry house, but also the attic when ceiling trapdoors are opened during fumigation.

Elmtree also encourages farmers to apply clean shavings to their house floors prior to fumigation. Fumigating the shavings eliminates yet another possible source of infection and leaves behind no harmful paraformaldehyde residues, says Young.

One Lancaster County farmer who agrees with Galen Young's assessment is Paul Brubaker, a Manheim area poultryman whose four houses produce more than 800,000 broilers a year.

"I don't want to sound like a salesman for these fellows, but I do think they have a good product," Brubaker says, noting that records for two of his flocks indicate a 1.29 percent decrease in mortality after switching from conventional cleaning and disinfecting to drycleaning and fumigation.

Brubaker also stated that some savings have also been realized at the slaughter plant where his condemnation rate (birds discarded at slaughter because of disease) has dropped slightly more than one-tenth of a percent since going to fumigation.

The poultryman also points out, though, that lower mortality and condemnation rates can also be attributed to tighter security throughout the poultry industry in the wake of the avian influenza epidemic.

"A few years ago we might have gone a whole year without washing down and disinfecting," he recalls, " but now things are cleaner the whole way down the line to the breeder flocks and hatcheries."

Galen Young turns to the condemnation certificates of another Manheim broiler producer for more statistics. One of the grower's 44,000-bird flocks was found to have 1,700 birds with leukosis after being raised in a house cleaned by the washing and disinfecting technique. After going to fumigation, the numbers of birds suffering from leukosis dropped to 500 in the next flock and 10 cases in the following flock.

1. Galen Young and Bernell Swords of Elmtree Poultry Service begin setting up their equipment of fumigate Paul Brubaker's broiler house. At left, Galen sets a formaldegen generator over a pan of water. Bernell then adds paraformaldehyde flakes to the unit. Each unit can fumigate an area 100 feet in diameter, with the paraformaldehyde used at a rate of one pound per 5,000 cubic feet.

2. Bernell places a hood over the generator. Hood design determines the speed of administration, says Galen, who's shown at right wiring a series of four generators to the house's breaker box.

3. Poultryman Paul Brubaker opens the door to the attic, insuring that fumigant reaches every portion of the house. With setup chores completed and everyone safely outside the house, Paul looks on as Galen activates the generator burners with a single switch.

4. With fumigation underway, Paul, Galen and Bernell enjoy a tailgate conference. Fumigation will continue for four hours before the units are turned off. Elmtree also has equipment capable of fumigating feed bins and silos.

One other big advantage of fumigation, according to Elmtree, is its cost, which Young calculates at one cent per every four cubic feet. Using one of Paul Brubaker's 44' by 500' houses as an example, Young says the cost of washing and disinfecting would be about $600 to $700, compared to the $250 to $300 range for fumigation. To prepare his houses, Brubaker spends about two hours in each one, drycleaning the interior with a blower and broom.

Would fumigation have been the answer to the avian flu problem? Young maintains that the technique could have done much to lessen the virus' impact had it been employed across the board, although he does admit that more attention to cleanliness throughout the industry would have helped to avert a disaster.

And the partners emphasize that their system has many other applications, as well. Elmtree fumigated its first swine operation last fall, and the firm has recently been contacted by an Oxford area mushroom grower plagued by a microscopic worm that's been damaging his crop. Elmtree will be conducting experiments with a private laboratory to see if fumigation may provide the answer.

Other develops to come include a DC-powered fumigation unit to be installed on trucks used for hauling feed and chickens.

Within the next two years the partners hope to be manufacturing and leasing their systems nationwide. And judging from a track record that shows the Elizabethtown-based company expanding into Virginia, Delaware and Maryland within that same time span, this goal may well be within reach.

So for this pair of enterprising housecleaners from Lancaster County, the future will probably continue to be "a gas".

South African visitors take time out from their tour of Kenneth Myers' dairy farm to enjoy a frosty milk shake. African visitors tour Lancaster Co. dairy Farm

ELIZABETHTOWN — A group of 20 farmers and farm equipment salesmen from South Africa found that farms in Lancaster County are quite similar to those at home during a visit to Kenneth Myers' dairy farm in Elizabethtown on Wednesday.

Vwillee Mirx, one of the South African farmers on the tour, said that farms here are "really similar" to those at home, but are "more beautiful."

The farm tour, hosted by the Pennsylvania State Grange, included a walk through the barn, where Myers demonstrated his automatic feeding system, and a visit to the calf pens. Later in the tour the group was treated to cold milkshakes prepared by Myers and his family.

The farm visit was just part of a larger tour sponsored by Malcomess Limited, a New Holland equipment distributor based in South Africa. The firm arranged the tour for some of it's outstanding salesmen and for several farmers as part of a new product promotion, Malcomess marketing director Bill Pascoe said.

A reservation for the trip was offered at each of a number of promotional meetings as an incentive to get farmers and salesmen to attend.

The three-week tour, which began in Europe, included stops in Italy and Switzerland. On Thursday, the group toured Sperry New Holland's factory and then traveled to Washington, D.C. and the Beltsville Ag Center.

Next week the visitors will travel through portions of the Midwest where they will tour a feedlot and a soy bean farm.

Dever also summarized the changes in production and milk prices within the cooperative and throughout the dairy industry as a whole.

Also reporting to the group was Roy H. Book, director. Gordon and Carol Hoover described their involvement in Inter-State's Young Cooperative program.

Several co-op members received awards during the evening's program. The Harold Book family received their 50-year membership award, the first-ever in the co-op's history. Jacob and Edith Dienner received a 25-year membership award.

Naaman and Dorothy Stoltzfus and Robert and Thelma Bowman were presented with cost-of-production awards for making their records available to the Inter-State officers for legislative purposes.

New officers and delegates were elected for each of the three locals during the annual meeting.

Also attending the meeting was Lancaster County Extension Director Jay Irwin. Jere K. Skiles, president of the New Holland-Leola Local, served as master-of-ceremonies.

York 4-H'ers hold sheep, swine roundups

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

THOMASVILLE — Two York County 4-H members hauled home champion rosettes and impressive-sized checks to fatten their bank accounts, as the sheep and swine clubs held a special joint roundup and sale. Thomasville Livestock hosted the new event, with the show held Monday evening, followed by the Tuesday evening auction of the winners.

Terry Flory's grand champion was the first lot to come under the evening's spirited bidding to auctioneer Harry Bachman. The long-time 4-H sheep exhibitor from Red Lion saw the price climb to $2.10/pound before the gavel cracked, awarding the champion of the lamb roundup to York area builder Bob Kinsley of York.

Kinsley's representative continued nodding as Red Lion 4-H'er Melissa Trostle posed her 105-pound reserve grand champion, and won that entry as well with a $1.60/pound offer.

A $1.05/pound bid from Uniquely Yours purchased the champion lightweight, an 80-pound lamb belonging to Sonja Shearer, Abbottstown.

Dave Myers, Wellsville, claimed the champion mediumweight title, selling his 90-pound lamb to the York County Sheep Club for a 90 cent/pound bid.

Tammy Flory's 85-pound reserve champion lightweight sold for 75 cents/pound to Jim Parlette, while Melissa Trostle got a 90 cent/pound price for her reserve champion mediumweight, a 100-pound lamb going to auctioneer Harry Baughman.

Two lambs brought dollar-per-pound bids, a 115-pounder exhibited by William Dietz III, of York, and purchased by Leonard Sipe, and the 110-pound lamb of Tiffany Dietz that went to Eleanor Sipe.

For Tim Ferrence of Spring Grove, his very first grand champion 4-H swine win was indeed a sweet victory, as well as a productive one.

Hatfield Packing Company's buyer, Ezra Good did a lot of bid nodding throughout the swine sale, beginning with a $3.50/pound price for Ferrence's 245-pound Duroc market hog.

But the lanky 4-H'er also carted off a special prize of a crisp shiny $100 bill. The $100 payment came from purbred Duroc promoter Roger Bankert of Hanover.

At the Bankert family's swine sale earlier this year, Bankert offered a $100 bonus to any 4-H buyer whose hog won a championship. Bankert has already handed out three of the big bills, and there are still a few project animals around the state waiting for their chance in the tanbark ring.

Hatfield again claimed the top bid at $2.00/pound when Gus Parlett of Airville paraded his reserve champion market animal around the sawdust.

Still nodding to the auction booth, Good also claimed the champion pair shown by Brian Bankert, at the price of an even dollar per pound.

Spangler and Sprenkle of York was successful in finishing the bidding for Kris Miller's reserve champion pair, and paid the York exhibitor .80 cents/pound for her matched hogs.

Hog producer Jerry Rutter boosted the price to 90 cents/pound for the champion lightweight, exhibited by Morris Spahr of York.

Then it was Hatfield in action again, paying 70 cents/pound for Greg Bankert's champion lightweight, following with a 65 cent/pound bid to Gus Parlett for his heavyweight winner.

Several faces fimiliar to sheep and swine club followers were in the lineup of exhibitors who took top awards in the fitting and showmanship contests that climaxed the Monday evening show.

Greg Bankert of Hanover, who's been handling hogs almost since he could walk, outmaneuvered all other entries in the showing contest, to be named the champion showman of the swine roundup.

York builder Bob Kinsley, represented by auctioneer Harry Bachman, bought grand champion lamb of Terry Flory at York roundup for $2.10 per lb.

Tim Ferrence's grand champion hog of York 4-H roundup is bought by Ezra Good, of Hatfield Packing, for $3.50 per lb.

Kris Miller took the reserve championship, with several years of experience in showing hogs from the family's York hog operation.

For Tim Ferrence, the champion victory was iced over with yet another win when the Spring Grove hog showman scrubbed and polished his entry to be named best fitter of the contest. Close behind came East Berlin 4-H hog member Gary Burgard, chosen the reserve fitting winner.

Judge for the combined roundup was Chester Hughes, Lancaster County Livestock Extension Agent.

Additional buyers at the lamb sale include Ron Trostle, Walter Dunlap, Wege Pretzel, Thomas' Meats, Red Lion Rental, Yorkco Meat Market, Gerald Dietz and Roger Bankert.

In the swine sale, buyers also included Glenville Farm Center, Danner's Insurance, Godfrey Brothers, Roger Bankert, Rutter's Family Restaurants, Walter Dunlap, White Oak Mills and Hobert Muller.

that tested their machinery skills.

Mark Wagner of Red Lion performed the most flawlessly, finishing in first place over runner up Brien Devoe of Kennard Dale. Others, as they placed, were Bo Bush, Kennard Dale, James Klahold, Eastern, Jim Eisenhour, Dover, Ron Horn, Dover and Tracy Crain, Northern.

A market sale wrapped up FFA activities at the fair on Friday night, with Hatfield Packing Company's Ezra Good the final bidder on both champion and reserve market hogs.

Good's bid of $2.85/lb. for the champion, and $1.40/lb. for the reserve hog fattened the bankbook of Dover FFA'ers Gerald Stermer, Jr., who exhibited the top pair of market pig winners.

Stermer, a junior at Dover, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stermer, Sr., East Berlin R2. The four hogs he had selected from the family's stock for his FFA entries are cross breeds, from Yorkshire and Landrace lines, and each won its class at the fair's competition.

Other first place market hog winners were Judy Ruppert of Dover, Beth Innerst and Jeff Holtzinger of Red Lion, and Bo Bush of Kennard Dale. — J.B.

"looks like she'll make a real dairy cow."

Kris Esbenshade, Quarryville, and Cindy Gordon, Peach Bottom, earned the grand and reserve grand junior division Ayrshire ribbons. Kris, daughter of Nancy and Fred Esbenshade, showed her two-year-old, Lucky Lady, to the grand championship.

Gordon's senior calf, Bethel, took the reserve title. A 4-H'er and showman for about five years, Gordon remarked that she was a little surprised and really pleased with how well Bethel is doing for her.

Guernsey competition was not as keen. Steve Wagner of Quarryville earned the grand championship with his junior yearling heifer, BoJoy Telstar April. Only junior animals were exhibited in the show, and Wagner picked up the reserve champion spot as well.

This year was the first that Solanco awarded trophies to the champions. Trophy sponsors were: Fred and Evelyn Crider, Robert Hershberger Family, Milk n Honey Farm, Misty Hollow Jersey Farm, Ken Ruff Family, Dr. Larry Schmuck Farm, Solanco Acres Farm, and SuKavin Farm.

Lancaster County alternate dairy princesses Sarah Arrowsmith and Kris Esbenshade awarded ribbons and trophies.

'Calves with complexes' aid disaster victims

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LEBANON — What do dairy calves and heifers off Pennsylvania farms have in common with coastal residents of North Carolina who just suffered multi-million-dollar losses from Hurricane Diana?

They have a lot in common – as was in evidence over the past weekend at the Church of the Brethren Relief Auction at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Proceeds from the sale – and this year's goal was $125,000 – are used for disaster relief domestically and overseas. The latest example was the aid dispatched to North Carolina to help the hurricane victims.

Just before the start of the heifer sale on Friday, Sept. 14, two victims of the recent flood in Bedford County personally paid witness to the help given them by Brethren volunteers.

"While the National Guard had the heavy equipment, the Brethren volunteers helped with the heavy hand labor of carrying the pails of mud and debris from what was left of our homes," one of the victims explained.

"It is the kind of help that you never forget."

And the Brethren Heifer Sale is getting the reputation for developing a new kind of dairy animal – one that might be called "calves with complexes."

Bidding continues on heifer that's resold several times at Brethren Auction to raise funds for disaster relief.

These animals are developing their "complexes" because their early years are being spent at least annually in a sale ring in which three or four or more buyers are purchasing them and then reselling them immediately.

In this way, participants in the Brethren heifer sale are raising the maximum amount of disaster relief funds possible from the sale of the donated cattle.

The September 14 sale started off in fine style with the purchase of a just freshened two-year-old by Mel Kolb for $4500. Kolb was volume buyer at the sale. "Shelmar-Acres Sky High Hertha" was in the relief sale last year and was bought back by the sale committee for this year's auction.

A calf with a "real complex" might be the year-old Dongla Blend Lucille out of the Mount Joy area, Three times A.D. Matz bought her and each time turned her back into the ring for resale. Thus, she brought well over $2,000 for relief purposes.

Another little girl that is already scheduled to return to next year's sale is a grade calf out of the herd of Cyrus and David Bomberger. She ended up with three "step-owners – including Messick Farm Equipment and Young's Minerals, who turned her back for resale and Wenger's Inc. of Myerstown, who bought and donated her for next year's sale.

Sale of used farm machinery launches Church of the Brethren Relief Auction at Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Thus, these calves with complexes, who are bought and sold multiple times, become heifers with hearts full of hope and eventually cows with compassion for possible disaster victims around the world.

And, in addition to the heifer sale, everything from quilts to crafts and from chicken corn soup to truck loads of hay come into play at the relief auction to lessen the load of someone who must bear the fury of fire, flood or some other type of disaster.

Milk exhibit set today

HARRISBURG — Milk and fitness are natural allies, and to emphasize this union the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is sponsoring an exhibit at Hess's Capital City Mall store today from 12-4 p.m.

The exhibit is part of an overall fitness promotion sponsored by the department store. The dairy exhibit boasts three county dairy princesses offering lowfat milk samples – both plain and chocolate – as well as yogurt samples.

Agriculture is the commonwealth's leading industry, with dairy products the number one component of that industry. The milk and dairy products industry contributes $2 billion to the state's economy.

In addition, dairy products are a primary source of dietary calcium, a nutrient needed in everyone's diet, especially women. Calcium is important both to bone health and overall health – not only during childhood and adolescence but also throughout life.

NE farm bill unit drafts policies

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Farm organization representatives from New York, Pennsylvania, and New England have agreed to take back to their members a "Discussion Draft" listing policies and programs the Committee believes should be considered for inclusion in the upcoming 1985 Farm Bill.

During four meetings over some five months, the Farm Bill Committee, chaired by Clyde E. Rutherford, a dairy leader from Otego, N.Y. has sifted through many proposals aimed at stabilizing the agricultural economy through the soon to be written Farm Bill.

In the end, according to Rutherford, there was general agreement on five concepts "although each organization clearly has the right to support or not support what is finally developed in the form of specific programs or legislation."

The Committee believes that the 1985 Farm Bill should include: 1) a national agricultural policy that recognizes the need for programs and policies that will maintain the variety and abundance of production that has made America strong; 2) a continuation of the Dairy Price Stabilization Program, with provisions for a new formula for adjusting the support price to reflect the costs and efficiences of today's dairy industry; 3) an economic adjuster that, with limits, will move the support price up and down in response to the relationship of supply and demand (as reflected in the rate of CCC purchases of surplus dairy products); 4) an extension of the present National Dairy Promotion Program, but only after a referendum of producers; 5) establishment of a standby program for dealing with a potential surplus problem before it reaches crisis proportions. This could include one or more of such things as a diversion program, a heifer control program; a production control system (base-excess, quotas, etc.) or a cull cow program.

Organizations represented on the Farm Bill Committee are: Agri-Mark, Agway, Allied Federated Cooperative, Dairylea, Eastern Milk Producers, Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative, Lehigh Valley Farmers, National Farmers Organization, New York Farm Bureau, New York State Grange, Niagara Milk Coop, NEDCO, Pennsylvania Farmer's Association, Pennsylvania State Grange, Pennsylvania Farmers Union.

"We are also very pleased to have had participation by the Farm Credit System and the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, including two sessions with Commissioner Joseph Gerace," said Rutherford.

Solanco market hogs

Byers, remarked that the pig was one of the best he'd seen.

Show judge Keith Bard apparently agreed with Byer's assessment, naming Jeff's bargain-basement hog the top middleweight and grand champion in Solanco's largest market hog show featuring 95 entries.

Though Byers paid $245 for another pair of show prospects earlier this year, the best either one could muster was a reserve champion weightclass win, prompting the second-year FFA'er to question the wisdom of forking over substantial sums for a "pig in a poke".

Not content to stop with the grand championship, Byers went on to take top honors in senior showmanship, as well. Gaining this honor will enable him to once again test his free pig theory, as the top showsman was the recipient of two feeder pigs courtesy of Quarryville Farm Credit.

A second lucky hog showman was Tiffany Rohrer who will also receive a pair of feeder pigs, donated by the Solanco FFA Alumni, for being named champion junior showman.

The show's reserve champion pig was exhibited by Cindy Trimble, filling in for her brother Scott, who was running a cross country race at the time of the show. Scott's 240-pound Chester-Duroc cross was bred by Jim Parlette.

The 14-year-old son of Don and Carol Trimble lives in Peachbottom and is a veteran of 4-H competition, having exhibited animals for the past seven years. Though he was awarded a reserve championship during his first year of competition, other major titles have eluded him since that time. Sometimes it takes a big sister to get the job done.

Hoover Farms

producers are top-dressed in the stalls during milking.

The Hoovers strive for top quality alfalfa for the haylage, and, although a bit uncommon for dairy feed, they use anhydrous ammonia on the corn silage to increase the protein by 4 or 5 percent. Dale estimated that this saves them 25 to 40 percent on feed costs since they don't need to buy soybeans, for instance, to up the protein.

Dean explained that they've used anhydrous ammonia in the steer operation for five or six years because it's a cheap source of protein. Some think it's not the best form of protein for dairy animals and may consequently cause health problems.

Although their thoughts can't be proven, the Hoovers have speculated about the connection between this protein source and a problem they had with twisted stomachs. They've alleviated that problem by feeding a good source of protein in the concentrate, and by improving their management of the dry and fresh cows For the first three days after freshening the cows are not allowed an unlimited amount of total mixed ration.

The Hoovers are optimistic about the future of agriculture and their part in it, although their attitudes may have been dampened a bit in the past couple years. As well as improving their dairy herd in the next few years, they'd also like to rent or buy additional land since they do need to buy a fair amount of corn.

Along with planning and efficiency goes cooperation for the Hoovers. The entire family is very much a part of the farm. Dean's wife Mary Ann milks quite often, and Dale's wife Charlotte handles a lot of the book work and is a relief milker as well. Dale and Charlotte's children, Angie, Matt, and Alicia, also pitch in. Matt looks forward to showing a junior calf at the Pa. Junior Dairy Show next week.

Charlotte remarked that the opportunity to raise children in the farm environment is really a blessing. There's no doubt that the strength of their family has a lot to do with the success of the Hoovers of Annville.

reserve honors in the 4-H show and placing second to Landis' steer in the heavyweight class.

This was the first show of the year for Edward and Virginia Whitman's son, who bought his steer from Ken Walker in Chester County.

Other top contenders for the grand championship were Fritz Frey and Jeff Craig who were awarded champion and reserve honors, respectively, in the FFA show.

Frey then went on to finish the show with style, taking top honors in the senior showmanship contest. Marjean Smith was named the event's top junior showman.

New board appointed by Block

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has established a policy board of key U.S. Department of Agriculture officials to advise him on the operation of the resource conservation and development program.

The program, administered by USDA since 1964, provides technical and financial assistance, including loans, for projects in rural communities to conserve and improve the use of land, develop natural resource and enhance social, economic and environmental conditions.

There are 194 local volunteer councils that govern the program throughout the nation These councils cover 1,355 counties in every state except Alaska, as well as in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands The resource conservation and development program provided more than $26 million of USDA technical and financial assistance in fiscal year 1984

The policy board has members representing USDA agencies and offices that share in delivering the program. The board met for the first time on Tuesday, Aug. 14, to discuss how the program can help local communities achieve their rural development objectives.

Chairman of the policy board is Deputy Assistant Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment Richard D. Siegel

Farm Bill ideas cited

HARRISBURG — The nation's general farm organizations will have a stronger role in the development of the 1985 Farm Bill than they did in 1981, according to James Miller, assistant legislative director for the National Grange. Miller spoke before the legislative, agriculture and dairy committees of the Pennsylvania State Grange at a pre-session policy meeting in Carlisle.

Miller pointed to the fact that the 1985 Farm Bill is not going to be written on a commodity by commodity basis, and therefore a more general approach to farm policy will be taken. "This farm bill is going to be different," he said. "There will be more actors involved in its development than ever before."

The new farm legislation will cover everything from price supports to food stamps, Miller said. "As a result, some very innovative things are likely to come out of it," he predicted. He said ideas being touted in Washington circles range from requiring more cross compliance on conservation programs, to eliminating research designed to increase farm productivity, to developing a direct farm subsidy program based on a farmer's means.

The dairy price support program is also certain to be a subject for debate, according to Miller. "The result is going to be a free for all or a crap-shoot at best," he said.

Whatever dangers some of the more innovative concepts may pose to farmers, the current climate also opens the door for family farmers to make their case, Miller said. "There's not a while lot of difference between the Republican and Democratic agricultural platforms," he pointed out.

Ag bills duties are included in legislation that it be continued.

Senate legislation to continue both groups requires approval of that group and then similar action in the House. If time does not permit, both agencies could be retained by resolution, which would require only a day for action.

Right to Know

Noah Wenger, farmer-senator from Lancaster County, was the center of attention on Right to Know legislation as chairman of the Labor and Industry Committee. Wenger was leading the effort to amend legislation passed in the House which carried stringent regulations concerning chemicals that would affect farming operations. Some of these major amendments were concerned with labeling equipment such as drills and sprayers, posting of a central location for employes instead of every field receiving chemical applications, definition of a manufacturer that would not include a farmer just because he mixed chemicals and limiting information to be supplied emergency crews to major hazardous substances.

Any such changes would also require House concurrence.

Timber Theft

A bill to raise penalties for timber theft may be tied to controversial Senate legislation concerning marital rape.

Ag Products Commission

There's a Senate bill to create an Ag Products Development Commission to oversee the promotion of Pennsylvania agricultural products in a manner similar to that of other states. Since it entails a $100,000 appropriation, it requires Appropriations Committee action.

Property Tax Exemptions

There is pending legialtion to exclude grains bins and corn crips from property taxes in order to standardize regulations throughout the state. In some counties, they are taxed and in some they are not.

Poultry Payments

There's a House bill requiiring that poultry contracts contain provisions for prompt payment to farmers – 14 days or a time period of mutual agreement between the buyer and seller.

Hog co-ops

other and would serve separate parts of the state.

Concerning the A and B plant effort, a session was held on Monday among hog producers in Adams County. The proposed co-op's steering committee was also scheduled to meet this week to select an attorney for the drafting of agreements and other paperwork.

In the A and B co-op, hog producers are being asked to put up $1,000 to provide seed money for the application for state-backed funds for the proposed plant purchase.

It is expected that a session will be called in the near future among enrolled hog producers to proceed with the co-op formation.

This week's session of debtors with claims in the Chapter 11 bankruptcy of A and B before a federal judge in Reading included a 37 percent payment to hog producers who are still owed money for livestock.

It was at this session that it was announced the co-op group has appeared as the most likely purchaser of the plant.

Former dairy farmer delights in woodcarving

BY BARBARA RADER

JAMESTOWN — John Vanderstappen and his wife, Ann, recently moved to the outskirts of Jamestown, not far from Adamsville, where they had originally been dairy farmers. Giving up his "Dutch Dairy" of approximately 40 black and white milking cows and going into semi-retirement, John hopes to pursue his hobby of woodcarving in his new home.

Still a farmer at heart, John is leasing his 200-acre farm to a young man with the dream of becoming a devoted dairy farmer, a dream John once had himself. John hopes that selling his cows and equipment and leasing his land to the young man, Jeff Raney, is a good move for both parties, allowing each to pursue his own interests.

John came to the United States in 1951, immigrating from Holland after his family's farm was destroyed during World War II. He and his brothers separated, each going his own way. With the help of one of his brothers in the United States, John obtained sponsorship to work in a nursery near Chicago.

Watching Dutch soldiers whittle to help pass the long hours in the barns during the war provided John with the knowledge he needed to become a woodcarver.

Although he started woodcarving only three years ago, John plans to expand his craft in his new home. Downstairs he is working on making a special room just for his hobby. Because of the dust he creates while hand sanding, he hopes to make his wife's cleaning duties easier by confining the dust to one room.

Spending at least eight hours each day on his hobby, John works with butternut, catalpa or bass wood.

"You've got to have good wood or you'll have lots of knots in bad wood, making it harder to carve," John says. "I like to buy my own trees, a whole tree at one time, and go to the sawmill nearby to do my cutting.

"Takes about two years for the wood to dry to use for good woodcarving work," he adds.

The dozen or more figurines sitting on the mantle represent John's first work.

But because he cut himself so many times while whittling them, John, who bleeds easily, turned his talents to woodcarving.

John uses very sharp knives which he orders specially and sharpens each one himself. As his work progresses, he purchases additional knives to make his work easier.

To highlight his work, John uses a special woodburning knife, various colors of wood stains, and very little white paint. He tops off these touches with a finishing coat of varnish.

"Staining and carving is what the folks want," he says, adding that animals, birds, covered bridges, houses and windmills are the most popular pieces.

"I like to do cows. That's what I'm most familiar with," he says. "The farmer is always pleased with the cows I've done."

John recently completed an order for a well-known Holstein breeder in the area and has a number of orders waiting to be filled as soon as his new workroom is completed.

Two of the works hanging in his display will be packed and mailed to Germany to fill still another order. John has distributed his woodcarvings in about 15 states, going as far south as Florida, west to California, and north to Alaska, with some going into Canada. He advertises by word of mouth and by attending a few craft shows and community fairs.

John is determined to have his customers pleased with the woodcarving he does for them.

"You give me a picture or a photo, and I'll try to make what you want," he says.

Each of his pieces carries his special insignia - his name written in his native Dutch tongue. He added this special touch after a customer who had purchased one of his works asked him to sign it.

No two pieces of his work are identical, even though he has made many pictures of quail, covered bridges, Dutch home and windmill. Each one is slightly different.

John says he tries to avoid making cats and dogs because people are too attached to their pets and expect the finished carving to be an exact replica of their animal. However, he does make a beagle dog's head and a few cats just to display, and he will sell them to interested customers.

John always works on at least three pieces at a time, with each piece in a different stage. Sometimes he etches the drawing on one solid piece of wood, and other times he pieces it together, but you can't tell the difference.

He has worked with very small pieces and bigger pieces of up to six feet long.

He uses glue only when piecing wood together or when making eyes for his animals to give them an even more lifelife appearance.

John stands beside some of his finished work on display. A price tag is added for people interested in purchasing his work.

Homestead Notes

be stained, not painted, and John has a wide variety of colors available in his shop. White is the only color of paint he uses because he needs it in some of his carvings to offset the design.

John says he can't charge the customer by the hour, because the woodcarving would be so expensive that no one would be able to enjoy them.

Carving of the Dutch home and windmill takes John about eight hours. The total time involved in each protrait would also include time spent selecting the wood, sanding, staining, varnishing and attaching the hanger to the back, adding another eight to 10 hours to the total time.

When setting prices, John says he concentrates more on what the public is willing to pay than on how much time he spends on the piece.

One of the longest carvings that John has done was a six-foot picture of horses grazing in a field. A customer had sent John pictures of his horses and asked that John carve them into a portrait. Staining each horse to match the pictures, John added a touch of white paint to make them look even more real.

Scenes of his native Dutch homelife and of Dutch dwellings are also special pieces. His collection includes several wood carvings of his family's farm.

John also creates a picture depicting the five dairy breeds that is sure to catch any dairy farmer's eye. He carefully etches out the characteristics of each breed and stains the color markings as close to reality as possible. Although he doesn't have one of these in his display right now, he does have pictures of them in his album.

"This is just a hobby," John stressed over and over agin. "I just like to do wood carving. It's not a business and is not meant to be."

Lacking pictures of his homeland, John carved this picture of an attached barn and house in Holland from memory.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

CHANGES AHEAD FOR EATING OUT

We Americans have a growing appetite for eating out. This year we will spend nearly $170 billion to keep from slaving over a hot stove. That bill represents more than 41 cents out of each dollar spent for food.

Changes in the national living pattern are prompting the move toward eating out or taking prepared food home. Those who keep tabs on social and economic trends point to these factors: a growing number of women in the work force, more families on two incomes, and the impact of advertising and promotion by large food service chains.

The food service industry has undergone some phenomenal changes over the past 20 years. Fast food outlets, for example, are growing at the expense of independent diners. Diners now comprise less than 10 percent of all eating places, compared to 23 percent 15 years ago. The number of fast food outlets has tripled since 1963, from nearly 40,000 to more than 122,000 in 1982.

As consumer spending for food away from home, particularly in fast food outlets, continues to grow, so does the competition. Convenience stores, traditional restaurants, and even supermarkets are vying for a share of the take-out prepared foods market. In addition, food marketers are experimenting with new formats, merchandising strategies, and improved food products and services to satisfy the needs and wants of an older, better educated, more diverse and demanding population.

CLOTHES IMPORTANT FOR SCHOOL CHILD

Children who feel good about the clothes they wear are usually more confident, more secure, and happier than those who don't like their clothes. What children wear to school is especially important to them.

Children start to notice what their friends wear in the early grades. If your children don't have clothes similar to those of other children in school, they may feel inferior or insecure. Feeling like they "belong" is important for children.

Comfort is even more important in clothes than good looks. The reason given most often by young children for not wearing a garment is poor fit. And that means too small as well as too big. Clothing that is too small or too big hinders the child's movement, and looks awkward. And oversized clothing will look faded and worn when the child finally does grow into it.

Remember, children usually grow "up" faster than they grow "out". Clothing features that adapt easily to growth, such as deep hems and cuffs, tucks in skirts, undefined waistlines and raglan sleeves, will be a better buy than clothing without these features.

While most of us can't outfit our children like the models on TV commercials, some thought, planning, and compromises by both the parent and child can lead to a wardrobe that satisfies everyone concerned.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Edna Beiler and Margaret Lefever, two of the women who are primarily responsible for the delicious food served at the Lampeter Community Fair.

These two women have been busily preparing for the big event which opens on Wednesday and will be even busier on Tuesday, when they will actually begin preparing the food.

To learn more about these women and about the food that will be served at the fair, see the story featuring them in this section. Below is the recipe they use to prepare the meatloaf served on Friday evening.

Meatloaf

20 pounds ground beef
7 cups bread crumbs
20 eggs
3 cups tomato juice
2 cups milk
½ cup salt
1 tablespoon pepper
Chopped onions, celery and parsley to taste

Mix all ingredients together. Pat into loaves and bake at 325°F. for 2½ hours or until done.

DO YOU KNOW THE FACTS ABOUT MILK?

FACT: Milk is the most nearly perfect food, contains all the nutrients (food elements) that we need for growth and good health. ONLY MILK has these elements in such amounts that can work as a "team."

FACT: Milk is one of the easiest foods for the body to digest.

FACT: Milk contains protein, carbohydrates, fats, minerals and vitamins, all the nutrients needed for a healthy body and sturdy bones and teeth.

FACT: Protein from milk, nutrition experts call complete protein, because they contain every amino acid essential for building blood & tissue.

FACT: Milk protein not only has more amino acids than Plant Protein, but also provides them in greater amounts than the protein of eggs and most meats.

FACT: Milk fat or butterfat provides energy and essential fatty acids that our bodies cannot make.

FACT: Milk fat contains vitamins A, D, E, and K; traces of lecithin. Milk fat also gives milk its flavor.

FACT: Milk sugar, called lactose, makes up most of the carbohydrate contents of milk. Bodies burn milk sugar for energy. Doctor's believe that lactose, combining with calcium and phosphorus in milk, helps build strong bones & teeth.

FACT: Few natural foods besides milk contain as many vitamins in the amounts so close to what our bodies need.

FACT: A dairy cow that produces 16,000 lbs. of milk with a 3.8 test will produce in 1 year:
560 lbs. of protein, 608 lbs. of butterfat, 768 lbs. of carbohydrates, 112 lbs. of minerals & vitamins.

Green leaves and colorful flowers poking through that last bit of snow means one thing — spring! Plant bulbs this fall and you'll be sure not to miss this early show, advises extension agent, Jeff Jabco. Spring-flowering bulbs need a cold period to flower, and fall planting provides this. Planting in the fall also enables bulbs to produce the roots they need to properly nourish the leaves and flowers.

Where can you plant bulbs? Anywhere the soil is well-drained. If the soil isn't well-drained, the bulbs can rot. If your soil is high in sand or clay, add some peat or other well-rotted organic material and work it in to a depth of 12 to 18 inches. Add some bonemeal or a general-purpose fertilizer to the soil and work it in to give your bulbs a boost for future years.

When you are ready to plant, you can choose from two methods. One is to dig an area large enough to place a cluster of bulbs, the other is to dig individual holes for each bulb. Either way, large bulbs like tulips, hyacinths, and daffodils are planted 6 to 8 inches deep. The smaller bulbs — crocus, grape hyacinth, and Scilla — are planted two to four inches deep. Set the bulbs, pointed side up — the flat side is where the roots form — firmly into the soil. Then cover with soil and water thoroughly. The watering helps the bulbs start forming roots right away. After this, normal rain and snow should provide adequate moisture. If dry periods do occur, though, you'll need to water.

Covering your planted areas with a mulch such as hay, bark, leaves, or evergreen boughs will help prevent the freezing and thawing which can heave the bulbs out of the ground. Remove the mulch in spring when the shoots are about 1 ot 2 inches tall. As you plan your bulb planting scheme, remember that bulbs look best when clumped together for waves of color. Plan to use the total variety of bulbs available so you'll have bulbs flowering from late February to May, and more flowering from September through late fall.

Some very early bulbs include Eranthis (Winter Aconite), Chionodoxa (Glory of the Snow), Scilla, and grape hyacinth. Crocus, too, flower early, but somewhat later than these others. Later blooming spring bulbs include tulip, daffodil, and hyacinth. Fall-flowering bulbs include Sternbergia, Colchicum and Autumn corcus.

Bulbs such as daffodils, crocus, and Scilla give an added benefit. Once planted, they will natuaralize (meaning they multiply quite a bit) so that their flowering display will increase in years to come — with little effort on your part. A visit to a garden center will acquaint you with these and other bulbs available. For the small amount of effort needed, nothing you plant will give you more pleasure than bulbs, and remember, fall is for planting!

Lace net embroidery

Today's lace net embroidery is a fresh and appealing approach to the traditional technique of "lace net darning." The finished look gives the impression of filet crochet and can be incorporated into clothing and home decor in much the same ways.

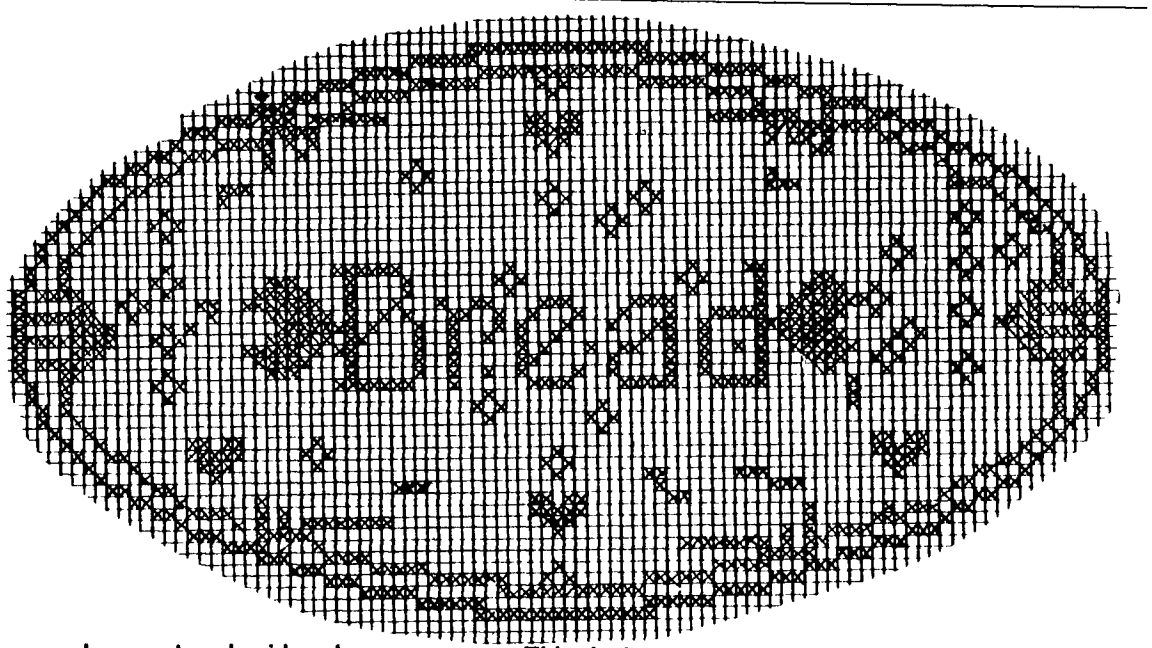
Detailed design surrounded by airy open space can be easily achieved with the use of one quickly learned stitch. The Reprise stitch, also known as the darning or weaving stitch, is usually stitched in perle white cotton on white net, or perle ecru cotton on ecru net.

However, interesting results can be achieved by using narrow ribbons, colored threads or yarns. Once you've become familiar with the basic stitching technique, try adding beads or other decorative stitches.

Before beginning a lace net project you will need a No. 18 tapestry needle, No. 8 cotton thread and lace netting in either white or natural. Refer to the diagram for stitching direction and interpretation of pattern.

When becoming familiar with the Reprise stitch, it is important to remember that you always work over one thread (of the net) more than the number of blocks in a given row.

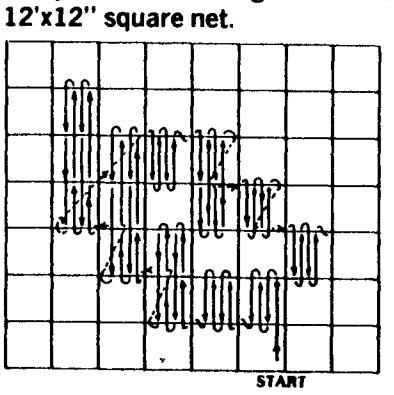
Begin by bringing your needle up from underneath, leaving an 8-to 10-inch end to be woven in later. Move your needle over the first horizontal thread of the net and under the next. Refering to the diagram, repeat this weaving until the vertical space is filled. You will find that four lines work well with this fabric count and thread weight, but experiment and see what works best with your materials.



Lace net embroidery has many uses. This design is for a bread dish liner and can be darned onto a net band or a 12'x12" square net.

Always finish a block with the thread being brought over the net thread and through the back.

When working an area to cover more than one block, bring your thread over the first (very important), under the second, over the third, etc., until the desired number of blocks, plus the additional net thread, have been darned. Pass your needle over last net thread and continue weaving until you reach the end of the row. Pass needle over the last net thread and reverse weaving until you reach the end. Repeat until the entire row is solid.



Stitching diagram

To end piece or add thread, turn the work over and weave carefully through the back of the woven area, taking care not to let this weaving show through the right side.

Patterns and designs for lace net embroidery can easily be adapted from counted cross-stitch graphs and filet crochet diagrams. Linda Dennis of The Finish Line Inc. has recently released three wonderful books for lace net embroidery and darning. Also available from The Finish Line is a 3-inch-wide, 10-threads-to-the-inch net band in a poly/cotton blend that is suitable for projects that require washability. This band can be easily embroidered and used to decorate clothing and linens as well as a host of other elegant uses.

For more information on these books and the net band, write The Finish Line Inc., 1236 Boiling Spring Highway, P.O. Box 2712, Spartanburg, SC 29304.

Insects munch through acres of forest

WASHINGTON — Their names are hardly household words: gypsy moth, spruce budworm, pine beetle

But they're gaining more notoriety all the time as they steadily chomp their way, through million acres of forest each year.

They are, in terms of the devastation they cause, the nation's most important forest insect pests. Their legacy is a multiplying patchwork of brown and dying woodlands.

They've been around a long time, and they'll be around a lot longer. Foresters have little hope of eradicating them, only of controlling them and holding timber losses to acceptable levels.

"Forestry is merely managing death and disaster in the woods," says Lester A. DeCoster, a vice president of the American Forest Institute. "A forest is a continuing process of death and rebirth and disasters, and you try to manage that in a way that fits your needs."

"I'm not sure it's a problem you ever solve," says Robert W. Slocum Jr., manager of private forest management for the National Forest Products Association. "You may temporarily abate it, but like the flu bug and a few other things, chances are the insects will probably adapt eventually and say with us in one form or another "

Two U.S. Forest Service officials who keep close tabs on what's eating the woods are entomologist Thomas H Hofacker and pathologist Robert C. Loomis.

They are co-authors of a report on forest insect and disease problems in 1983. Among their findings:

— Gypsy moth larvae defoliated about 2.4 million acres, mainly of oaks, in hardwood forests from Maine to Virginia, and as far west as Ohio. The acreage was "down dramatically" from the 8.2 million acres defoliated by the insect in 1982.

— The spruce budworm defoliated nearly 6.5 million acres of white spruce and balsam, chiefly in Maine, after the pest declined for two years in a row.

— Western spruce budworm defoliation of fir, larch, and spruce, principally in Idaho, "increased significantly" for the second straight year to about 11 million acres.

— Mountain pine beetle outbreaks covered 3.5 million acres, mostly in Colorado, Montana, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

— Southern pine beetles attacked trees in 66 counties in eight states, the second consecutive annual increase; especially hard hit were national forests in Texas.

Dozens of Diseases

These species are only a few among the dozens listed in the Forest Service report. Also included is an even longer list of diseases, many of which work in conjunction with insects to decimate the forests.

Patient research continues, by the federal government and by industries and universities Genetic improvements, new biological and chemical controls, and improved aerial mapping are a few of the preventive measures being explored.

So are synthetic pheromones, imitations of the chemicals secreted by insects to send subtle signals that govern everything from their eating habits to their sex lives

"Prevention is the thing we're trying to get," says Loomis. "When you really get into the big outbreak, then your options are cut, and you have to go into the very controversial spraying programs and that kind of thing."

The best way to achieve prevention, many experts agree, is to manage the forests. Hofacker uses the stricken stands of lodgepole pines in the Rocky Mountains as an example.

"The way to manage is not to have these vast areas of trees that are over 80 years old and have relatively large diameters," he says. "Mountain pine beetle and fire working together – the pine beetle killing the trees, and fire coming in after that, regenerating these large areas of lodgepole pine – have just set the stage for a continuous series of epidemics."

"In the West today," writes Forest Service entomologist Mark D. McGregor of Missoula, Mont., "thousands of acres of gray trees stand as skeletal evidence of

Female gypsy moths lay clusters of eggs on a tree trunk. The eggs of these and countless sister moths will hatch into voracious larve that will defoliate millions of acres of U.S. hardwood forests. In 1983 the pests devoured some 2.4 million acres of foliage from Maine to Virginia.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Equality. We've heard that word so much over the past decade, as the feminist movement continues the crusade for men and women to be treated as equals in rights, in services, on the job and in the marketplace.

Most farm women of my acquaintance, while leaning toward feminism, aren't die-harders about the issue. That's undoubtedly somewhat due to the fact that most of us are already doing such "manly" things as helping to tend livestock and crops along with the garden, yard and household.

There are, though, some farm jobs that just naturally seem to fall to one sex or the other. Never have I, thank goodness, been asked to service a tractor (I once greased a disk before heading out over the field), crawl inside the bottom of the silo for repair work, or help to mechanically stir up the manure lagoon.

Our very "macho" son contends that certain chores are "women's work." Nevertheless he hasn't completely avoided being forced to occasionally pick up his muddy shoes or help set the table for supper.

And one job that everyone readily leaves to me is handling the calf chores. In fact, they're often referred to as "mom's calves."

Am I complaining? Never. I love those baby calves.

Surveys have recently shown that baby farm animals raised by females consistently show a higher rate of survival and better thriftiness and health than similar ones cared for by males. (Before you men calf feeders hit the ceiling, there are doubtless some exceptions. You may be one of them.)

No matter how tired you are, or frustrated, or disgusted, just stepping into that calf nursery is enough to give you what's currently referred to in a popular country song as an "attitude adjustment." All those bright, shining, alert pairs of eyes eagerly watch your every move, and bawls of welcome sing out.

Each one, like a class of children, is an individual. Some are exceptionally loving, and there are a few, always, that seem bent on creating aggravation. Sometimes just their unusual patterns of black and white color are fascinating and really set certain ones aside as individuals. One little heifer born here in late summer has long black eyelashes over one eye, and long silky white lases over the other, lending a sort of endearing, crooked look to her face.

Yoko, one of the older nursery heifers, bawled for her first several days there in what was probably the loudest voice I've ever heard come out of a calf's mouth. Her mother once belonged to a group of investment cattle owned by members of the Beatles singing group — maybe that's where her loud music ability originated.

After Yoko finally came to grips with the fact that she and her mama were separated for good, she pouted and sulked in the corner for a couple more days before settling down to behave like a good calf should.

Pushover should have instead been named Push Around. Day in and day out she clamps her jaws shut like a vise, and you have to pry them apart to get her to take the bottle. After two sips of the warm milk, Pushover nearly flattens you in her eagerness to drink. After two weeks of this, you think she'd finally learn?

Then there's Marvina. Marvina's mother was the proverbial "holy terror" heifer, shown as a 4-H calf in competition, but never really taming down into a puppy-like pet like most 4-H calves do. Then, to boot, her sire is well-known in the industry as having fathered some extremely high-strung, jittery animals.

Thus, Marvina was fully expected to be one of those calves that keeps at least one eye on the feeder at every second, waiting until just the right moment to lash out with one of those sharp, hard little hooves.

What a surprise when she turned out instead to be a real honey, who has to be awakened for her bottle, and then lays right back down and goes to sleep, never making a sound.

That's the neat thing about animals. You just never know how they'll turn out.

Wayne Co. to start craft group

HONESDALE — The crafts connection is the connection for you to make if you're a hobbyist or a "crafty-type." This fair-weather group is forming for the purpose of exchanging ideas, showing and telling about your work, and learning more about improving a craft or hobby.

The group will also plan and arrange bus trips and outings to various craft shows and places of enrichment. Meetings will not be held in the snow months.

The first get-together will be held on Monday, Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Extension Office in the Wayne County Courthouse, Honesdale.

A chairman, secretary and treasurer will probably be the only officers necessary. Different committees will be set up to plan activities. As this is an enrichment program sponsored by the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service, plans will be implemented by the extension.

For more information call Jackie Cook at 253-5970 ext. 114.

Insects munch

previous mountain pine beetle outbreaks. The dead trees fuel a massive forest furnace, which needs only a spark to become an inferno."

McGregor's forecast proved tragically accurate when August blazes seared thousands of acres of Montana forests.

Potential Harvesting

If infestation is caught early enough, the devastated yellow pines of Texas can be harvested and thus not totally lost, because they are usually more accessible than the remote giants of the West. Then a buffer strip cut around the infested stand will usually stop the spread of the beetles.

But if the infestation has gone too far, the answer, in forestry parlance, is to "cut and leave."

The spruce budworm poses a different sort of problem, particularly in Maine, the nation's most heavily forested state, where lumbering is the principal industry.

Insects can't read boundary markers, and the 100 million budworm-infested acres extend far into the confiers of Canada. In both the East and the West, a joint Canadian-U.S. program is searching for ways to control the pests.

All these omnivorous insects are, to some extent, cyclical. The extent of their ravaging varies widely from year to year. In general, the foresters and scientists agree, 1984 promises to be a year of less than staggering losses.

But foresters think in long terms. Of gypsy moths, for example, Hofacker says, "It's going to be bad somewhere every year. Some years it will be worse than others. It's extremely explosive. We aren't very good at predicting what it's going to do. It can be relatively rare, and the next year there's just bugs all over the place."

'Ain't Seen Nothin'

Despite the defoliation the gypsy moth already has caused on its southward march, "We ain't seen nothin' yet," says Hofacker. "It's the vast hardwood forest that extends down the Appalachians way into the South that really hasn't been attacked yet." Inevitably, it will be.

One of those who takes the long view is Dr. Gerald W. Anderson, director of the Forest Service's insect and disease research. Although he recognizes the problem of lag time – perhaps 10 or 15 years to come up with a solution to a particular problem – he is not pessimistic about the future of our forests.

"The trees out there are remarkable in terms of their ability to endure," he says. "They have to be very competitive. They're in a fixed position. They have to endure drought. There are just all kinds of things that can challenge them along the way."

Butler edges out Crawford in Northwest 4-H Dairy Show

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

NEW CASTLE—The Butler County 4-H'ers claimed just one more rosette than the Crawford County 4-Hers during the 39th Annual Northwest District 4-H Dairy Show, held at the Lawrence County fairgrounds, Sept. 8. By taking all the Brown Swiss awards and the grand, junior, and reserve junior championships in the Ayrshire competition, the Butler countians edged out the Crawford exhibitors.

Crawford won all the Holstein championships, the Guernsey grand championship, and the reserve junior champion spot in the Jersey competition.

Host county Lawrence picked up the Milking Shorthorn grand championship and the Ayrshire reserve grand award. A Warren County 4-Her showed the grand champion Jersey. The reserve grand and junior champion Jersey exhibitors were from Jefferson County, and the reserve grand and junior champions in the Guernsey show belonged to Mercer 4-Hers. Erie County pulled the reserve junior champion Guernsey.

Master fitting and showmanship combination awards went to 39 exhibitors. They were rewarded for their efforts with stickers, rosettes, and trophies. Forty-nine master fitter and 34 master showman individual award rosettes were given out as well.

The good housekeeping award went to Clarion County for the third consecutive year. The Crawford 4-Hers retained the huge "Good Housekeeping Banner" for their special efforts in presenting an attractive and neat display during the district show.

Running two show rings during the day kept all show personnel busy. Type judges were Ginger Myers, Littletown, and Bill Ramsey of Ohio. Fitting and showmanship judges were Dwight Hunter and Jim McMurry, both of Washington, Pa., and Dan Kellogg of Rome, Ohio.

The day-long event began with opening ceremonies, with 4-Hers, parents, leaders, and judges taking part. Lawrence and Butler counties served as host and co-host for the event.

Show chairperson was Shirley Mitcheltree, with Barbara Rader serving as co-chair. Mark Miller of Lawrence County was official announcer for the day. Numerous leaders and county extension personnel from the ten counties helped to make the district competition a success.

The Northwest District includes Erie, Warren, Crawford, Butler, Lawrence, Jefferson, Venango, Mercer, McKean, and Clarion counties. The 39th annual show was one of the largest district 4-H dairy shows with 139 Holstein entries, 44 Jerseys, 19 Guernseys, 16 Brown Swiss, 13 Ayrshires, and 4 Milking Shorthorns.

The following blue ribbon winners will travel on to the Pa. Junior Dairy Show, Sept. 24, in Harrisburg.

Best of southwestern counties compete in district 4-H dairy show

BY BETH NESBIT
Staff Correspondent

INDIANA — On Saturday, Sept. 8 the best 4-H dairy members from eight southwestern Pennsylvania counties congregated at the Indiana County Fairgrounds for the 38th annual Southwest District 4-H Dairy Show. Each 4-H animal at this show had already been selected as the best in its respective county; the district judging is to choose the best from the best to represent southwestern Pennsylvania at the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show to be held Sept. 24, at the Farmshow complex in Harrisburg.

Judges for this day-long event were type judge, Dale Oliver, Atlantic Breeders Cooperation, fitting judge, Robert Rugaber, Butler County extension agent, and the showmanship judge was Patty McMurray, dairy farmer and housewife from Washington County.

A total of 137 animals were exhibited by 107 4-H members. The eight counties participating in the show were; Armstrong, Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Clearfield, Huntington, Indiana and Somerset.

The day began with the exhibition of the Brown Swiss. Christie Booher, Huntington County, was the owner of the grand champion Brown Swiss while Susan Nehrig, Indiana county, exhibited the reserve grand champion Brown Swiss.

Paul Carr from Somerset county represented the Holstein breed with his grand champion 3-year-old cow. Greg Edwards, Indiana county, was the owner of the reserve grand champion Holstein.

A Bedford county resident received the grand champion title in the Guernsey competition. Beth Ann Clark exhibited her senior two-year-old cow to claim this title. Gina Yaple of Clearfield was the owner of the reserve grand champion Guernsey.

Every year a special award is given to the outstanding Guernsey showman at the conclusion of the Guernsey show. This award is presented by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Bedford County, in memory of their daughter Lori Anne. Lori Anne was an active member in the 4-H organization. The recipient of the award this year was Angelique McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned McDonald, Bedford County.

Lucinda Bradely of Blair County captured the grand champion title in the Ayrshire competition, while the reserve grand champion title went to Dean Varner of Huntington County.

All blue merit ribbon exhibitors are now eligible to attend the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show

Keiko Smith wins at Lebanon Flower Show

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LEBANON — When Keiko Smith left her home in Japan to move to the United States 20 years ago, she brought along flower arranging skills that she had acquired from her mother and through formal schooling. The Best of Show award she received at this year's Lebanon County Flower Show, held last Wednesday and Thursday, attest to her considerable skill in this art.

In Japan, Keiko said, she learned to make an arrangement and then give it a title to convey the feeling or mood that it suggested when it was completed. But here, she has had to learn a new approach to the art - an approach which requires her interpret a title in her floral designs.

While Keiko claims to be somewhat inexperienced in this aspect of flower arranging, she certainly is not unsuccessful in her attempts to convey a message with flowers. Her Best of Show arrangement, entered in the "Love's Old Sweet Song" class of the Lebanon show, consisted of a bouquet of yellow century lilies, with mahonia as foliage. She incorporated two split bamboo circles into the arrangement to communicate love.

"Love is a hug," Keiko said, forming her arms into a circle as though she were hugging someone near to her.

To express the song idea included in the class title, Keiko placed an opened songbook beside her arrangement.

While the lilies used in her arrangement came from a local greenhouse, Keiko grew the mahonia in her own small yard which contains very little grass. Flowers dominate in Keiko's lawn, creating a colorful scene for motorists driving by her home on Route 934 in Annville.

Keiko says she does not allow her husband to mow what little grass has managed to survive for fear that he will destroy a new plant that she is not yet aware of.

Keiko likes to spend time in her garden, but sometimes finds it difficult to make time in her busy schedule. One day a week she travels to Baltimore, Md. to attend the Sogetsu School of Ikebana, where she is trained in Japanese flower arranging, an art she has been learing since she was 13 years old. In Japan, Keiko explained, every girl learns the fundamentals of flower arranging.

Keiko Smith recently won Best of Show honors at the Lebanon Flower Show with her arrangement of century lillies.

To finance her way through school, Keiko sells crafts and gives lectures and demonstrations to various groups in the area. She is especially well-known for her holiday decoration ideas and for her work with dried flowers.

Where does Keiko get the ideas that so many enjoy? The library.

"The library is the best place to go," Keiko claims, adding that she is inspired by what she sees in books. However, she continued, she rarely takes an idea from a book without changing it in some way.

Coming up with an idea is the most time-consuming part of arranging flowers, Keiko explained. The actual process of executing the design takes considerably less time.

Keiko said she likes to work with lumber, cutting it like sculpture to include in her arrangements. Her house, she says, is always cluttered with her numerous projects and things that other people call junk, but which she considers treasures.

She plans to enter next year's show, but can't start on her idea until the new theme is announced. "I really like to participate in the club," she says.

BY SUZANNE KEENE

STRASBURG — For many, the words "county fair" mean rows of fruits and vegetables in shining canning jars, intricate crafts sewn with loving hands, and farm animals parading around a show ring. But for culinary connoisseurs, county fairs mean generous servings of the best homemade food available.

The women who prepare that delicious food spend many hours in a hot kitchen, cooking and stewing until all menu selections are prepared to perfection. Margaret Lefever and Edna Beiler, the two women who are primarily responsibile for cooking the corn soup, chicken pot pie and other menu items at the West Lampeter Fair, say preparing food for a fair is a lot of hard work, but quickly add that it's a lot of fun too.

Margaret and Edna split the cooking responsiblity for the three-day event, with Margaret preparing the lunches and Edna in charge of suppers.

While they carry much of the responsiblity for seeing that everything gets done on time, they do not work alone. Many people from the community offer their time and talents to make the fair food a success.

"It's a community effort," Margaret said. Many senior citizens donate a few hours to the project, helping to pick off chicken, grate cabbage for cole slaw or peel apples. Other community members, including men, lend a helping hand.

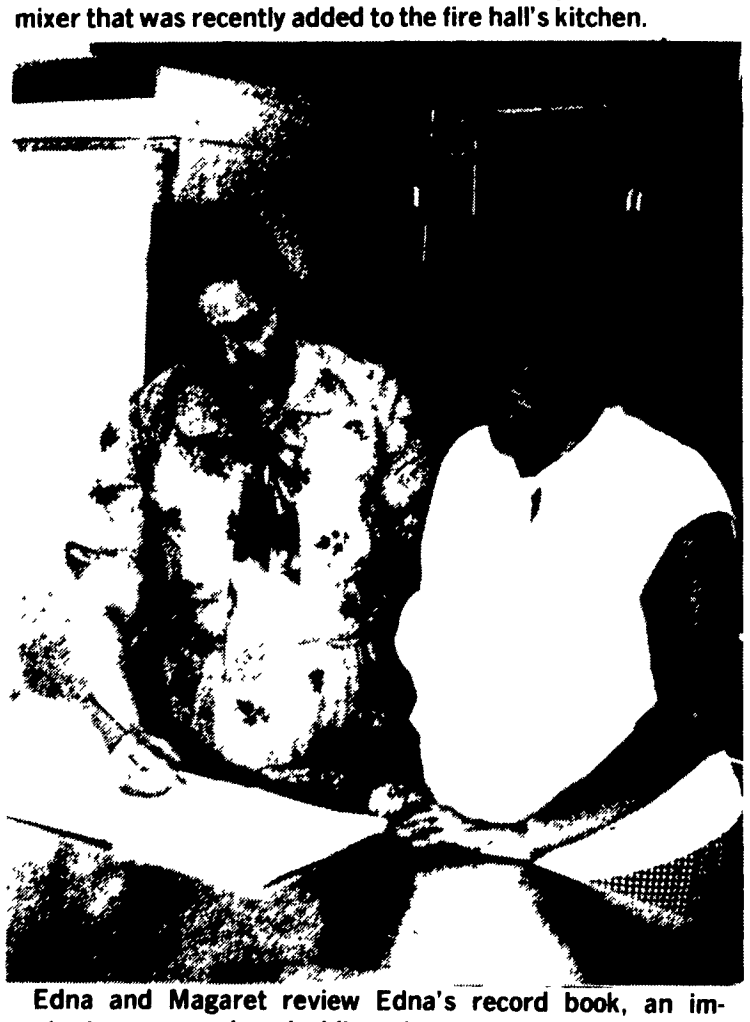
The preparation really begins at the end of July when the restaurant committee gets together to freeze about 120 quarts of corn for chicken corn soup and for use as a vegetable at Friday night's supper. The men husk and the women blanche and cut off, Margaret said.

Then, toward the end of August, the restaurant committee meets to decide on prices and what items will be offered on the menu. Last year, they added iced tea to the menu, but for the most part, Margaret said, the menu stays the same.

About two or three weeks before the fair committee chairman Elsie Houser orders the food. "She sees that everything's there for us," Edna explained.

Peeling apples isn't an overwhelming chore when you have lot's of help - even when you have to peel six bushels. From left are Elsie Houser, Edna Beiler and Margaret Lefever.

Edna Beiler adds a little milk to her mashed potatoes in the mixer that was recently added to the fire hall's kitchen.



Edna and Magaret review Edna's record book, an important resource when deciding what and how much to make.

Among other things, the order includes 600 pounds of chicken, 200 pounds of cabbage, and six bushels of apples. Elsie says she looks over her record book that she keeps from year to year to determine how much to order.

"I kind of go from the year before," she says. If they ran out of something last year, Elsie is sure to order a little extra the next year.

One year they used all the roast beef for supper and had none left for lunch the next day. "There was no beef for my beef stew," Edna recalled.

To make sure that lunch would be ready for the next day, she spent the whole night roasting beef from her own freezer. However, she says, that doesn't happen very often, because Elsie is an excellent planner who has years of experience to rely on.

The actual food preparation begins at 6 a.m. on the Tuesday before the fair, when Edna and Margaret can be found in the kitchen at the Lampeter Fire Company, putting the chickens on to boil, and preparing cole slaw and applesauce. By 8:30 a.m. other volunteers will start arriving to debone the chickens and help with other chores.

Early Wednesday morning Margaret is back in the kitchen, making the popular chicken corn soup that is traditionally served for Wednesday's lunch. She says she makes seven 20 to 24-quart kettles of the steaming soup. Later in the morning Edna shows up to make the stuffing and put the chicken in the ovens for the evening meal.

The number of women in the kitchen at one time varies throughout the day. "It seems like it's really a beehive," Edna said.

Working together, the volunteers manage to feed about 250 to 300 people at lunch time and about 525 to 625 people at the evening meal. "That varies depending on the weather," Margaret pointed out.

With that many people coming to eat during two-hour time span that the meals are served, it is inevitable that customers have to wait in line. Sometimes, they wait as long as 45 minutes to sink their teeth into the luscious food that awaits them in the cafeteria-style food line.

"The food must be all right or I gusess they wouldn't stand in line," Edna chuckled.

From time to time, one of the cooks will poke her head out of the kitchen to see how long the line is and to decide if more food will be needed. "You have a big line to start and then you don't catch after," Edna said.

It is almost impossible to avoid standing in line, the women said, because the older people come early and visit with each other before the line opens for service.

Because long lines have been a problem over the years, the food committee has decided to add another cash register this year, so that two cafeteria lines can move through at the same time. They hope, Margaret said, that this will make things move more quickly.

About 200 people can eat at the same time, with some in the dining room and the rest in the engine room, Edna said.

Cooking for a large crowd really isn't much different than cooking for a family, Margaret said. In fact, she prefers to cook for a crowd.

"When you make a little bit more it gets better than when you make a tiny bit," Edna agreed.

Edna and Margaret say they seldom use recipes. "You just kind of go by feel or taste," Edna said, adding, "You get somebody to taste if you've already tasted too many."

However, Edna says she does use a basic recipe for the meatloaf and writes down when things should be put in the oven and at what temperature.

The fire house kitchen is equipped with three large ovens, but they aren't enough to accommodate all the roasts and chickens. The overflow is prepared in 12 big roasters scattered throughout the building.

What's the price for all this very fresh, delicious food? Only about $5.50 if you order everything on the menu, including pie and ice cream for dessert.

Despite the reasonable prices, the fair restaurant is still a good money maker, bringing in almost $4,500 last year. The proceeds go toward improving and maintaining the fairgrounds

By the time the last hungry customer has been served, very little remains except a pile of dirty pots and pans. Edna said they have few leftovers, and what is left is usually sold to the volunteers or at a cleanup auction at the end of the fair.

If you happen to drive by the firehouse on Tuesday and see the lights on at 6 a.m., don't be alarmed. It's just Margaret and Edna in there getting ready for the fair to start on Wednesday.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

A few weeks ago my husband and I drove to nearby Lebanon County to the Annual Harvest Fair at the Schaeffer Farm Museum. The weather was fine and the grounds were crowded with folks who enjoyed seeing antique farm equipment.

The first thing that we saw and heard was a steam engine operating a 100 year-old saw mill. We were told that the large round blade had replaceable teeth. Next we saw oxen pulling a cart and later we saw what was called "log jumping" or log loading. I was glad that I'd taken my camera along when the 20 mule team was driven around the area with a Conestoga wagon. I'm sure that it takes a skilled hand to manage all of those animals.

They made apple cider with steam power, baked bread in an old-fashioned bake oven and threshed grain. In their museum we saw a wooden foot-driven milker using human power to ease the milking chore. This milker was first introduced in 1892. They even had a dog-powered washing machine.

Now I remember my mother's washing machine that was run by me pushing a wooden handle back and forth, back and forth. The automatic washer is one appliance that I'd never want to be without. When I have to wash and wring out by hand manure coated overalls in a bucket of water, before they are even fit for the washer, that is when I really appreciate it. For almost 30 years, I did all of my cooking and baking on a wood-coal stove and that wasn't too bad. But of course, I do really appreciate all the modern kitchen conveniences of today.

To help me remember the fair, I bought two saffron boxes from a craftsman who was working there. The one is made of persimmon wood and the other of mulberry wood. I've managed to find a spot for them in my old corner cupboard.

Poultry Association is busy preparing for Ephrata Fair

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

COLUMBIA — Four hundred and fifty pounds of chickens and 30 dozen eggs will make a lot of chicken corn soup! That's what it takes when the Lancaster County Poultry Association starts thinking about its food stand at the Ephrata Fair.

In what has become a tradition, this marks the eighth year that the Association has been offering fairgoers delicious poultry products. Turkey barbecue, broasted chicken breasts, rondelets and chicken corn soup are the main attractions, but the group also offers fresh fruit cup, homemade cakes, pies and drinks.

When the Association first decided to have a stand at the fair, Vernon Leininger was a member of the Board and he and his wife Allegra headed up the stand. Two years later the Board decided not to have a stand, so Vernon and Allegra continued it themselves, each year turning their profit over to the Poultry Association. Last year the check was for $1,600.

Although the Leiningers have decided to retire from the demanding job, the Association will continue the tradition. Earlier this week members got together at Keagy's butcher shop near Columbia and deboned the chickens, cutting the meat fine for the soup.

There will be six poultry association members at each of the two shifts daily, beginning at 8:45 a.m. and ending around 10 p.m.

There's a lot of work involved, but Poultry Association President Marlin Hershey says they feel it is an excellent way of promoting their products. "We need the promotion. We need the exposure," he says.

Allegra agrees, "I was glad they decided to continue the booth. It has really been a good promotion. It is amazing all the people who know what kind of food you have."

But it's the corn soup which keeps them coming back year after year. Shirley High, who is heading this year's effort with her husband Clair, says, "People say they come back for the soup."

What's the secret to good soup? Allegra says the first year she purchased it ready made from a local company. The next two weeks she made it ahead and froze it, but wasn't completely satisfied with the results. She subsequently cooked the chickens ahead and frozen the broth, then made the soup fresh daily, something Shirley will continue.

Hershey said one reason the booth is at the Ephrata Fair is that it is the largest fair in the county.

So, next week, when you're visiting the Ephrata Fair, and the hungries hit, look around for some delicious chicken products, courtesy of some hard working poultry association members.

TROY — Four Wayne County 4-H members recently participated in the 37th Annual Northeastern Pennsylvania 4-H District Dairy Show held at the Troy Fairgrounds.

The Wayne County 4-H members that exhibited their project animals included: Jay and Nancy Vail, members of the Cold Springs 4-H Ag Club from R3 Honesdale. Jay exhibited his Jersey senior yearling to a fourth place white ribbon and Nancy showed her Jersey intermediate calf to a third place red ribbon. Nancy also showed her Ayrshire three-year-old cow to a first place red ribbon.

Another Wayne County 4-H exhibitor was Tim Rutledge, a member of the Tri-Gal 4-H Club from R1 Equinunk. Tim showed his Holstein intermediate calf to an eleventh place white ribbon.

The fourth Wayne County participant was Craig Reifler, from R2 Waymart and a member of the Kountry Kids 4-H Club. Craig showed his Holstein intermediate calf to a sixteenth place white ribbon.

Type judge for this Northeastern Pennsylvania 4-H District Dairy Show was Obie Snider, a Holstein breeder from Imler, Pa. 4-H Showmanship was judged by Patty Kitchen and 4-H Fitting was judged by Randy Kitchen, both 4-H leaders from Milton, Pa.

A total of 173 4-H dairy project animals were exhibited at this one day show.

The counties that participated in this year's show included: Bradford, Columbia, Luzerne, Wayne, Susquehanna, Sullivan, Potter, Tioga and Wyoming-Lackawanna.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

School's started and the lunch boxes are on the counter again waiting to be filled. Your microwave cooks bar cookies easily and quickly, so why not try it for lunchtime treats.

Individual cookies cook better in your range, unless you are using special microwave recipes. However, most bar cookie recipes can be cooked in your microwave without any changes. Here are some tips for good results, and two of our favorite recipes to help you fill those lunch boxes.

1. Bar cookies and brownies bake well in an 8 x 8" glass or plastic pan if you cook them on medium (50,5) power. If you turn the power down to medium when a recipe calls for high, double the time given for high power.

2. Many recipes, and mixes call for a ring mold or a glass in the middle of the pan. This is necessary if you cook on high power, but you do not need to use this donut shape if you bake on medium power (50,5) instead.

3. Do not grease and flour the container. Some recipes call for greasing a pan, when necessary. Otherwise, no pan preparation is needed.

4. To prevent the corners from overcooking when you bake on high power, shield the corners of a square pan with triangles of aluminum foil. You can do this if you bake on medium too, but usually it's not necessary. When you use foil for shielding, keep the foil 1" or more away from the oven walls, and look through the window to check for arcing (sparks) when you turn the power on.

5. Covering the pan with wax paper will help the cookies bake evenly.

6. Bar cookies are done when the center has raised, and a small damp looking spot remains in the center. If you are using a clear glass pan, check for doneness on the center of the bottom. Very little unbaked batter should appear. Bar cookies will cook a little more during standing time, so don't overcook them. Cookies that are hard or dry are overcooked.

7. Let the pan sit directly on a countertop or bread board for 5-10 minutes standing time to finish cooking.

8. If you are adapting a conventional recipe, try baking the cookies on medium (50,5) for 8-12 minutes, until the center raises, then bake on high for 1-3 minutes until done. Write down the time it takes on your recipe, so you'll know next time.

Fudgy Brownies

1 stick margarine or butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup flour
⅓ cup cocoa
½ teaspoon baking powder
Pinch salt

1. Melt margarine in a medium glass or plastic mixing bowl (Cook 1 minute on high). Stir in sugar, vanilla, and beat in eggs.

2. In a separate bowl combine flour, cocoa, salt and baking powder. Stir into the egg mixture until blended. Pour batter into an 8x8" greased microsafe pan.

3. Cook, covered with wax paper, on medium (50,5) for 10 minutes, turning the pan twice if your oven cooks unevenly.

4. Cook on high for 1-2 minutes. The center of the brownies should be raised up and barely damp. It will dry up and cook a little more during standing time.

5. Let stand directly on a counter or board for 5-10 minutes, then move to a rack to cool. Cool before cutting. Sprinkle top with powdered sugar if desired.

TIP: If your oven doesn't have medium power, shield the corners of the pan, and cook for 5-7 minutes on high.

Raisin Filled Oatmeal Squares

1 cup raisins
¼ cup white sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
⅓ cup water
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup packed brown sugar
1¼ cups flour
2 tablespoons wheat germ, optional
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 cup rolled oats, uncooked
1 stick butter or margarine

1. Mix raisins, white sugar, cornstarch, water and lemon juice in a 4 cup measure or microsafe bowl. Cook on high for 3 minutes, stirring once, until the mixture is hot and bubbly. Set aside.

2. Combine brown sugar, flour, wheat germ, salt, soda and oats in a bowl. Cut in butter until mixture is crumbly. Firmly press half the mixture in the bottom of a greased 8x8" pan.

3. Spread raisin filling over oatmeal layer in pan. Sprinkle remaining oatmeal mixture on top, and pat down gently.

4. Cover with wax paper and bake on medium for 8 minutes, then on high for 1-2 minutes until the center is slightly firm. Cool, and cut into squares.

NOTE: The times above are for ovens with 600-700 watts of power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute.

English IFYE visits Pa. during U.S. trip

WEST CHESTER — Simon Gray, a member of International 4-H Youth Exchange, arrived in Pennsylvania on Aug. 13, to experience American lifestyle and culture through participation.

Gray is a 25-year-old native of England. His home is a farming village where he worked on a 300-acre farm. Gray was a member of the Young Farmers Club for three years and attended the Scarborough 6th Form College for two years.

Gray arrived in the United States in June. After a short orientation program in Washington, D.C. he departed for Washington, his first host state, where he resided until Aug. 3. He had nine free days for travel and sightseeing before his scheduled arrival at Penn State University. From Aug. 13 through Oct. 12, Gray is visiting Bradford, Bucks and Chester counties. He returns to England on Oct. 25 after another ten days of free time and a final three-day consultation program in Maryland.

NEW LISTING

FATHER & SON OR TWO BROS.

Here we have two sets of farm buildings on 233 acres of mostly limestone soil allowing a team of farmers a fantastic opportunity for a good farm experience. There is a large farm house built of limestone and one of brick with an attached 2 car garage. A large farm pond separates the 2 houses.

There are 2 band barns & another barn for a total of 110 freestalls for dairy - if beef is your interest then remove the stalls & you have a nice beef operation. The milking parlor does need updating.

Feed storage is no problem with a 20 x 64 T.H. Poured silo & three trenches #1. 30x124; #2. 40x124; #3. 25x124 and with the type production you can expect off this acreage you will appreciate all that storage.

You will need to call today on this farm located just off Rt. 422 near Womelsdorf, see signs on 422.

Another farm in Cumberland Co. w/120 acres of a mix between mountain soil & shale which would make a very good produce farm since it has 4 ponds for irrigation purposes. Large bank barn w/new siding & 4 bedroom house in Amish Area.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Feed Efficiency

Will you waste feed this winter just because it is cheap? Too often this is what happens. Then those wasteful habits spill over into years when feed is expensive. "Waste not - want not" was an old adage when I was a child. It is still relevant today. Feed waste is one of the main reasons that some dairymen produce milk for 9 or 10 dollars per hundred while others need 18 or 19 dollars.

Feed Waste

Did you know that feed can be wasted by "underfeeding" as well as overfeeding? A farmer who shorts his or her young animals will waste feed because that young animal doesn't grow out to its full potential. In addition, that animal will require more feed when it reaches adult hood, to gain back some of that lost growth. EXAMPLE: dairy calves fed poor quality hay to "fill them up" will be more subject to internal parasites because they soon learn to pick and scrounge. They also grow slower, so reach maturity later, or smaller or both. This results in reduced production or reduced dollars.

Underfeeding also occurs when farmers force low quality, spoiled, off-flavor, or unpalatible feed onto cows. The cow will eat enough to curb her main hunger, but will stop short of eating the amount necessary to do the job. Some farmers feed their animals once a day. They put fresh material on top of the old feed in the trough or bunk. The next day there is more wasted feed as the new feed becomes contaminated with the old feed. I have heard farmers say "I'll leave it there until they clean it up." That really doesn't work with kids either, but they just get upset. Cows reduce milk flow.

Mixing hay with silage can cause feed waste because of palatability problems. Do you like stale or damp crackers? Some farmers say "well, they clean it up by morning." That is probably no criteria. They will eat anything if it is left in front of them long enough. So would you if you were starving. What was the cost in reduced total feed intake (reduced production) incurred because they cleaned up feed they really didn't like.

Take the leftovers from the high group and feed it to the low group or the heifers. What are you giving them? Is it good palatible feed or will they reduce total consumption, which means reducing growth or production or both.

Over Feeding

I am amazed at the number of dairymen, who even by their own DHIA figures, over feed grain to cows. The actual picture is even worse than the DHIA figures look. I found that most dairymen actually feed even more grain than their DHIA records show. How much do you feed - 1 to 3 or 1 to 4. It appears to me that many dairymen are feeding a 1 to 2 or less. Cows are ruminants and should be able to produce a lot of their milk on forage. Actually, what happens in many herds is that the high producing cows do just that. THe low producers are the ones who mess up the average. EXAMPLE: I visited a herd where every cow got 1 pound of gain for three pounds of milk. Unfortunately, every cow did not eat 1 pound of grain per 3 pounds of milk. Cow A was producing 70 pounds of milk. She was fed 4 pounds of grain twice a day. Cow B stole part of Cow A's feed. A reasonable estimate was that she ate 2 pounds per feeding. End result was: waste #1 - Cow A was being fed 1 pound of grain for 3.5 pounds of milk. The lost 4 pounds of grain represented 9 pounds of lost milk. Waste #2 - Cow B was being fed 1 pound of grain for 1 pound of milk. Total lost dollars was nearly 2 dollars per day.

Silo Filling Time - The Way It Was

With the field harvesters humming all around me, I can't help recalling how silo filling has changed. Just like The Old Gray Mare, 'She Ain't Like She Used to Be'.

There were six farms in our little valley along the Yellow Breeches Creek in York County. Each farm had one silo, and there was only one silo filling outfit in the whole community, so silo filling became a community project.

The week after Labor Day, the old grindstone was oiled up to sharpen everyone's favorite corn chopper. Some choppers had the blade riveted on the wooden handle at a 45 degree angle, some were smooth and some were serrated on the cutting edge. A few fellows liked the long machete-like knives with a hook at the end, and others used a large butcher knife to cut corn. Everybody had a favorite hand chopper.

The silo filling rig was a combination cutter and blower, which had to be set up at the silo The blower pipe had to be moved from silo to silo and set up in sections to fit the height. The 'goose neck' attached to the top section of pipe supported a series of telescoping buckets extending down the inside of the silo, which we referred to as the 'down pipes'. This was to aid in distributing the silage as it was tramped and packed during filling There was always a 'packer' inside, preferably someone who weighed at least 200 pounds, to hasten settling.

The whole operation of setting up the pipe was a hair raising affair. It was my job to climb a ladder on the outside of the silo to pass a rope through the pulley attached to a hoop near the top. The best ladder in the neighborhood was a forty foot wooden extension job with several rungs missing and one or two others tied on with binder twine. As if that wasn't bad enough, the extension rope was eight feet short, making it necessary to climb eight rungs and push the top section by hand to its maximum height. Every push snagged on a silo hoop and required the acrobat on the ladder to jump the whole ladder and push at the same time, so it would clear and go to the next snag. It was with great fear and many prayers that I finally reached the top and secured the ladder with a bit of rusty wire Then the real terror of heisting the long pipe and securing it with more rusty wires began

Dairy Business

None of the silos in our neighborhood had a trustworthy roof The only way to support the weight of the distributor pipe was to jerry-rig a two by four truss across the top of the silo and chain the pipe to that. The whole operation had to be done while holding on for dear life with one leg curled around the top rung of the ladder while enduring the insults and jibes of the fatheads on the ground, who wouldn't have climbed up there themselves for any pay. It seemed like Heaven when I finally climbed down and stood on solid ground.

About 7 a.m. the old Fordson tractor was cranked, with much grunting and cussing, and the first load of hand cut corn pulled up to the cutter. The teams were pretty skittish at the noise of the tractor and slapping of the belt. But after a couple of loads, they calmed down and were glad to rest while the driver unloaded the corn, a handful of stalks at a time, and fed it into the chopper.

The usual crew consisted of five teamsters, six men to cut corn and four to help pick it up and load the wagons. One man stood by the chopper to regulate the flow so the pipe didn't clog A tramper in the silo and an extra floater to fill in wherever needed completed the crew.

The very best part of the whole process was the noon break Teams were unhitched and temporarily housed in the cow stable with a rack full of timothy hay and a pan of oats and six ears of corn. Then the crew gathered around the pump in the front yard and lathered up with tar soap in preparation for the feast.

And a real feast it was. Every cook prepared her specialties, and in super abundance. My mother's was fried chicken, ham, sweet potatoes and lima beans Ellie Pentz always made chilled rice with bananas plus the regular goodies. Dinner always ended with pie; apple, peach, cherry or raisin.

By evening the silo was full and the rig torn down to be moved to the next farm. Guess who was elected to climb the rickety ladder and repeat the terror of setting up the pipe!

But I have to admit that the joy of working and eating together with the whole community far overshadows the hard work and fear of climbing. Community silo filling marked the high point of the year, and something was lost forever when we no longer banded together to do the hard jobs

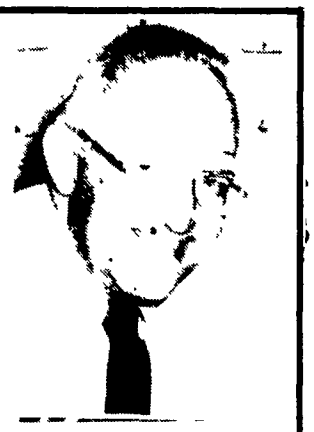
The Milk Check



TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

A Trickle Starts

September 17, 1984 - The effects of decreases in milk production and increases in commercial demand in recent months have now begun to trickle down into farmer's milk checks The one and two cent increases in the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series from April to June have now increased to 12 cents in July and 23 cents in August, pushing the M-W to $12.30 which is the highest since last November. However that August M-W price won't show up at the farm until October's check, so you can be sure of even more increases this fall. Of course, the price that pays the bills is the uniform or blend price that is paid to producers shipping to regulated handlers, and for August milk it was $13 39 in Order 2 That was 55 cents more than July and $1 10 more than June but, while there was improvement in the market, it wasn't quite that good. You have to remember that during that period you changed from paying into the Louisville Plan fund, to taking out of the fund. In June you paid 40 cents a hundred; in July there was nothing in or out, and in August you got back 36 cents from the fund. However, if you omit the effects of the Louisville Plan, your price at the farm still improved 26 cents since June compared to a drop of 33 cents from January to May.

Certainly the season of the year makes a difference in these price changes and we normally expect higher prices in the fall than in the spring, but even when we compare them to the same June to August period of a year ago we're still doing a little better. That's why I said a "trickle" has started because from all accounts of what you hear from falling production and increasing sales you might have expected too much too soon. Certainly there will be more improvement in the months ahead, but keep your eye on the M-W price each month because that's the mover for class prices in all Federal Orders. After that your price is determined largely by how much is sold as Class I for fluid use and how much goes to Class II or manufacturing uses.

Still In The Woods

Things are looking up in milk marketing but you're still not out of the woods back at the farm. There is improvement over last year, and hopefully it will continue into next year. The Class I price in August was 41 cents below last year and Class II was down 18 cents, but in spite of this your blend price was down only 18 cents. This should tell you something about the higher Class I utilization which came from a 2.8 per cent increase in fluid sales but, more importantly, a five per cent drop in milk receipts by Order 2 handlers. This pushed the Class I utilization for August to 40.6 per cent, which was the highest for the month since 1980.

Future Uncertain

Nationally, we're getting more price BANG from increasing commercial demand than decreasing production and eventually this will get down to local producers through the M-W price, but right now in the northeast we seem to be getting higher prices from decreasing production than from increased sales Decreasing production is expected to continue through the winter, but not at a rate to give us better farm prices if we depend on that alone. Even this trend to lower production could be reversed very quickly with higher milk prices and lower grain prices. More importantly, I believe, is the demand pull from increasing commercial sales and how long that can be maintained through the winter and into next year. That's what makes the immediate future uncertain even before we get to the question of what happens when the Diversion Program ends next spring.

We have come to give most of the credit for the increasing demand on improved economic conditions nationally This would include less unemployment, better wages, stable or lower interest rates and a few more things you could think of We also give some credit for increased demand to the lower prices of dairy products when compared to other foods at the retail level The question then is how long can these factors continue to improve? If something happens to the general economy, such as an auto workers' strike or lay offs in basic industries like steel or mining, we could be in trouble with dairy sales Of course, if you have faith in Reaganomics you may not feel that this is a problem If dairy products are a retail bargain, even this may not last with decreasing supplies, particularly for fluid milk and soft products Butter and cheese prices can't rise much more until government stocks are sold

It's also a fact that there is not one supply demand situation for the entire dairy industry There are separate and different situations at each level in the marketing chain from producer to consumer and from one geographic area to another. Most of the recent demand increase has come at the wholesale level of the industry and that can't last unless more is "consumed" at retail. We also know that production has dropped more in the southeast region and they're "demanding" more milk from other areas, but how long will that last until southeast producers start to meet their market needs?

Much of the hope for answers to all these questions lies in the increased advertising and promotion programs, but these take time to work and the results may not be the same in all markets.

Thanks, Hoard's Dairyman

I don't mind when producers take out their frustrations on me, privately or publicly, when they feel that the problems of the dairy industry are caused by Congress; consumers; USDA; handlers; coops (members or non members); other regions; milk quality; advertising (or lack of it); or any other place they choose to put the blame, but when they give it to Extension I get up-tight because I'm one of them. Of course, I'm not the only Extension agent that gets this. Anyone working on dairy programs has heard it. While it's no problem to defend Extension programs, the answers are often considered biased when made by an Extension agent. So that's why I would like you to read the editorial on page 1024 of the September 10 issue of Hoard's Dairyman (the one with the bull list) titled "Some would rule out Extension programs." If you don't have a copy I'll send you one if you request it through your county Extension agent.

Bucks County crowns Holstein Show champs

WRIGHTSTOWN — Ninety-six head of dairy cattle recently competed in the Bucks County Holstein Show at the Middletown Grange Fairgrounds, Wrightstown, judged by Leroy Plance, of Wellsboro.

Grand champion of the show was the first-place aged cow showed by Harry and Ailene Thompson - an Elevation daughter which had the best udder in her class.

The reserve grand championship also went to the Thompson's with their first-place four-year-old, a Pete daughter with the best udder of the show.

Premier Breeder banner was won by the Thompson's and the Premier Exhibitor was the David R. Walton family.

Woodland session on Saturday

LANCASTER — Do you own woodlands? Can they be made more attractive to wildlife? What about harvesting - what kinds of trees should be harvested and when? How much is timber worth and what kinds of things should be considered before selling your timber?

At some point in time, most landowners seek answers to these kinds of questions. Unfortunately, the answers are not always easy to find. However, woodland owners in southeastern Pennsylvania will be able to find answers to these and other questions at the Woodland Owners Conference scheduled for next Saturday, Sept. 29, at the Holiday Inn, Ephrata. The conference is being sponsored by the Conservation District, several other area Conservation Districts, and the Pennsylvania Forestry Association.

Subjects which will be discussed include: forest management practices for timber production and improved wildlife habitat: how to sell timber; factors that determine the value of standing timber; where to find forestry assistance; gypsy moth problems and more.

The program will begin at 9:15 a.m., with final registration and coffee and donuts available from 8:30 a.m. on. A buffet lunch will be served at noon, and since space is limited, it will be necessary to register in advance for this event. Registration cost is $12.00 per person, $9.00 for each additional Family member. This fee includes the buffet lunch, coffee and donuts and a Woodland Owners Information Package.

At this price, the Southeastern Pennsylvania Woodland Owners Conference is an opportunity that every landowner can take advantage of, and a small investment that will repay itself many times over in income, knowledge and satisfaction of woodland ownership.

Registration forms and further information is available from the Conservation District office, county Extension office and also by calling or writing to the Pennsylvania Forestry Association, 410 E. Main Street, Mechanicsburg, Penna. 17055; 717/766-5371.

Space is limited so don't delay, register as soon as possible. Registration will be open as long as space is available.

Pole building handbook cited

NEWARK, Del. — If you're ready to build a barn or shed but don't have the confidence to attempt your own design, the newly revised "Pole and Post Buildings Handbook" is just what you need, says University of Delaware extension agricultural engineer James Scarborough.

In pole or post construction, round or rectangular posts embedded in the ground become the foundation and support for your structure. It's generally the easiest, fastest, and least expensive construction method, Scarborough says. Even the building site requires little preparation before construction starts.

Often used for storage or animal housing, this versatile construction method can also be used for wood decks, boat shelters, cabins, warehouses, and even aircraft hangars.

The "Pole and Post Buildings Handbook," published by the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service, has sections on site selection, framing and roofing materials, wood treatments, roof trusses, doors, skylights, and other basic information necessary to a designer.

The section on building design is presented in a straightforward manner, Scarborough says, with heavy emphasis on using tables to find the sizes of poles, girts, purlins and other framing members. The publication also explains how to allow for snow and wind load, and how to compensate for sloping sites.

Once you've completed your design, you are ready for the construction phase. The handbook is equally straightforward in explaining this element of the process. Scarborough says the step-by-step instructions are simple enough for a novice to attempt without fear.

Also included in the handbook are several U.S. Department of Agriculture plans reduced to booklet size, including designs for a two-stall horse barn, a large, general purpose pole barn, a two-car garage, and others.

Farmers, builders and do-it-yourselfers should find the handbook a valuable reference, Scarborough says. It is available for $3.50. Send a check, payable to the University of Delaware, to Extension Agricultural Enginerr-Plan Service, 058 Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717-1303.

York meeting on Oct. 12

YORK — The annual meeting of the York County Farmers' Association will be held Oct. 12, at the Airville Fire Hall. Price of dinner tickets is $6.00 each.

Purpose of the session is to elect officers and adopt policies for the general farm organization, which has 720 farm family members.

A film, "Cheaspeake Horizons" will also be shown.

The farm group has been actively gathering policy suggestions from it's membership, which will be submitted to the total membership for it's consideration. Once policies are adopted they remain in force for one year.

Persons interested in dinner tickets should contact any member of the board or President Ellis Crowl, (862-3955).

RAUSE DISCS ARE BETTER

Krause Rockflex Discs Are Unequalled In The Field

COMPARE

TIE RODS AND SPOOLS

Alloy steel tie rods are 1¾" in diameter on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty). There's a nut on both ends for easy servicing. Krause spools are ductile iron and weigh 20-30 lbs. each. Precision machined with large diameter bells to fit snug against disc blade. SPOOLS ARE KRAUSE MADE.

COMPARE

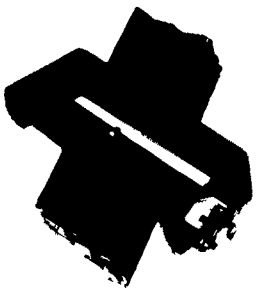
FRAMES
Engineered of super strength steel tubing with cross braces and gussets at major stress points.

WING HINGES
Krause uses big 1¾" diameter bolts on HD units (1½" on medium duty) with over 10" of wear surface area.



We have over 500 rockflex discs in the fields of PA, MD, NJ and DE. These Krause owners continue to prove daily that the Krause disc levels and cuts better than any other disc they've ever owned.

COMPARE

"ROCKFLEX" BEARING ARMS

Krause invented the Rockflex" arm in 1965. This C-shaped arm flexes over obstacles. It helps protect disc blades and spools from breakage.

Owners were asked, "Would you buy another Deutz-Fahr tractor?"

88% said "Yes!"

1982 survey tells how our owners feel.

Early in 1982, Deutz Corporation mailed a two-page questionnaire to 1980 purchasers of Deutz-Fahr tractors A total of 617 surveys were returned from 29 eastern and central U S states A primary question — "Would you buy another Deutz-Fahr tractor?" — was answered with a resounding 88% "Yes!" In addition, many owners wrote comments on their survey forms, some of which are highlighted in this folder Most owners had logged between 500 and 1,000 hours on their 1980 tractor by the time they responded to this survey

OWNER COMMENTS:

Niagara County, N.Y., DX 90 (2WD)
"We needed a tractor to haul two + loads of manure per day, 365 days a year, also to grind 4-5 batches of feed per week, baling, tillage . our DX 90 even started at 30°F

Clark County, Mo., DX 140 (2WD)
"Its main purpose was to have been the 'main horse,' to do all the heavy work, but it has been perfect for everything I wouldn't buy anything but a Deutz "

Madison County, Ohio, D 4506 (2WD)
"This is our second Deutz and when we trade, we expect it will be for another Deutz

Coshocton County, Ohio, DX 90 (2WD)
"I have had no repairs and very little expense I like the tractor better every time I use it "

Green County, Wis., DX 110 (2WD)
"We feel you make an outstanding cab and hope you don't cheapen it like the other companies have "

Benton County, Iowa, D 6206 (AWD)
"The all-wheel-drive feature for a loader tractor is super "

Baxter County, Ark., D 4506 (2WD)
"After comparing many models and makes, I found the Deutz was built like a Mercedes — an air-cooled engine is a plus."

It's "SIMPLE ECONOMICS"
See your Deutz-Fahr dealer for a tractor that also saves you money after you own it.

Vermeer 605 BALER

Vermeer can help you spend less time in the field. After corn harvest the Vermeer 605 and 504 Series Balers can turn that corn fodder into a package that is easy to handle and move. Solid and weather-tight the Vermeer round bale keeps its shape better than any other round bale package in the field today. And the best part, it's the most competitively priced baler in the industry.

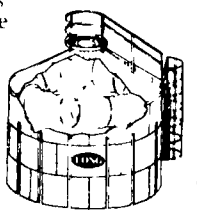
LONG'S CORRUGLASS™ BINS FOR HIGH MOISTURE GRAIN STORAGE

Long incorporates the strength of corrugated steel with the protective coating of glass to produce the most affordable, glass lined oxygen limiting storage system for high moisture grain that you can buy This feed system allows livestock growers to carry more animals on the same number of acres

OXYGEN LIMITING BREATHER SYSTEM PROTECTS FEED AND CONTROLS THE FERMENTATION PROCESS



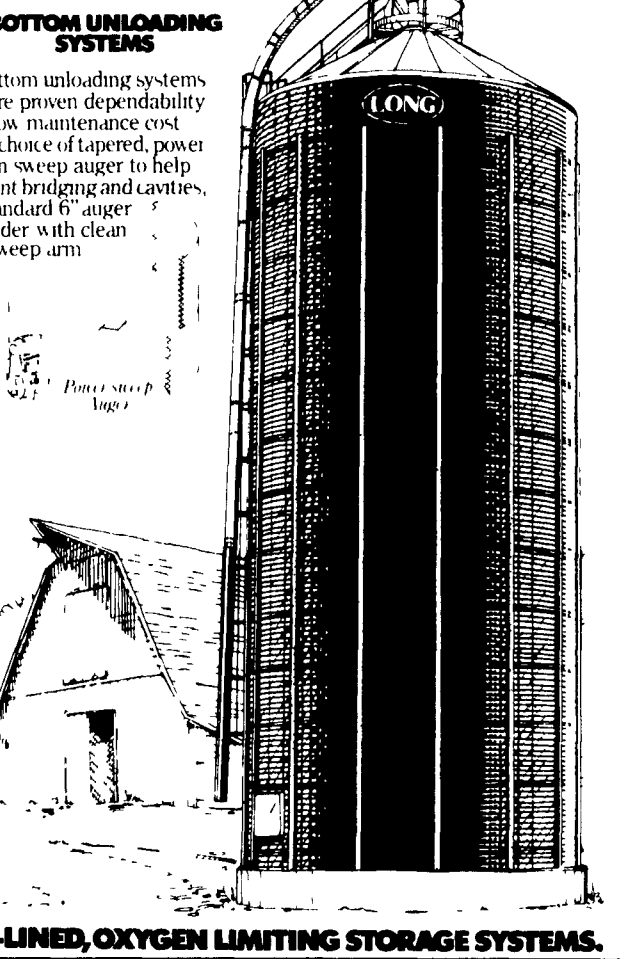
Breather bags suspended in the roof of the bin provide an oxygen limiting environment for the feed This oxygen limiting feature controls the amount of fermentation that takes place within the bin Feed stays fresh longer feed losses are cut – both quality and quantity and the need for drying equipment and heater fuel is eliminated

HIGH MOISTURE GRAIN IS MORE DIGESTIBLE, MORE PALATABLE, AND MORE NUTRITIOUS

The controlled fermentation process helps livestock to utilize more of the nutrients available in the feed The high moisture feed also tastes better and helps to obtain greater milk production and weight gain at a more economical cost

BOTTOM UNLOADING SYSTEMS

Bottom unloading systems feature proven dependability and low maintenance cost Your choice of tapered, power driven sweep auger to help prevent bridging and cavities, or standard 6" auger unloader with clean out sweep arm



OTHER FEATURES

Glass fused to steel wall and roof panels for maximum protection

Corrugated, glass fused to steel wall sheets with exterior stiffeners provide extra strength

Radius drawn roof with 30 5 degree pitch offers extra strength against snow build up

5 GRAIN EQUIPMENT

It Pays to Store Your Grain*

* Grain prices have consistently been higher in the spring than at harvest—as much as 50% higher! So, why not take advantage of on-the-farm storage and help improve your grain profits?

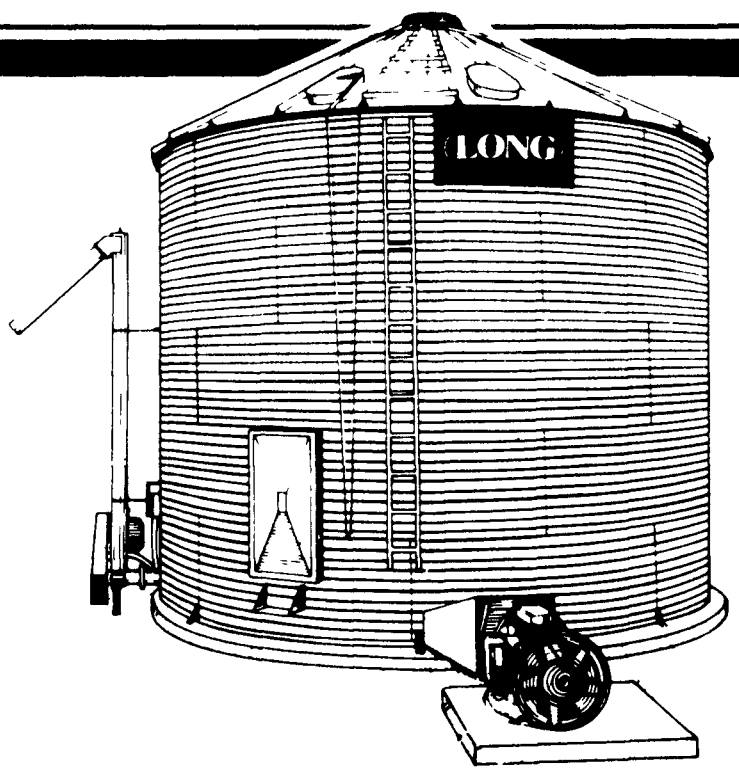
Dry And Store Your Grain Economically, The LONG Way!

Sizes range from 15' to 90' diameters.

Capacities range from 1,350 to 300,000 bushels.



Long's drying and storage bins are the most advanced of all. They're made of strong structural steel. A new 30° sloped roof has overlapping and interlocking panels with high ribs for strength—they fit tight and are easy to assemble. Forty-four inch wide wall sheets make assembly faster and easier. The bottom ring has a sealing flange which eliminates the need for a separate foundation ring.

There are many more features that make LONG bins outstanding; stop in and ask us for more details!

Lambs neck-and-neck at Indiana 4-H sale

BY BETH NESBIT
Staff Correspondent

INDIANA — The 22nd annual Indiana county 4-H livestock sale was held Friday, Aug. 31, in the swine show ring at the Indiana fairgrounds. This event culminated many months of hard work.

To many 4-H'ers the evening was joyful as well as sad. After a 4-H member has spent months preparing a project, it gives him a sense of satisfaction when he shakes the buyer's hand in appreciation. But a feeling of sadness surges through this 4-H'ers veins when his "best friend" of the past few months is loaded on a truck on its way to market.

Luther Elkin Concrete was the top bidder for the 1255-pound grand champion steer at $3.10 per pound. Roy Shearer, Avonmore was the owner.

The reserve grand champion steer, owned by Stacey Fyock, Penn Run weighed in at 1190 pounds. Indiana Shop-N-Save paid $2.70 per pound for the fine quality animal.

Kathy Bishop, Homer City, sold her grand champion Suffolk lamb to Luther Elkin Concrete. Kathy's 120 pound lamb was purchased for $9.50 per pound, for a total of $1140. Luther Ford Sales, Homer City, was the successful bidder for the reserve grand champion lamb that went for $9.25, only twenty-five cents less than the grand champion. This 112 pound reserve champion Suffolk lamb was owned by Tom Decker, an Future Farmer of American member from Penn Run.

The average sale price of the lambs was $1.64 a pound. Those in attendance at the sale watched a total of 38 fine quality lambs sold.

D.W. Patterson, Indiana, purchased the grand champion crossbreed hog for $4.75 per pound The 240-pound hog was owned by Kathy Bishop, who was also the owner of the champion sheep. Kathy is the daughter of Robert and Delores Bishop.

The reserve grand champion owned by Linda Winebark of Rochester Mills sold for $5.50 per pound to Joe Defelice's Family Style Restaurant of Punxsutawney.

A total of 99 hogs were sold at the annual sale with an average of 99 cents.

Molds and Mycotoxins

Depressed feed intake, below-normal growth rate, poor feed efficiency, low milk production, prolapsed rectums, abortions — these are just a few of the problems associated with moldy feed. If you're lucky enough to see one of the obvious signs, like an aborted litter, you'll know something isn't right. But if your herd is experiencing slow growth rates or inefficient feed conversions, you may be the last to know that these molds are eating away at your profit potential.

What kinds of mold can lead to problems in a swine herd? Before I answer that, remember — the mold itself is not the problem. The mycotoxins produced by the molds are the real culprits. And whether or not they develop will depend on environmental conditions.

Here's a list of the molds and their respective mycotoxins that can be an aggravation to the hog producer.

Fusarium roseum. This is usually referred to as Fusarium or Giberella. It grows on virtually all cereal grains, but is especially found on corn after a wet harvest season. Fusarium produces several toxins, but the two that seem to cause the most damage for hog farmers are zearalenone and vomitoxin (deoxynivalenol). One can be present with the other.

Zearalenone has a structure similar to estradiol, the female sex hormone. And it's the "estrogenic" properties of this mycotoxin that can lead to abortions, stillbirths, or swelling of the vulva or teats. You can often spot zearalenone contamination by watching young gilts closely. If the feed contains as little as five ppm of zearalenone, most or all of them will have red valvas, swollen two to three times normal size, as well as an enlarged underline. In other words, they look like they're in heat, even though they may weigh only 75 pounds.

Zearalenone also reportedly irritates the lining of the rectum. This leads to straining and eventual prolapse or "blow-out" of the rectum.

Vomitoxin, the other major Fusarium mycotoxin, causes feed refusal in pigs. When vomitoxin is present, they'll often stand in front of the feeder and squeal, rather than eat out of it. I've observed pigs doing this when the feed contained only 100 pounds of contaminated corn per ton. If enough vomitoxin is consumed, vomiting will follow. But the pigs are more likely to just go hungry.

The odd thing about Fusarium is that the affected corn looks normal. You could send a sample to the lab to confirm the presence of mycotoxins. But when your sows are aborting, young gilts have swollen vulvas and your market hogs are squealing at you when the feeders are full you have all the evidence you need.

What can you do about it? With this mold, dilution is your only alternative. Find some mold-free corn or other feed grain to mix with the contaminated grain and hope for the best. Sometimes it takes a stiff dilution to get things back to normal. And if at all possible, avoid feeding moldy corn to sows and replacement gilts.

Aspergillus flavus. This is the mold that produces aflatoxin, a nasty compound that poisons the liver. Drought induced stress, inadequate nitrogen, delayed harvest and physical damage make conditions right for Aspergillus invasion of grain in the field. Improper drying and storage will add to the problem.

Problems in pigs begin when aflatoxin levels approach 500 parts per billion. Some common effects of aflatoxin poisoning include poor growth rates and feed conversions, impaired blood clotting, altered immune response, depressed vitamin A and E levels, impaired kidney function. . the list goes on and on. Fortunately, Aspergillus doesn't strike that often and most problems are limited to the Southeast

A blacklight test is often used to screen for aflatoxin. This procedure is the best method we've got, but is has several drawbacks. First, the greenish-yellow flourescence it produces indicates the presence of the Aspergillus, not aflatoxin. Also, numerous weed seeds, corn "bees wings", and soybean hulls can contribute to false readings.

Ammonia treatment appears to be the only effective means of removing aflatoxin from grain. Organic acids don't seem to help. And normal heating associated with drying or pelleting has no effect on the toxin.

Claviceps paspali. This is the mold that produces ergot and is most often associated with rye. Ergot contamination in swine feed will depress feed intake, growth rate, milk production and feed conversion. It can also lead to abortions. Since rye often contains ergot, and because it's not easily digested by pigs anyway, swine producers rarely feed this grain.

Mold Growth on Complete Feeds. As soon as you grind, roll or crack a feed grain, you open the door to mold growth. The longer that feed sits in the bin, especially through the summer, the greater the chance of mold growth. Ideally, after mixing, feed should be consumed within two weeks. If you have feed sitting around for more than a month, give serious consideration to rescheduling feed orders.

Is there anything you can do to retard the growth of molds on complete feeds? Texas Tech researchers recently reported that "Mold Check Plus", a product containing several organic acids, improves feed intake (five percent) and growth rate (six percent) in 16 pound weanling pigs. And work from Leeds University in England shows faster weight gains with the addition of citric acid in 10-day-old weanling diets. So there may soon be a place for mold inhibitors in swine rations.

In summary, moldy feed will seldom go through a pig without causing some kind of a problem. The signs may be obvious or they may go unnoticed. The secret is to keep your eyes on your pigs and their performance. Be aware of the weather and storage conditions that contribute to mold growth. Early detection of mycotoxin contamination can save you a lot of dollars.

Select Sires adds bulls

PLAIN CITY, OHIO — Select Sires has acquired two outstanding young bulls from Pennsylvania. Based on their superior pedigrees, Penn-England Murdock-ET and Browncroft J S Challenger have been chosen as two of 130 Holstein bulls from throughout the United States to enter Select Sires Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) sire sampling system in 1984.

Penn-England Murdock-ET comes from breeder Fred England of Williamsburg. The dam of this bull calf is Clover-Will Starlite Marge 326, a Very Good (86) Roybrook Starlite daughter with high test. Her first record at 1-10 is 18,670M 845F 4.5% in 454 days. Three consecutive lactations have produced over 22,500M and 1,000F. Her best record is 29,160M 1,195F 4.7% in 365 days, with a lifetime test average of 4.6%. The grandam is Clover-Will Standout Marge (VG-88) with records to 19,820M, all being 4.0% or higher. The sire of this PGA calf is Hilliana Valedictorian, a triple plus Arlinda Chief son.

The second young Pennsylvania bull calf is Browncroft J S Challenger bred by William J Brown of Rome. His dam is Browncroft King Jet Flop-Twin (VG-87). An Arlinda Jet Stream daughter, she made over 21,500M as a two-year-old. Being twice over 1,000F, her best record is 31,408M 1,120F 3.5% in 356 days. The grandam is Browncroft Dolly Kingpin (VG-85) also twice over 1,000F. She has a best record of 27,790M 4.3% 1,203F in 365 days.

Hershey hosts Red Power Days

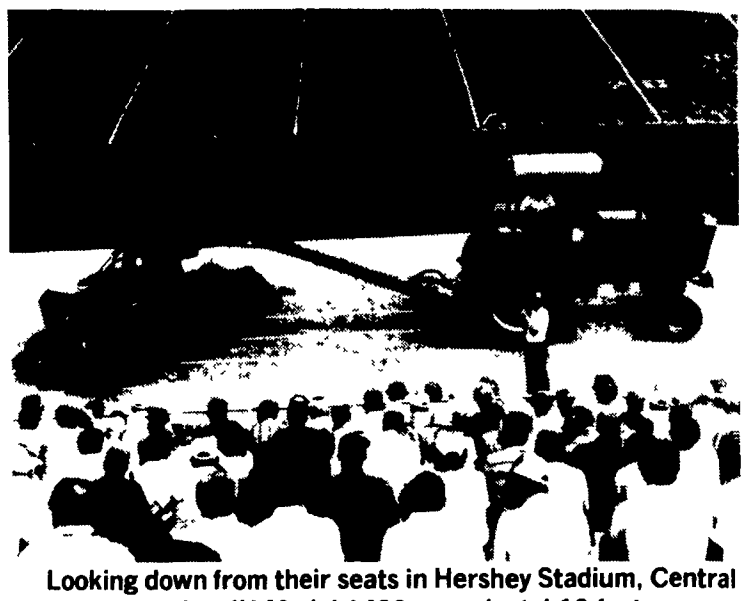
HERSHEY — With clear, autumnal skies and a refreshing breeze, the Central Pennsylvania International Harvester Red Power Progress Days got underway mid-morning on Sept. 13 at the Hershey Stadium.

Twenty-five pieces of the well-known red equipment, including 15 different tractor models, and the new Super 70 series were displayed and demonstrated at the annual event, sponsored by the following dealers: C and W equipment, Carlisle; R.S. Hollinger and Son, Mountville; Messick Farm Equipment, Elizabethtown; C.B. Hoover and Son, Intercourse; Erb and Henry Inc., New Berlinville; Mifflinburg Farm Supply, Mifflinburg; Inch Equipment, McAllister; Eckroth Bros., New Ringgold; and Swope and Bashore Inc., Frystown.

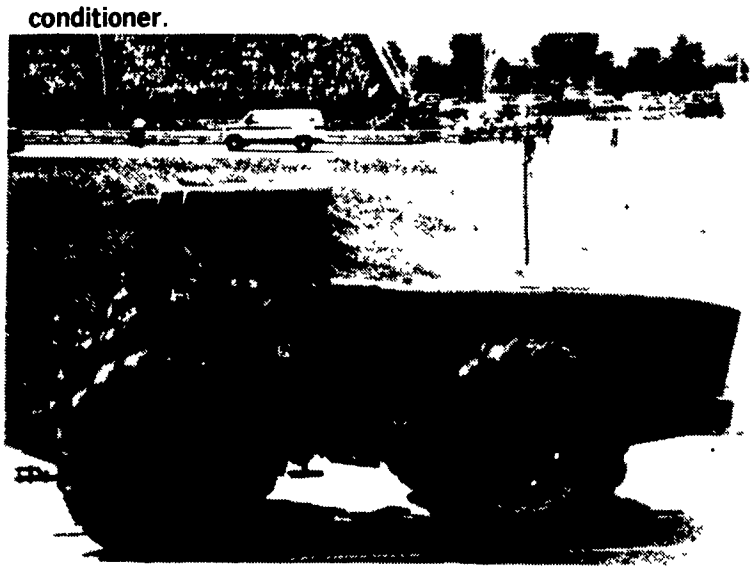
An estimated 700 people attended, with lunch served at noontime.

An entertaining and informative skit was performed immediately after the meal by Service Manager Ed Skeele.

After the product presentations, farmers were encouraged to test drive the machines in a designated area near the stadium.



Looking down from their seats in Hershey Stadium, Central Pa. farmers view IH Model 1490 — a pivotal 12-foot mower-conditioner.



One of the stars of Red Power Progress Days at Hershey Stadium was the IH Super 70 Series tractors, which are scheduled to be on dealer lots later this fall.

Hesston offers new loaders

HESSTON, Kan. — Hesston Corporation now offers four heavy-duty front-end loader models specifically designed for the company's new 66 and 90 Series two- and four-wheel drive tractors. These Models L330, L350, L350H and L370 feature low-profile design and fast, easy hookup.

All have rugged industrial-strength frames with durable seamless-steel hydraulic lines located inside the frames for excellent protection. The loader frames are designed to distribute loads and stress evenly over the tractor's monoblock mainframe. And the new low-profile configuration affords maximum visibility from the operator platform or cab.

Each comes with a standard parking stand and employs a quick-attach design to permit drive-in/drive-out mounting or unmounting in just minutes. The new loaders also perform with faster cycle times to increase productivity.

The Model L330 has been designed to fit Hesston tractor Models 55-66, 60-66, 70-66, 80-66 (45 to 70 hp) and 60-90 (62 hp). The L350 is built for the 70-90 (62 hp) and 80-90 (71 hp) tractor models while both the L350 or L350H loaders will fit 90-90 (81 hp) and 100-90 (91 hp) tractors. The model L370 has been designed for over-100 hp tractors — the Models 130-90, 140-90, 160-90 and 180-90 (107-162 hp). The new front-end loaders also fit all of the old tractor models.

A wide selection of attachments are available for use with Hesston loaders, including material buckets, tine kits, forklift attachments, spill guards, a snow bucket and hay grapple fork, manure fork, bucket level indicators, dirt or dozer blades and PSA brackets for quick hookup of attachments.

Humane cites calf hutch

BARABOO, Wisc. — Humane Equipment Co. has announced the addition of a lightweight, economical calf hutch to its barn equipment line. Constructed with an easily assembled galvanized steel tube frame, the hutch features an industrial type rip-proof, polyethenlene fabric cover that is moisture-proof, rot-proof, resists UV light breakdown, and will stand up to all types of weather including high winds.

The hutch is equipped with a translucent cover that is warmer in the winter and is available with an optional reflective slip cover for summer use. The non-porous, non-toxic covers are sanitary because they won't absorb germs or manure acids and are easy to clean.

The hutch measures 45" wide x 70" long and 48" high. It is secured in place by four "U" anchor stakes. It can be quickly and easily set up in minutes, easily moved, or stacked for storage when not in use. Since the unit only weighs 44 lbs., it can be shipped by UPS.

New system 'blasts' fertilizer into soil

PARSIPPANY, N.J. — A new system that bands liquid fertilizer beneath the soil surface without using knives or tillage tools has been developed by Arcadian Corporation (formerly the agricultural products group of Allied Chemical).

Known as Nutri-Blast 2000, the unique system uses 2,000 pounds of pressure to "blast" liquid fertilizer through crop stubble and into soil.

"With Nutri-Blast 2000, farmers can take advantage of subsurface banding — a proven method of increasing fertilizer efficiency — without compromising on the principles of no-till farming," says John Clapp, manager of product development of Arcadian.

Nutri-Blast 2000 enhances fertilizer efficiency by minimizing fertilizer contact with crop residues and large volumes of soil, explains Clapp. And because fertilizer is placed beneath the soil surface, no urea is lost to ammonia volatilization, a common problem when urea-containing fertilizers are left on the soil surface or topdressed on small grains or grasses.

At the same time, Nutri-Blast 2000 eliminates the need for tillage during fertilizer application, continues Clapp. This makes the Nutri-Blast system more energy efficient than systems employing undercutter blades, knives, disk openers and similar equipment. What's more, with Nutri-Blast 2000 there is little or no risk of damaging the crop's root system, a common occurence when fertilizer is knifed between rows.

Already no-till test plots comparing Nutri-Blast 2000 with conventional surface-band applications have shown that Nutri-Blast produced nearly 20 bushels more corn per acre — 17 percent increase. Currently, a half dozen land-grant colleges throughout the country are using Nutri-Blast 2000 in field trials.

Having applied for a patent on the application concept and design of Nutri-Blast 2000, Arcadian has recently reached an agreement with John Blue Company to produce and market the new system.

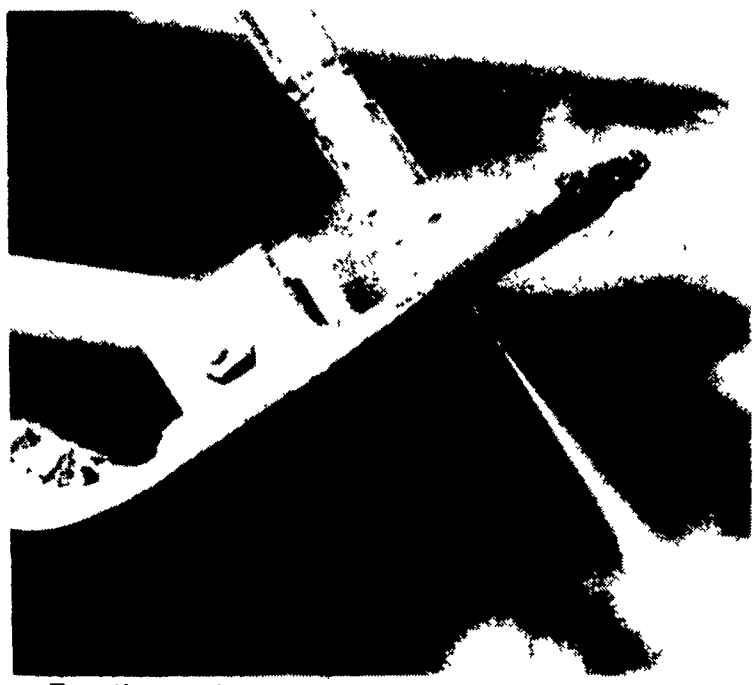
John Blue will make Nutri-Blast 2000 available in three models. One can be directly attached to a tractor using a three-point hitch, while a second has been designed for use with no-till planters and grain drills. The third model is a caddy unit capable of pulling implements.

The three models will be equipped with a variable displacement pump and a rotary valve that injects liquid fertilizer into the soil for more efficient use of plant food. John Blue has applied for patents on the pump and valve, and expects to have the entire Nutri-Blast system commercially available by February 1985.

In addition to injecting liquid fertilizer, the Nutri-Blast system also can be used for application of insecticides and fungicides, either separately or in combination with fertilizer.

Because the Nutri-Blast system requires very small orifices to create enough pressure to blast fertilizer through stubble and beneath the soil surface, it is recommended that only high-quality, clear-liquid fertilizers, for example Uran nitrogen solution, Suran nitrogen-sulfur solution and Poly-N ammoniated polyphosphate solution, be used. Low-quality fertilizer solutions, suspensions and other fertilizers containing impurities can plug or erode orifices.

The Nutri-Blast 2000 concept was originally designed with conservation-tillage farming in mind, however, experience indicates that the system will have broad application in all agricultural areas.



Two thousand pounds of pressure send a jet of liquid fertilizer through a Ntri-Blast shoe (raised here for photo).

Agway names energy unit

SYRACUSE, NY — Officials of the Agway Petroleum Corporation, one of the largest independent petroleum companies operating in the Northeast, announced today that the company will be marketing its products and services as Agway Energy Products.

Robert J. Kutil, company president, explained that the change is designed to more accurately reflect the activities of the company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Agway Inc.

Kutil said that the scope of the company's business had broadened rapidly so that the term "petroleum" did not adequately "represent the type of business we are in, nor the expanded services which we can provide throughout the nine-state area in which we operate."

According to Kutil, part of the motivation for the name change is the rapid growth of propane gas sales. "Agway Energy Products," he said, "is one of the top 20 propane gas marketers in the United States today, and we operate in only a nine-state marketing area. We are positioning ourselves to capture a larger market share."

The Agway Energy Products logo is printed in block red printing, and includes the words "Fuels," "Service," and "Equipment."

To increase the public awareness of Agway Energy Products propane capabilities, the company has created a separate logo for propane trucks and facilities.

Currently, Agway Energy Products sells a broad range of liquid energy fuels, including home heating oils, propane gas, motor fuels, diesel fuels, and lubricants.

MFD tractors increase ag options

RACINE, Wisc. — The earliest tractors, just like the first cars, had traditional two-wheel-drive, with power transmitted through the rear wheels. Gradually, it became common for large farm tractors to come equipped with four-wheel-drive capability. Like their counterparts who drive 4WD cars and pick-up trucks on the roadways, farmers have learned to appreciate the go-anywhere performance on versatility of all-wheel-drive.

Today the popularity of 4WD power has been extended to smaller tractors in the 40- to 90-horsepower range equipped with mechanical front-wheel-drive (MFD). Using smaller, maneuverable MFD-equipped tractors, farmers can enjoy better performance in soft and wet fields, snow or sand, with a mechanical front-wheel-drive which can be operated in two-wheel or four-wheel-drive modes.

Today's MFD tractors are more efficient and productive than traditional two-wheel-drive models, according to researchers at the University of Nebraska, who tested a 70 PTO horsepower J I Case tractor equipped with MFD

For years, MFD tractors dominated the market in Europe, where small farms often use only one or two tractors for all chores. In North America, standard two-wheel-drive tractors have been popular for basic farm and utility work As American farm sizes increased, big four-wheel-drive tractors became increasingly important so farmers could reduce labor costs and process more acres with more power and traction while using larger implements.

Now the MFD tractor is also increasing in popularity on both big and small farms in the U.S. and Canada. North American operators are enjoying the best of both worlds — the maneuverability of two-wheel-drive and the tractive efficiency of four-wheel-drive.

A mechanical front-wheel-drive tractor has greater traction than an ordinary two-wheel-drive tractor, especially in mud, soft soil, uneven ground and other poor operating conditions that are common during some planting and harvesting seasons, according to the University of Nebraska researchers.

Not only can an MFD tractor go where conventional two-wheel-drive tractors often cannot, but its compact size also allows an operator to maneuver in tight areas such as storage sheds and barns. An MFD-equipped tractor moves in the direction it is pointed, with the powered front wheels pulling instead of bulldozing. The reduced rolling resistance of the front tires gives more complete steering control for turns, braking and power-take-off.

Another advantage of MFD is in tractor/loader applications. When a front-end loader is attached to the tractor and a loader bucket is raised, the weight of the load is transferred to the front drive wheels for added traction. When using materials buckets, manure forks, pallet forks, or grapple-over-buckets, the drive power stays on all four wheels for loading and unloading in forward and reverse.

Typical applications for engaging front-wheel drive on an MFD tractor include operating on rolling slopes for better climbing ability and increased stability; where dual wheels of big tractors would damage crops or compact soil; when good turning power is needed in soft or wet fields; when increased travel speed for cultivating is needed; in narrow-row applications; and in snow and mud for winter livestock feeding.

Although MFD offers many benefits for a variety of applications, the Nebraska research findings suggest that proper ballasting of an MFD tractor is the key to its overall effectiveness. When pulling mounted or towed implements using MFD, weight should be placed on the front axle for the best traction. The ideal recommended ballast situation is 40 to 45 percent weight on the front wheels and 55 to 60 percent on the rear wheels. The user can count on an extra seven percent of tractive efficiency with a properly ballasted MFD tractor.

Increased productivity, greater traction and better maneuverability make the MFD tractor a wise economic choice for farmers who need to make efficient and effective use of their new-equipment dollars. The initial cost of an MFD tractor is slightly higher than a standard two-wheel-drive model. However, the weather-beating productivity of the mechanical front-wheel-drive mode, plus the added maneuverability for basic farm utility chores can offset the additional cost when the farmer effectively uses the MFD tractor's versatility.

Popularity and maneuverability of all-wheel-drive has been extended to smaller ag tractors through mechanical front-wheel-drive.

Silo unloader re-new kit listed

FORT ATKINSON, Wisc. — Butler Livestock Systems recently introduced the Volumaster Unloader Re-New Kit. It allows farmers to upgrade the performance of their Butler/Jamesway Volumatic II and III silo unloaders to that of the new Volumaster system, without paying for parts they don't need.

"It's the first time farmers have been offered a kit that replaces only parts subject to wear and at the same time it really improves unloader performance," remarked Gene Kapsner, marketing services manager. "As a result, a farmer can save up to 50% by installing the Re-New Kit instead of buying a complete unloader. Savings depend on what may need replacing in the silo, but the least a farmer could expect to save is 25%."

With the Re-New Kit, Butler has taken into consideration the fact that many unloader parts, such as the motors, collector ring, support ring and arms, rarely wear out. Instead, it replaces such hard-working parts as the blower, auger, auger shroud and discharge chute, which face corrosive silage acids and high abrasion.

An inspection of the existing unloader, including the hexapod and unloader suspension system, determines specifically which components need to be replaced. The actual installation usually

Scrapie listed in 2 states

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Two cases of sheep scrapie were confirmed during August – one in Indiana and one in Wisconsin.

Jack R. Pitcher, staff veterinarian with USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said earlier this month samples were taken from a 3-year old Suffolk ram in Huntingdon, Ind., and from a female in Green Lake, Wis., and sent to the National Veterinary Services Laboratories in Ames, Iowa, for testing. In both instances, scrapie was confirmed – on Aug. 14 for the Huntingdon sample and Aug. 20 for the sample from Green Lake.

Pitcher said those animals, along with any closely related animals will be destroyed and disposed of. He said the owners will be paid two-thirds the appraised value of the animals up to $300.

"The 22 cases reported in this fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1983, through Aug. 20, 1984, have reached an all time high," Pitcher said. "We have not had as many reported cases since 1956 – and the year is not over yet."

Scrapie is a disease of sheep and goats that attacks the central nervous system. It has an extremely long incubation period, requiring 18 to 42 months or longer before clinical signs appear. It is nearly always fatal. Symptons include poor condition, unsteady gait and rubbing or scratching to relieve intense itching.

Weed control in no-till beans cited

LANCASTER — New postemergence herbicides such as Poast and Fusilade, in combination with Paraquat+Plus and other old-time industry standards, are making no-till soybeans an option for many new growers across the country, according to the experts.

"For the first time, we've got a no-till soybean herbicide program that will control shattercane and Johnsongrass," says Nate Hartwig, weed scientist at Penn State. Hartwig says these grasses, along with triazine resistant pigweed and other hard-to-control weeds, have begun to move into the southeastern section of the state where most no-till soybeans are grown. They were impeding the growth of no-till soybeans and even threatening corn yields, he says, until tools were developed to control them.

Hartwig says a two-step program to control these weeds begins with an economical, at-planting treatment of Paraquat and common residuals, such as Lorox, Sencor or Lexone tank mixed with Dual or Lasso. After the soybeans are up, Poast or Fusilade is applied as a spot treatment for escaping grasses.

"This program is the only alternative we have for johnsongrass or shattercane control, unless farmers want to resort to heavy tillage or incorporated herbicides in corn," Hartwig says.

Ellery Knake, Extension weed scientist at the University of Illinois, says in some cases, farmers might omit their soil-applied herbicide for grass control and use post treatments instead. He says farmers who want to "see the enemy" might apply Paraquat and a herbicide for broadleaf weeds at planting and come back with a post treatment as needed for control of grass weeds.

Knake doesn't expect farmers will be giving up their Lasso, Dual and other soil-applied treatments for grass control just yet. "Some of our more cautious farmers might continue to use a soil-applied herbicide for control of grass weeds and use postemergence sprays as a backup," he says. "But either way, these post treatments allow soybean growers new help for reduced tillage systems."

At-planting treatment with fast-acting contact herbicide allows farmers to no-till soybeans right behind the combine. Weeds that emerge later can be treated with new postemergence herbicides.

Re-new kit

takes a Butler dealer less than a day. "The farmer shouldn't miss a feeding when the kit is installed," Kapsner pointed out.

"By replacing worn parts found during the inspection, combined with installation of a Re-New Kit, farmers can get a high-capacity unloader at a lower-than-replacement price."

According to Kapsner, these savings are important in today's economy where farmers are often forced to keep repairing old equipment, forestalling new purchases. "With the Re-New Kit, a farmer gets both," explained Kapsner. "he repairs his old machine, while getting the features of a new system."

The kit's design improvements were tested during the past two severe Wisconsin winters. Kapsner reported that these new features provide the higher capacity, less maintenance and easier service of the Volumaster silage distributor/unloader.

One reason for the higher unloader capacity is the reduced blower speed. "By dropping blower speed from 1,200 r.p.m. (on the Volumatic III) to 950 r.p.m., we increased the amount of horsepower available to the auger," explained Gordon Foes, product engineer. "The auger can move more feed to the blower and out the chute. The new chute's deeper design also improves feed flow because it channels forage and air movement more efficiently. Farmers can expect a 10% to 15% increase in forage handling capacity."

Butler also made changes in design details that improved reliability and serviceability. According to Foes, the new fiberglass discharge chute, with a stainless steel liner, helps prevent wear for longer life. He added that the new six-blade chipper wheel shaves frozen silage off the wall better. Furthermore, new wall wheels, designed in one piece from solid polyethylene, reduce wear and improve longevity.

"All these small changes add up to a big improvement in the unloader's everyday performance," Foes concluded.

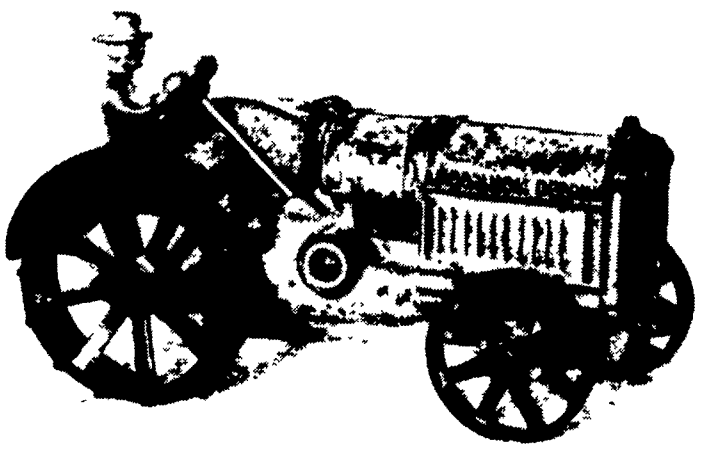
Farm toy show to be held Oct. 13



McCormick-Deering 10/20 from the 1930's is made of cast iron and is a popular subject for reproductions.

Oliver 77 from the early-1950's is equipped with mounted corn picker.

LANCASTER — The largest farm toy show and auction ever staged in the East will be held in Lancaster County on Saturday, Oct. 13.

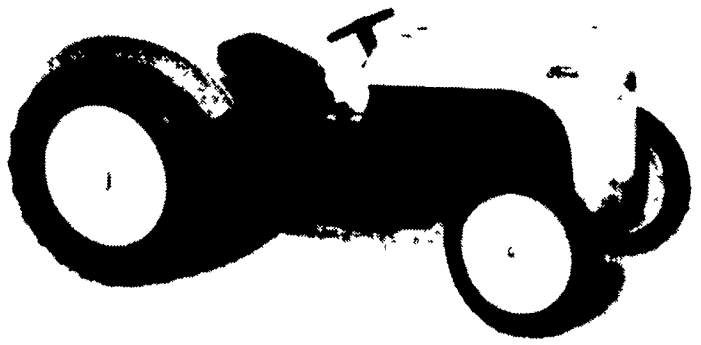
Participation involves displaying collections in competition for the trophies awarded, setting up tables full of older toys to sell, selling repair parts, decals, or collector books, or just coming to look, buy, sell or trade farm related toys.

Collectors from Florida to New Hampshire and from as far west as Iowa are coming to display their collections and wares on over 50 tables. Last years winners were from Maryland and Pennsylvania. They will face even greater competition this year.

Also Ray Crilley and Charles Burkholder, authors of the book "Collecting Model Farm Toys of the World" will be there.

This year's show will be held in the large gym at the Lancaster Mennonite High School along Route 30, just east of Lancaster, it will again be sponsored by Dave Nolt, who is one of the original collectors in the East and has written several books on farm toy collecting. Also, he is a regular contributer of articles on farm toy collecting to the monthly farm toy collecting magazines and other farm related publications.

The show opens to the public at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 13 and will remain open til 10 p.m. Around 2:30, a children's pedal tractor pull will be held (weather permitting). Boys & girls from 4 to 9 years old can compete and will be awarded prizes. Special pedal tractors will be furnished and will pull a sled with a moving weight box just like the big ones. Children wanting to pull should be there by 2 p.m. so they can sign up. Permission of a parent is needed.



Model 8N Ford tractor dates from the 1950's.

At 5 p.m. an auction will be held of older farm toys including pedal tractors and will continue until 10 p.m.

Admission will be charged except for the pedal tractor pulling event. For more information, write: 84 Show, 57 Harristown Rd., Paradise, PA. 17562.

'Uniformity' cited as key in buying feeder cattle

BY DEBBIE STILES-RENZI
Staff Correspondent

TUCKER COUNTY, W. Va. — "Uniformity." In a word, County Agent Voras Haynes summed up what feedlot operators and "grazers" alike are looking for in feeder calves and cattle they're buying.

In a tour organized through West Virginia University Extension and coordinated by county agents Haynes and Jim Stiles, a group of potential buyers got a chance to look over some of the Mountain State's offerings on September 4.

All together, the group of feedlot operators from Ohio, and farmers from other parts of West Vriginia who graze calves were shown 516 calves and 220 yearling cattle at ten different farms scattered across Randolph and Tucker counties.

According to County Agent Haynes, these potential buyers were "impressed with the fine quality calves" they saw. "Some buyers are looking for thick, heavy calves that will finish out at 1100-1150 lbs.," Haynes stated. "Others want the more exotic breed types that will finish at 1200 lbs. or better. But all in all, they liked what they saw here."

Angus, Charolais, Simmental and Black Baldy were some of the breeds and crosses represented during this tour.

One sore point, however, was the more than 100 lb. weight spread which marked some calf groups which the buyers examined. Although a few of the "grazers" — those purchasers who pasture the calves until the animals reach 1000 lbs. before selling them to a finishing feedlot — indicated that they were willing to buy different weight groups off farms and make up various packages with them or sell them later at staggered times, the feedlot buyers did not concur. Stating that to stay profitable they had to keep their lots full at all times, the feedlot operators made known their preference for no more than a 100 lb. weight spread top to bottom on any truckload of calves they bought.

This problem of providing uniformity in weight as well as type and frame is one which West Virginia beef producers are preparing to tackle, through the utilization of programs like performance testing. By using tools such as estrus synchronization farmers like Kermit Bonner of Tucker County are reducing their calving season, in order to provide feeders with calves that meet that "less than 100-lb. spread" requirement.

And through good record-keeping, farmers Steve and Ronald Warner, Max and Hubert Teter, Kermit and Ruth Bonner, Mark Pritt, Jack Wilkins, and Roy Mullenex (those beef producers on this year's tour) will strive to continually improve their herds and the calves they offer for sale to out of state and in-state buyers.

Randolph County, W.Va. agent Voras Haynes shows calves on Kermit Bonner farm to Dale Beckett, Monroe County. Beckett purchases calves to graze until they reach 1000 lbs. when he sells them to feedlots.

Kermit Bonner sorts calves to be weighed as part of management in his performance testing program.

Angus and Charolais crosses can be found on the Kermit Bonner farm in Tucker County, W.Va.

Bulls are also raised on Kermit Bonner farm. This group are all progeny of a son of Schearbrook Shoshone.

Couple attends conference

YORK — Mr. & Mrs. Barry L. Black, of R1, Biglerville, participated in a special Cooperative Couples Conference recently in Danville, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives and Penn State's College of Agriculture.

The two joined with 45 other young farm couples from throughout the Commonwealth to take part in the two-day event. Sessions were held at the Sheraton Inn, Danville.

The two are sponsored by the York Farm Credit Service which serves farmer members and communities in this region.

At the conference, they shared facts, opinions, and insights about cooperatives and their role in the strengths of our business enterprise system.

In addition, they discussed ways in which young farm men and women play a vital leadership role in cooperatives and in community affairs. They took part in discussions designed to pinpoint concerns of family farms and also major issues of cooperatives that serve their farms.

PFA launches member drive

CAMP HILL — Enthusiasm will be an integral part of the 1985 membership campaign of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA)

Groundwork for this fall's sign up campaign will be laid Monday and Tuesday during a conference of PFA membership chairman in Harrisburg.

PFA vice president D. Eugene Gayman of Franklin County and PFA administrative secretary Richard Newpher will address the county association leaders on the importance of membership expansion in 1985 Information on how to organize a short and successful sign up campaign in each county will be conveyed in a series of education sessions. PFA plans for representatives of all 54 of its county associations to attend.

PFA president Keith Eckel said, "This year with the theme 'Campaign 85' our leaders are striving for membership goals with a renewed enthusiasm. We believe that membership growth is possible and, indeed, vital to the continued effectiveness and progress of our organization. We think that all of agriculture will benefit from a stronger farm organization. We are looking forward to a quick, effective campaign so each county association will be able to devote more time and energy to other important farmers' association programs such as local affairs and legislation."

Co-ops tighten belts & increase margins

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Net margins of the nation's farmer cooperatives climbed nearly 25 percent (24.2), but business volume declined 3.6 percent, a U.S. Department of Agriculture official reports.

Randall E. Torgerson, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Cooperative Service, said combined sales were $66.7 billion, compared with $69.2 billion in 1982. Net margins were $1.06 billion, compared with $854 million in 1982 and $1.4 billion in 1981.

Torgerson said the recovery on margins reflected improved management of cooperatives. It was accomplished through cost-saving initiatives and lower interest rates, he said.

Total cooperative business volume includes marketing — value of products sold; farm supplies — sales of fertilizer, chemicals, fuels, feed and other supplies to members and patrons; and receipts from related services such as trucking, storage, ginning and drying.

Total declines

Torgerson said adjustment in the number of cooperatives and memberships reflected general changes in agriculture.

Cooperative numbers continued to decline — from 6,125 in 1982 to 5,985 in 1983 — due to mergers, consolidations, acquisitions and liquidations. Memberships of 4.95 million were down 3.6 percent from 5.1 million in 1982. Memberships are higher than farm numbers because many farmers belong to more than one cooperative. Membership per association averaged 827, compared with 838 for 1982.

Marketing volume, at $49.3 billion, was down 4.1 percent from the $51.4 billion in 1982.

Dairy is tops

Dairy product business volume replaced grain and soybean products as the leading commodity marketed, a significant change from previous years. Dairy volume reached $16.8 billion, up 6.3 percent. Grain and soybean products declined 11.1 percent to $16.2 billion. Wool and mohair, nuts, sugar and poultry volume increased. The biggest drops in volume occurred for beans and peas, down 38.4 percent, and tobacco, down 32.4 percent.

Farm supply volume was $16.0 billion, a 2.5 percent drop from the $16.4 billion in 1982.

Though petroleum products continued to account for the largest volume among farm supplies, $5.4 billion, a substantial switch moved feed ahead of fertilizer. Feed sales increased 7.6 percent to $3.6 billion, while fertilizer sales dropped 16.7 percent to $2.8 billion.

Value of other services related to farm business rose to $1.5 billion, a 5.3 percent increase over the $1.4 billion in 1982.

Leading states

Minnesota and Texas were the leading states in number of cooperatives, with 670 and 422 respectively.

States with the largest number of cooperative memberships were Minnesota, 447,843 and Wisconsin, 318,844.

Iowa accounted for the largest business volume handled by cooperatives with $5.8 billion. California was second with $5.4 billion.

Farmer cooperative assets totaled $28.8 billion, a 1.0 percent increase from 1982.

Total liabilities dropped from $17.4 billion in 1982 to $17.3 billion in 1983.

Net worth, or member and patron equity, increased 3.3 percent, from $11.2 billion to $11.5 billion. The proportion of total assets financed by equity increased from 39.1 to 40.0 percent.

Grange gives scholarships

HARRISBURG — Six Grange members are recipients of student scholarships provided by the Pennsylvania State Grange.

Christopher Hower of Northampton, Northampton County was selected by the State Grange scholarship board to receive the Leonard Rhone scholarship, a $300 a year grant to a student in good grange standing to pursue a four-year study at The Pennsylvania State University. Leonard Rhone was the third master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, and the scholarship was initiated in his memory.

The following four Grange members received the Ellis Santee scholarship, an interest-free loan of up to $500 a year to members of the Grange and their children: Ruth Yocum of Claysville, Washington County; Reta Cox of Hookstown, Beaver County; Janet Rudy of Sewickley, Allegheny County; Luann Kohler of Rochester, Beaver County; and Corinne Dunkle of Avella, Washington County. The Santee scholarship was established by Dr. Ellis M. Santee, a country doctor from Shickshinny, Pa., and an active member of the Grange.

All scholarships are administered by the scholarship board of the Pennsylvania State Grange. The Grange is a general rural farm organization with 42,000 members in Pennsylvania.

"Twist-Lock" cups: newest innovation from the new leader

The new SWISH Twist Lock cup is available also for brood grow

...another reason SWISH saves you more labor, more birds, and more money

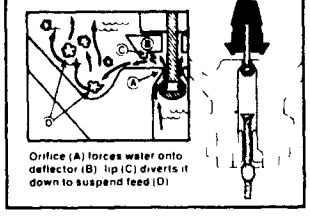
The newest twist in cage watering makes cup cleaning and maintenance a real snap It s SWISH s Twist-Lock cups for cage layers and brood-grow watering systems

SaVes labor. No more contortions with hand tools inside a cage – one simple twist of the wrist unlocks and removes the unitized cup and valve It s that easy to maintain when necessary

But with SWISH it s hardly ever necessary That s because our cup is self-cleaning Our patented valve keeps the cup clean by flushing any feed particles out so birds can consume them with the water

Installation is a snap too with SWISH s new cups they simply snap into the desired location and the hose attaches to the water line outlet These are some of the ways SWISH s new cup saves you labor – easy installation, low maintenance, and labor savings between flocks because our cup constantly cleans itself

PATENTED VALVE IS KEY TO OUR PERFORMANCE



Orifice (A) forces water onto deflector (B) lip (C) diverts it down to suspend feed (D)

Helps save more birds. Because our cup is self-cleaning, algae and bacteria growth is not a problem as with cups that don t flush out feed particles Clean cups mean less chance of disease and less mortality And our big cup means good access to water for a good level of bird health

SWISH saves you money. That s the bottom line with a system that cuts labor and keeps birds alive and productive

Get all the facts about our new cup and other SWISH innovations See your SWISH distributor or contact us

Denotes 3 Times Milking

Get spread patterns of up to 50 ft!

Now, spread manure faster, easier with the new line of Scavenger spreaders from Hedlund-Martin.

Based on a whole new design-technology, Scavenger is built specifically for today's manure-handling needs. With Scavenger you can spread most kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack (even frozen)—all year 'round. And you'll do it more efficiently with a lot less bother.

Available in five sizes—from the new 182-bushel Scavenger Mini to the 386-bushel model 1678. There's a Scavenger just right for your operation. See them on display today.

Exclusive square-tube auger creates unique "pulse" action to thoroughly break up manure.

Martin-design Variflo discharge throws manure up to 50 ft —lets you choose your optimum rate of application.

Auger moves hydraulically up and down to eliminate bridging—cut through wintertime freeze ups.

Sealed Uni-body construction stands up to hard use year after year

MF FINANCING WON'T TAKE YOU FOR A RIDE.

Our Fixed-Rate financing takes the ups and downs out of buying a combine.

Buying a combine with variable rate financing is risky The rate can go down But it can also go way up Which does nasty things to your cost of ownership

But when you buy a Massey-Ferguson combine, you can get our Fixed-Rate financing Which means the interest rate you get today will be the same one you have tomorrow, next month, next year and down the line

You can even pick the rate you want — depending on how long you take to pay Like this·

Financing Period	18 mos	30 mos	42 mos	54 mos	60 mos
YOUR RATE*	6.9%	7.9%	9.9%	10.9%	11.9%

Those are some of the lowest rates you'll find anywhere — fixed or variable And our prices are way down too, thanks to some really big factory discounts that we've got to work with

Our Fixed-Rate financing and factory discounts can mean the difference between being able to buy that new combine now and waiting till later (And who knows where prices and interest rates will be later?)

Stop in and ask us about Fixed-Rate financing on Massey-Ferguson combines. We'll show you how to get into a new combine without being taken for a ride on financing.

WORKER B'S.

Nothing works harder than our B-Series tractors. They range from 12 to 19 hp. So there's one for every job.

And with a hydraulic 3-point hitch, front and rear PTO, these tractors can handle a variety of implements.

Like every Kubota tractor, B models come with your choice of 2-or 4-wheel drive. Plus a sturdy, low-maintenance Kubota diesel engine.

So if you're looking for a hard worker, look no further than Kubota's worker B tractors.
